GENERAL EDITOR'S PREFACE

The Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan—that Institute of Indian Culture in Bombay—needed a Book University, a series of books which, if read, would serve the purpose of providing higher education. Particular emphasis, however, was to be put on such literature as revealed the deeper impulsions of India. As a first step, it was decided to bring out in English 100 books, 50 of which were to be taken in hand almost at once. Each book was to contain from 200 to 250 pages and was to be priced at Rs. 2/-.

It is our intention to publish the books we select, not only in English, but also in the following Indian languages : Hindi, Bengali, Gujarati, Marathi, Tamil, Telugu, Kannada and Malayalam.

This scheme, involving the publication of 900 volumes, requires ample funds and an all-India organisation. The Bhavan is exerting its utmost to supply them.

The objectives for which the Bhavan stands are the reintegration of the Indian culture in the light of modern knowledge and to suit our present-day needs and the resuscitation of its fundamental values in their pristine vigour.

Let me make our goal more explicit :

We seek the dignity of man, which necessarily implies the creation of social conditions which would allow him freedom to evolve along the lines of his own temperament and capacities ; we seek the harmony of individual efforts and social relations, not in any makeshift way, but within the frame-work of the Moral Order ; we seek the creative art of life, by the alchemy of which human limitations are progressively transmuted, so that man may become the instrument of God, and is able to see Him in all and all in Him.

The world, we feel, is too much with us. Nothing would uplift or inspire us so much as the beauty and aspiration which such books can teach.

In this series, therefore, the literature of India, ancient and modern, will be published in a form easily accessible to all. Books in other literatures of the world, if they illustrate the principles we stand for, will also be included.

This common pool of literature, it is hoped, will enable the reader, eastern or western, to understand and appreciate currents of world thought, as also the movements of the mind in India, which, though they flow through different linguistic channels, have a common urge and aspiration.

Fittingly, the Book University's first venture is the Mahabharata, summarised by one of the greatest living Indians, C. Rajagopalachari, the second work is on a section of it, the Gita by H. V. Divatia, an eminent jurist and student of philosophy. Centuries ago, it was proclaimed of the Mahabharata : "What is not in it, is nowhere". After twenty-five centuries, we can use the same words about it. He who knows it not, knows not the heights and depths of the soul ; he misses the trials and tragedy and the beauty and grandeur of life.

The Mahabharata is not a mere epic ; it is a romance, telling the tale of heroic men and women, and of some who were divine ; it is a whole literature in itself, containing a code of life, a philosophy of social and ethical relations, and speculative thought on human problems that is hard to rival ; but, above all, it has for its core the Gita, which is, as the world is beginning to find out, the noblest of scriptures and the grandest of sagas in which the climax is reached in the wondrous Apocalypse in the Eleventh Canto.

Through such books alone the harmonies underlying true culture, I am convinced, will one day reconcile the disorders of modern life.

I thank all those who have helped to make this new branch of Bhavan's activity successful.

FOREWORD

Professor D. S. Sarma has spent over 50 years reading and writing about Indian thought. He has lived in close companionship with nearly fifty centuries of Indian history. He has discerned what is vital and valid in India's spirit which has helped her to survive many cruel vicissitudes and many diseases and disasters.

While we may quarrel with the outward forms, mechanical rites and social superstitions which have acquired the sanctity of religion and which have hampered the growth of the spirit of religion, the fundamental principles of religion, viz., a deepening awareness of the Divine and compassion for humanity, are never superseded. They may take different forms determined by the pressure of circumstances, the rush of events or the temperaments of the leading personalities, but these forms are susceptible of change. We now have to readjust the social forms so that they may accord with the true spirit of religion.

In his many writings which bear the imprint of his penetration, insight and judgment, Professor Sarma shows us the way to the future development of religion. He suggests a reconciliation between ancient wisdom and the needs of modern society. If mankind is to be redeemed we require to be spiritually armed.

In this, his latest book, Professor Sarma weaves the several ideas of the Upanishads into an intelligible pattern of spiritual power.

PREFACE

This book was planned by me about twenty-five years ago as a parallel to my Student's edition of the Gita (1930), with an Introduction, text and translation and notes. I actually wrote down some of the Selections in the year 1936. But various things came in the way of my continuing the work — other duties, bereavements, illness, etc. At one time I even gave up the idea. However, a friend had all along been urging me to take up the work again and finish it before it was too late. So at long last I have carried out my old plan, though not half as satisfactorily as I once wished to do. But this was the best I could do under the circumstances.

While preparing my Ms. for the Press, I came across the following passage in The Scriptures of Mankind (New York, 1952) by C. S. Braden :

"One who has heard of the vast importance of the Upanishads and had read scattered excerpts of rare beauty and insight is likely to feel a sense of shock as he sits down to read through the whole collection of the twelve or thirteen Principal Upanishads. Some of it is crude, childish But if the reader persists he will come upon passages of deep insight, beauty of expression and profound understanding of the great problems of religion and human thought. One's first excursion into these basic philosophic texts would best be through some modern expurgated edition or anthology which has carefully weeded out the crudities, the repetitiousness and the contradictions that so much abound in the original."

To produce such an anthology was exactly my aim in these Selections. I have tried to preserve here most, if not all, of "the passages of deep insight, beauty of expression and profound understanding" to which Mr. Braden refers and to omit all that is likely to puzzle and vex the modern reader. At the same time I have also tried, as far as possible, to make my collection fairly representative of all aspects of the Upanishadic thought. I have followed the traditional order of the Upanishads, and in my notes I have relied mostly on Sankara's commentaries.

This book is intended only for the general reader and not for the professed student of our religion and philosophy. That is indeed my excuse not only for making a selection of the sacred passages but also for abridging them, wherever necessary, to avoid needless repetitions of uninteresting details. However, I shall feel very happy if this anthology provides an incentive to a detailed study of the Upanishadic philosophy under the guidance of a qualified Pandit and with the help of the commentaries, both ancient and modern.

I am deeply grateful to the Vice-President of India for writing the Foreword and to the Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan for their readily consenting to publish the book in their well-known series.

INTRODUCTION

I

The Upanishads have been rightly termed the Himalayas of the soul. They represent the heights to which the spirit of man soared in this country in its contemplation of the Divine Spirit. They contain the experience of the seers and saints of India who lived about three thousand years ago. It cannot be stressed too often that the Upanishads are the revelations vouchsafed not to a single prophet but to the seers of a whole age, which is one of the most brilliant in the annals of mankind. They are inspired utterances, the results not of a logical but of a poetic approach to Reality. Accordingly we do not have a single uniform system of thought emerging out of their teachings. On the contrary, as the history of Hinduism shows, we have here several levels of thought and experience which gave rise in course of time to several schools of philosophy and several streams of religious tradition. At the same time it is obvious that not all the truths taught here are equally prominent. Some are only half-way houses on the path leading to the Absolute.

It is well known that the Upanishads constitute the last phase of the Vedic revelation. The Mantras constitute the first phase, the Brahmanas the second, the Aranyakas the third, and the Upanishads the fourth and the last. Thus the Upanishads come at the end of the Veda and hence the teachings they embody are known as the Vedanta. But there is no hard and fast line between one phase and another. Nor is there any inner contradiction between them. There is only change of emphasis. If the Brahmanas develop the ritualistic elements in the Mantras, the Aranyakas and the Upanishads develop the mystical elements in them. It is a mistake to suppose that the Upanishads in any manner intend to break away from the earlier phases of the Veda. Such a thing is unknown to the Hindu religious tradition. Therein lies perhaps the secret of its strength. The very fact that the Upanishadic teachers often quote verses from the Vedic hymns in support of their teachings shows that no new departure was contemplated by them. Also, occasionally we have in the longer Upanishads, as in the Brahmanas, discussions on such details of the sacrifices as the number of offerings to be made, the duties to be discharged by the various officiating priests, the hymns to be sung and the gods to be invoked. At this distance of time we may not be interested in these discussions and may even regard them as a hindrance to our appreciation of the poetry and the philosophy of the Upanishads, but they were of tremendous importance to the men of that age. For it was believed at the time that any error in the performance of a sacrifice or any misunderstanding of the import of a mantra might result in the falling off of the priest's head. In fact it is only when we are able to make due allowance for the mass of local and temporary beliefs of the age and look through them at the universal and eternal truths taught by the Upanishadic seers that we are in a position to appreciate the originality and the courage of those teachers. They were apparently engaged in the mighty task of transforming a rather low type of sacrificial religion prevalent at the time into a great mystical religion true for all time, without in any explicit manner breaking away from the traditions of the past. And they succeeded in this to such an extent that their teaching, with its later developments and off-shoots, spread not only over the whole sub-continent of India but also over many of the islands and countries of the Far East. Indeed it became the basis of one of the greatest religious traditions that the world has ever known.

II

The worth of any religious tradition depends upon the quality of its teaching about God and His creation, and man and his salvation. On all these four fundamental topics the Upanishads in their best moments show a great advance from the earlier Vedic thought and also contain hints of far-reaching developments.

But far more important than the advance in thought or even the future developments is the direct vision of the seers and also the strength of conviction with which they speak about it. To use the figure employed by Sri Ramakrishna, the Upanishadic seers are like those who speak about the holy city of Benares after seeing it and living in it and not like the people who eloquently discourse on it after seeing only a map of it. To them God was not a mere traditional symbol or a vague hypothesis, but a living and burning experience. They see Him everywhere—in the wide expanse of the universe, in the phenomena of Nature around them and in the secret chambers of men's hearts. They exclaim :— :

"The Infinite is below ; He is above ; He is behind ; He is in front ; He is to the south ; He is to the north ; He is indeed all this."

"Through fear of Him fire burns ; through fear of Him the sun blazes ; through fear of Him Indra, Vayu, and also Yama, as the fifth, speed on their way."

"From Him come all the seas and the mountains ; from Him flow the rivers of every kind ; from Him come all the herbs and their juices ——."

"Verily, it is by the command of that Imperishable, O Gargi, that the sun and the moon stand apart. It is by the command of that Imperishable, O Gargi, that heaven and earth stand apart. It is by the command of that Imperishable that what are called moments, hours, days and nights, half-months, months, seasons, years — all stand apart."

"Radiant and near, indeed stirring in the heart itself, is that great Being. In it is centred everything —everything that moves and breathes and winks."

III

Already in the hymns of the Rig Veda we notice here and there a shift of emphasis from the multitudinous gods to the one Infinite, as in the famous oft-quoted passage—Ekam Sat, vipra bahudha vadanti. ("Reality is one, the wise speak of it in different ways.") This becomes more pronounced in the Upanishads and is very well illustrated by the story of the discomfiture of the gods in the Kenopanishad. We are told that Brahman won a victory for the gods, but the gods thought that it was due to their own strength, and when He appeared before them they did not know Him. They sent up the god of fire and the god of wind to find out who He was. When these approached and announced themselves He set a straw before them and asked them to show their strength against it. The god of fire went against it with all his strength, but could not burn it. The god of wind went against it with all his strength, but could not move it from its place. Then Indra, the king of the gods, came up to enquire who the unknown Spirit was. But the spirit now disappeared and in His place Uma, the beautiful daughter of Himavat, representing heavenly wisdom, appeared on the scene and told him that the Spirit was indeed Brahman in whose victory the gods had been exulting. Indra, the king of the gods, is again significantly represented in the Chandogya Upanishad as going to Prajapati as a humble pupil for acquiring knowledge of Brahman. And the Brihadaranyaka Upanishad says, "When they say 'sacrifice to this god or sacrifice to that god' — each god is His manifestation, for He is all the gods." Thus in the Upanishads the gods fade away and their place is taken by the one infinite Brahman or Atman.

This infinite Brahman is regarded as both transcendent and immanent. He has not only created the world but also entered into it and lives in the hearts of all creatures as their antaryamin. In an eloquent passage in the Brihadaranyaka Upanishad, Yajnavalkya says :

"He who dwells in the earth and is within the earth, whom the earth does not know, whose body the earth is, who controls the earth from within—he is your Self, the inner controller, the immortal.

"He who dwells in all beings, and is within all beings, whom the beings do not know, whose body all beings are, who controls all beings from within—he is your Self, the inner controller, the immortal."

God is significantly compared in the Upanishads to a spider which weaves its web out of its own body and lies at the centre of it. There are, however, many fanciful accounts given here of the origin of creation, and some forced analogies and even false etymologies are pressed into service. Some of these are no doubt intentionally allegorical or figurative. But the rest are obviously the results of the primitive scientific thought of the time. We may ask ourselves whether after three thousand years of scientific knowledge we are now in any better position to describe the origin of the universe. Man can only theorise about it. And he has done so in all ages. But the truth is still far away. Probably it will ever remain so.

IV

Though the theories of creation found in the Upanishads are only fanciful or at best only figurative, the well-known story of the enlightenment of Bhrigu, son of Varuna, given in the Taittiriya Upanishad shows a profound insight into the process of spiritual evolution on earth. This story bears any amount of repetition.

Bhrigu approached his father Varuna and requested him to teach him Brahman—the ultimate Reality. The father gave him a general formula “that Brahman is that from which these beings are born, that by which when born they live, and that into which they enter on passing away” and asked him to go and discover Brahman for himself. Bhrigu went and meditated and came to the conclusion that annam or matter was Brahman, for it is from matter that all beings are born, it is by food, which is matter, that they live and it is into matter that they pass when they die. So he came back to his father and told him his conclusion. But the father asked him to go and meditate again. The son went again and meditated and found that prana or life, which was a higher reality than matter, was Brahman. The father asked him to go and meditate again. The son obeyed, went again and meditated. This time he discovered that manas or consciousness was a higher reality than life. In this way Bhrigu was led on step by step from matter (annam) to life (prana), from life to consciousness (manas), from consciousness to intellect (vijnana), and from intellect to bliss (ananda). He thus discovered at last that Brahman was perfect bliss. And that was the end of his enquiry.

Now, to put Bhrigu's discoveries in concrete terms, he saw five orders of beings in an ascending scale in this world, viz., (1) material objects, (2) living plants, (3) conscious animals, (4) intelligent men and (5) God in bliss. At one end of the scale there are lifeless objects which consist entirely of matter and in which the spirit is entirely dormant. At the other end of the scale there is God who is a perfect spirit and in whom matter is entirely dormant. Between these two extremes lie plants, animals and men in an ascending scale of spirit and a descending scale of matter. In stones and other lifeless objects the spirit goes to sleep, as it were, in plants and trees it wakes and manifests itself as life, in beasts and birds it goes a step further and manifests itself as mind or consciousness, in men it goes up still further and manifests itself as intellect or reason, and in God it is back again in perfection or bliss. As the spirit progresses in this manner step by step, matter shrinks away in a corresponding manner and consequently there is at every step an increase in the power of spirit over matter. Man is thus a dual being with a body and a soul. He is partly matter, partly spirit. He is half animal, half god. The more he has of spiritual qualities like goodness, mercy and love the nearer he is to the kingdom of God. And the more he has of the brutal qualities of lust, cruelty and greed the nearer he is to the animal kingdom. A saint is therefore nearer God than a sinner. The former is nearer to the goal of life than the latter.

Thus the world is a vast amphitheatre in which there is a colossal struggle going on between spirit and matter giving rise to various orders of beings ranging from the lifeless stone to the supreme spirit. The struggle is unconscious and involuntary up to the level of man. But after that it is conscious and voluntary. For man is a free agent. He has the freedom to make himself or mar himself. He can think good thoughts and do good deeds and thus rise in the scale and become a god, or think bad thoughts and do bad deeds and sink in the scale and become a brute. This is what may be called the law of spiritual progression underlying the history of the world. Dr. Radhakrishnan, from whom this exposition is adopted, says :—

“The history of the world has been a process of the return of the Absolute into itself in the fulness of its self-consciousness. The evolutionary process of the world would be unintelligible without the immanent spiritual teleology, involving a continual ascent from God’s minute beginnings to ever higher forms of existence and at last to man and superman. There is an underlying spiritual reality which is the source of evolution and our consciousness is one expression thereof. The dissociation of the Absolute into two—the Self and the other—constitutes the beginning of creation, and the work of the world is only an attempt to get back to the original wholeness through growth. The universe is just that way through which the abstract unity becomes a concrete totality. The world process is the becoming of the whole.”

It may also be pointed out that the law of spiritual progression indicated in the Taittiriya Upanishad is further illustrated in the Hindu theories of four castes (varnas), four stages of life (asramas), four ends of life (purusharthas) and the Hindu conceptions of the four phases of individual soul (Jivatman) viz., Vaisvanara, Taijasa, Prajna and Atman and the four phases of the Supreme Spirit, viz., Virat, Hiranyagarbha, Isvara and Brahman. In fact, this law may be said to be the master-key* to all Hindu thought and civilisation.

V

More important, however, than the law of spiritual progression, which runs like a golden thread through the entire web of God's creation, is the Upanishadic conception of God himself. Commenting on a verse in the Mandukya Upanishad, Dr. Radhakrishnan remarks that it is the first time in the history of thought that the distinction between the Absolute and God—between Brahman and Isvara—is elaborated. Isvara is God in relation to the universe and viewed through human spectacles, whereas Brahman

is God as He is in Himself viewed independently. In later Vedantic literature the two are often spoken of as Saguna Brahman and Nirguna Brahman. That is, the same Brahman is viewed from two different standpoints—the relative standpoint and the independent standpoint. The more daring among the Upanishadic seers were not satisfied with merely heaping all the highest qualities known to human imagination and clothing God with them and thinking that they had given an adequate description of God. For, after all, these qualities even at their highest are pitifully human conceptions. They may be good so far as they go. But they do not go far enough to bring out the immensity and the ineffability of the ultimate Reality. We should therefore give up our human standpoint altogether in the last resort and say 'Not this, not this' in trying to reach the Absolute. Otherwise, we cannot remove from the latter the last taint of anthropomorphism. The best way of indicating Brahman, as some sages say, is by silence. But this does not mean that the Absolute is a mere blank any more than the apparent "sleep" of a spinning-top going round at full speed means absence of motion. Human understanding like the human eye can operate only within certain limits and under certain conditions. When the speed of a spinning-top goes beyond a certain limit the eye cannot see the revolutions that are being made. But that does not mean that the top has come to a standstill. Similarly, when the very excess of content in the Absolute makes us unable to understand it we cannot say that it is a mere negation. If the Absolute were a mere blank how could the universe arise out of it as the Upanishads say it does? Mundakopāṇishad, for instance, says :—"That which cannot be seen or grasped, which has neither origin nor properties, which has neither eyes nor ears, neither hands nor feet, which is eternal, all-pervading, omnipresent and extremely subtle—that is the Imperishable which the sages regard as the origin of all beings.” Also if the Absolute were a mere blank, how could we ever account for the ecstasies of the great mystics of all ages and countries who have passed beyond the idiom of their own native religions? Accordingly Sankara says in his commentary on the Chandogya Upanishad that it is only to dull intellects that Brahman, the pure Being, the one without a second, which is free from all limitations and qualities appears to be a blank (Sunya). Our concept of God even at its best is only a feeble representation of a Reality which overflows it on every side. Therefore all that the expression Nirguna Brahman used in Vedanta means is that there are no mere analogues of human qualities in Brahman. In fact, whenever we think of the Absolute as having a quality of our conception we really impose a limitation on it and conceive it in human terms and do not know it as it really is. The Kenopanishad puts the pith of the matter in terse paradoxical language. It says:—“He who does not conceive it—to him it is known. He who conceives it—he does not really know. It is not really understood by those who understand it. It is really understood by those who do not understand it.”

Even personality, as the term is generally understood, is a limitation when applied to Godhead. That is why the Upanishads often refer to Brahman by the neuter pronoun ‘Tat’. By personality we generally mean a person standing over against other persons. The word presupposes the existence of some other beings differentiated from the person referred to.

Therefore it can be applied only to one who stands in some relation to others outside himself, but not to one who contains all within himself. Such a term may be applied to our conception of Isvara who stands to us in the relation of creator, preserver and destroyer of the world. But it cannot be applied to Brahman the Absolute, who is the All, the One without a second. It cannot be applied to That in which there is neither time nor space, neither cause nor effect, neither life nor death. It is in Yajnavalkya's discourses in the Brihadaranyaka Upanishad that we have the most eloquent passages on the Absolute. He says :—

“For when there is duality, as it were, then one smells another, one sees another, one hears another, one speaks to another, one thinks of another, one understands another. But when everything has become the Self then by what and whom should one smell, by what and whom should one see, by what and whom should one hear, by what and to whom should one speak, by what and of whom should one think, and by what and whom should one understand ? By what should one know that by which all this is known ? By what, my dear, should one know the knower ?”

“He is the unseen seer, the unheard hearer, the unthought thinker, the unknown knower. There is no other seer but he, there is no other hearer but he, there is no other thinker but he, there is no other knower but he. He is your Self, the inner controller, the immortal. Everything else is of evil.”

“The knowers of Brahman, O Gargi, call That the Imperishable. It is neither gross nor fine, neither short nor long, neither glowing red nor adhesive ; it is without a shadow and without darkness, without air and without space, without attachment, taste or smell, without eyes, without ears, without voice, without mind, without vigour, without breath, without a mouth, without a measure and without an inside or an outside. It consumes 'nothing and no one consumes it.'

"'Not this, not this' — there is nothing higher than this teaching that He is not this."

Taking its stand on such passages as these, the school of Advaita Vedanta draws a distinction between the impersonal Brahman and the personal Isvara, between Nirguna Brahman and Saguna Brahman. The former is a philosophical truth, the latter is a religious conception. The former is for contemplation, the latter is for worship. But it cannot be repeated too often that the one is not essentially different from the other any more than the sun seen by the naked eye is different from the sun seen through a smoked glass. The negative conception of God as Brahman is indeed the consummation and fulfilment of the positive conception of God as Isvara. It is not the result of ignorance, but of profound insight and utter humility.

VI

We have so far considered the Upanishadic teaching on God and His creation. But the most profound, and one may even say, the most startling part of the teaching of the Upanishads is that which concerns man and his destiny. We have already seen that in the scale of spiritual progression man is a dual being, partly animal and partly god, moving in

VII

Again, it is remarkable that the Upanishads take into account not only the waking consciousness of man but also his dream consciousness and his sleep consciousness and what they call turiya or the fourth state of consciousness. We have first the waking consciousness which is filled with impressions derived directly from the objects presented to the senses. Here the subject is entirely dependent on the object. Then there is the dream consciousness in which the senses are quiescent and so the impressions are derived not directly from the objects but from the images of objects stored in the memory. Here the subject is only indirectly dependent on the object. Then there is the state of dreamless sleep in which not only the senses but also the mind is quiescent. Here there are no impressions either from objects or images of objects, and there is a temporary cessation of normal consciousness. And yet on waking one has the experience of having slept soundly. We have here therefore the pure subject, but, as the state of dreamless sleep is for all practical purposes a state of unconsciousness, we have here only the negative aspect of the pure subject. Also the subject is not entirely free from the object. The principle of objectivity is still there in a dormant condition, for at any moment the sleeper may have a dream or come back to waking consciousness. And, finally, there is what is called the turiya or the fourth state of consciousness in which the subject is permanently free from the principle of objectivity and in which one has the positive experience of the liberated spirit. It is a state which is not within the experience of ordinary men but which is to by all the great mystics of the world The andukya Upanishad describes it thus in a famous passage :—

“That which does not cognise either internal objects or external objects—that which is not a mass cognition, which is neither cognitive nor non-cognitive—that which cannot be seen, which cannot be described, which cannot be grasped, which has no distinctive marks, which cannot be thought of, which cannot be designated—that of which the essence is the knowledge of the oneness of the Self—that in which the world ceases to exist—the peaceful, the benign, the non-dual—such, they think, is the fourth state. That is the Atman That is to be realised.”

VIII

But what is the way to this transcendental consciousness, this Atman which, the Upanishads are never tired of saying, brings us eternal happiness? All creatures seek happiness But the happiness which most of them seek and find is of the lowest quality and of the shortest duration, it is of the kind that soon brings its own reaction When Nachiketas is tempted by Yama in the Kathopanishad with the gift of the pleasures of the world he rightly exclaims: “Transient are these, O Yama, they wear out the vigour of the senses of man. Even the whole of life is short. So keep thou thy horses, keep thou thy dance and song.”

Of little more worth, according to the Upanishads, are the pleasures of Paradise which are said to be the rewards of rituals and sacrifices They have a strict time limit imposed on them. And when the allotted period of enjoyment is over the soul has to return to the world of mortals. The Mundaka Upanishad says :

"These ritualists never know the truth on account of their attachments, and therefore when the fruit of their works is exhausted they sink down and are miserable. Considering sacrifices and good works as most important these deluded men know no higher good and having enjoyed on the heights of heaven the reward of their good works they enter again this world or even a lower one."

Accordingly Nachiketas in the story referred to above was not satisfied, though he was taught a sacrifice which would secure for him a superior kind of heaven. He is represented in the Upanishad as a ripe soul full of faith, discrimination and zeal and fit to receive the highest kind of teaching — namely that the happiness which so many blindly seek on earth or in a fabled heaven is in the soul itself. Even on earth we have gleams of a true heaven in the acquisition of knowledge, in the contemplation of beauty, in the throbbing experience of love, in self-sacrifice, in adventure and heroism and even in the faithful discharge of the duties of everyday life. In all these experiences we have precious possessions of the soul, which suffer no diminution when we share them with others but actually increase in value. Thus our true happiness consists in expanding our souls in every direction and reaching out, in brotherly union with other souls, to that universal spirit who is the perfection of knowledge, beauty and love and in whom we live and move and have our being, though, being congenitally blind, we do not know it. This is the way of expansion which is called Pravritti-marga in our religious literature. But, there is another way or rather the later stage of the same way and that is called Nivritti marga. For, after years of experience we find that after all in the acquisition of knowledge, in the worship of beauty and in the thrilling experience of love we are only knowing the different phases of our own self. Yajnavalkya in his conversation with his wife Maitreyi in the Brihadaranyaka Upanishad says :—

“It is not for the love of wife that the wife is dear, but for the love of the Self is the wife dear. It is not for the love of husband that the husband is dear, but for the love of the Self is the husband dear.”

Thus the external objects seem to serve only as the means and the occasions for drawing out the inner powers of the soul. Law and order, love and beauty are inherent in our own souls and we impose them on the world and not the world on us. We are therefore justified in saying that all knowledge is only reminiscence, all love is only convalescence and all salvation is only realisation. We may even go a step further and say that love is more real than the beloved, friendship more real than the friend and law more real than the phenomena. Such a perception should induce us to withdraw from the world and explore our souls more directly. Thus we come to tread the other path, the path of concentration, the so-called Nivritti marga, which is a turning of the searchlight inwards. Many ignorant critics call this quietism and condemn it. But it is the very corner-stone of the Upanishadic teaching. We have as often to retreat into ourselves as to go out of ourselves. Our souls need concentration as well as expansion. To control our bodies, to regulate our desires and above all to acquire a mental poise and be masters of ourselves is as important as to love Nature or admire beauty or do social service. If life is to be "a vale of soul-making" we must pay as much attention to the internal world as to the external world. Indeed it is found by all spiritual adepts that it is only in the speechless prayer of internal recollection, in the blessedness of internal solitude, that the barriers of individual consciousness are removed and the transcendental consciousness fills and overflows the soul making it feel in its supreme bliss that it is one with the universal and eternal Spirit. It is this goal that the Upanishads have in view. Being meant for the spiritual adept living in the solitude of the forest these scriptures emphasize the internal way, the later stage of concentration and not the earlier stage of expansion. Our Dharma Sastras, in their chapters on the duties of the householder and citizen, emphasize the external way. So do our epics and Puranas mostly in their stories and legends. And to the Bhagavad Gita belongs the unique honour of reconciling the two paths and giving us a complete chart of spiritual life saying, "He who sees that the way of renunciation and the way of works are one—he sees indeed."

IX

Some theologies regard individuality as an inalienable possession of the soul and assume that it persists even after salvation, as though salvation were worth the name if it meant the continuance of individual limitations. Even in the experience of ordinary human love at its best the soul feels that its individuality is lost and that it is one with the beloved whom it loves and adores. What applies to human love applies a hundredfold to what is known as the mystic experience or samadhī. In all genuine mystic experience, of which the Upanishads at their best are the most adequate expression, the limitations of mind, understanding and self-consciousness that constitute individuality fade away and disappear, the veil of separateness is rent asunder and the mystic has a vision of the unity of all things in God. The Mundaka Upanishad puts it thus :—

“As the flowing rivers disappear in the sea, losing their name and form, so does a wise man freed from name and form go into the Divine Spirit greater than the great”.

Fragments of such an experience we come across in the lives of all founders of religions, mystic poets and great artists and devotees of God. Dr. Radhakrishnan says —

“The consubstantiality of the spirit in man and God is the conviction fundamental to all spiritual wisdom. It is not merely a matter of inference. In the spiritual experience itself the barriers between the self and the universal spirit drop away. We belong to the real and the real is reflected in us. The great text, Tat tvam asi (That art thou) is a simple statement of an experienced fact. ‘I and my Father are one’ is Jesus’ way of expressing the same profound truth.”

No wonder, therefore, that the teaching of the Upanishads on the nature of man and his destiny culminates in such startling sentences as, “This self is Brahman”, “I am Brahman”, “Thou art That”—which appear to some people, especially non-Hindus, as extravagant and incredible, if not blasphemous. But the Upanishadic seers do not mean by these utterances any such absurd statement as that man, as he is, even if he happens to be a great saint, is equivalent to God. All that they mean is that the inmost self of man, when all the limitations of body, mind and intellect are removed, is the same as the self of the universe. They mean that there is only one ultimate Reality which, when objectively considered, is called Brahman and, when subjectively considered, is called Atman. Obviously it is not by observing what man is in everyday life that the great seers came to this conclusion. Nor is it by any chain of reasoning. Nor were they obeying here any blind authority. It is through their own mystic experience in which, shedding their own individuality, they saw the unity of all beings in one vast ocean of changeless, eternal, universal, absolute, homogeneous, perfect spirit that they arrived at this burning truth. Is it not obvious that some such experience has been at the back of utterances like the following ?

"I am indeed below ; I am above ; I am behind ; I am before. I am to the south ; I am to the north ; I am indeed all this."

"He is my Self within the heart, smaller than a grain of millet or even the kernel of a grain of miller —He is my Self within the heart, greater than the earth, greater than the sky, greater than heaven, greater than all these worlds. He contains all works, all desires, all odours and all tastes. He pervades the whole world, silent and unmoved. He is my Self within my heart. And this is Brahman,"

It is thus through their own personal testimony that the Upanishadic seers assure us that man is potentially divine, that he can overcome the world and break his bonds, and that his salvation consists in his knowing himself. They are indeed so filled with the vision that they contemptuously brush aside all the joys of the earth and heaven and exclaim in a hundred different tones that this ineffable experience to which they give different names at different times—as Prana, Jyotis, Akasa, Brahman, Atman, Ananda—or simply Sah, Tat, Sat or Aum—is the end and aim of human existence. They are convinced that without this experience, in which the multiplicity of the world vanishes from sight and the unity of all things in the supreme spirit comes into view, man must remain man and be subject to frustration, pain and sorrow and “go from death to death”. In other words, they urge that man should take the next step in his spiritual evolution and develop a new consciousness which will be as high above his present consciousness as the latter is itself above the consciousness of the lower animals. That is surely the meaning of their frequent references to immortality (amritatvam) which man will attain by knowing God. In all such passages immortality does not mean dwelling in a heaven for ever and ever, but gaining divine consciousness even here on earth, and knowing God does not mean mere intellectual knowledge, but spiritual realisation in which knowing and being are one.

X

It is probably this high ideal which the Upanishadic seers conceived as the ultimate destiny of man that made them work out and formulate for the first time the Law of Karma and Samsara which now forms such a unique feature not only of Hinduism but also of Buddhism and Jainism. For obviously the transformation of average human consciousness into divine consciousness is a long and laborious process which cannot ordinarily be completed within the span of a single lifetime. The Kathopanishad admits that he who can find Brahman even when he is taught by an expert is a rare wonder. Hence the necessity for postulating a series of lives for the individual so that the experience of one life may be carried over and continued through the succeeding lives till the goal is reached. Accordingly the Upanishad says that a mortal ripens like corn and like corn he is born again. And Yajnavalkya says in the Brihadaranyaka Upanishad :—

“As a caterpillar, having come to the end of a blade of grass and having made an approach to another, draws itself together towards it, even so does this self, having thrown off this body and dispelled all ignorance and having made an approach towards another, draw itself together towards it. And as a goldsmith, taking a piece of gold, turns it into another shape, a newer and more beautiful one, even so does this self, having thrown off this body and dispelled all ignorance, make for itself another shape, a newer and more beautiful one, whether it be like that of the Pitris, or of the Gandharvas or of the gods or of Prajapati or Brahma, or of other beings.”

We have only the rudiments of this famous doctrine in the pre-Upanishadic literature. In the Vedic hymns, along with the indications of a belief in the immortality of the soul, we have the significant conception of Rita, which originally meant cosmic order but which later came to mean also moral order. And the gods were extolled as the guardians of both kinds of order. Varuna especially was praised as the god of righteousness who punished men for their evil deeds and rewarded them for their good ones. In the Brahmanas we have the next step in the belief that all men are born after death in another world where they are recompensed according to their deeds in this world. And one of the punishments meted out to the sinful is repeated deaths, which implies also repeated births. Then we come to the Upanishads where for the first time the doctrine appears in its fully developed form, though the later ages added some details to it. In the Upanishads it is no longer a question of rewards and punishments meted out by an external judge, nor is the venue of the operation of the law confined to the other world. In the new teaching man becomes the architect of his own spiritual fortunes, no longer subject to chance or the will of a capricious God. His character becomes his destiny, the moral law being wrought into his own nature and operating in this world as in the other world, making him go up and down in the scale of creation, from the lowest forms of life to the highest, according to his own thoughts and deeds through a series of lives. And freedom from this cycle of births and deaths comes to him only when his individual consciousness gives place to divine consciousness. The Brihadaranyaka Upanishad says :—

“According as a man acts, according as a man conducts himself, so does he become. The doer of good becomes good, the doer of evil becomes evil. One becomes virtuous by virtuous action and sinful by sinful action. Some say that a man is made of desires only (and not of acts). But as is his desire so is his will, as his will so is the deed he does, and whatever deed he does, that he will reap—so much for the man who desires. But as to the man who does not desire, who is without desire, whose desire is satisfied, whose desire is the Self only—his vital spirits do not depart elsewhere Being Brahman, he goes to Brahman ”

The Chandogya Upanishad describes two paths for the departed soul—the path of the gods for those who in the forest meditate with faith and austerity and the path of the Pitris for those who living in a village offer sacrifices and perform works of public utility and give alms For the former class there is no rebirth They are gradually led to Brahman For the latter class there is rebirth The Upanishad goes on to say —

“Those whose conduct here has been good will quickly attain a good birth—the birth of a Brahmin or a Kshatriya or a Vaisya But those whose conduct has been evil will quickly attain an evil birth—the birth of a dog or a hog or an outcaste But on neither of these two ways are those small creatures which are continuously revolving, those of whom it may be said, ‘Be born and die.’ This is a third state ”

It will be seen that the teaching here is still bound up with the eschatological and sociological ideas of the time—with the so-called path of the gods and the path of Pitris and the system of castes and outcastes But, in spite of these, its universal application is obvious In fact, it may be said that next to the distinction drawn between Brahman the impersonal Absolute and Isvara the personal God, and the ultimate identity discovered between Paramatman the universal Self and Jivatman the individual self, this comprehensive law of Karma embracing all creation is the greatest contribution made by the Upanishads to the religious thought of mankind.

Further, it may also be pointed out that the Upanishads not only formulate the Law of Karma but also anticipate the doctrine of Karma-yoga, which is elaborated in the Bhagavad Gita and which may be looked upon as the solvent of the Law of Karma. According to this doctrine all works done in a spirit of renunciation and sacrifice with no desire for their fruit lead not to rebirth but to moksha which is freedom from births and deaths. The Avatar of the Gita says :—

“Whatsoever thou doest, whatsoever thou eatest, whatsoever thou offerest, whatsoever thou givest away and whatsoever of austerities thou dost practise—do that, O son of Kunti, as an offering unto Me. Thus shalt thou be free from the bonds of works which bear good or evil fruits. With thy mind firmly set on the way of renunciation thou shalt become free and come to Me.”

This teaching is anticipated in the Isa-Upanishad which says :—

“All this, whatsoever moves in this world, is pervaded by God. Through such renunciation you may enjoy. Do not covet; for whose indeed is wealth? Always performing works here one should wish to live a hundred years. If you live thus as a man, works will not cling to you—there is no other way.”

XI

With regard to the practical steps to be taken for reaching the goal of life, we must say that they are not as elaborately dealt with in the Upanishads as the goal itself. This is not surprising. For these scriptures were originally meant to be the secret teachings imparted to those who had discharged their duties in life and acquired the necessary moral fitness and who, hankering after light, approached the great seers who in those days lived in their forest abodes. Accordingly they are concerned only with the last stages of man's spiritual journey. They naturally presuppose all the early stages of acquisition of knowledge, cultivation of virtues, development of character and the discharging of the duties of the householder and citizen. Nevertheless there are hints and suggestions throughout the Upanishadic literature with regard to the essential pre-requisites of spiritual illumination. For instance, certain moral qualities are recommended for cultivation on the part of those who seek illumination. The Kenopanishad says that penance, self-control and works form the support of the secret teaching relating to Brahman. In the Chandogya Upanishad the teacher Ghora Angirasa, while comparing the various periods of a man's life with the various parts of a sacrifice, lays down that austerities, alms-giving, uprightness, non-violence and truthfulness correspond to the gifts one makes to the priests. In the Brihadaranyaka Upanishad, according to the teaching of Prajapati, one should practise the virtues indicated by the syllables da-da-da, that is, self-control, charity and compassion. But in the final analysis the stress is always upon renunciation and right knowledge (vairagya and jnana).

Further it is pointed out that sacrifices, rites and ceremonies are not enough. The Mundaka Upanishad compares them to leaky boats quite inadequate for the purpose of crossing over. Even good works, necessary as they are for one's moral development, are not enough for one's liberation. And as for learning, intellectual attainments and the knowledge of scriptures, the Upanishads often give us the stern warning that these might result only in vanity, pride, arrogance and self-satisfaction without bringing any true enlightenment. It is not the knowledge of scriptures but the realisation of the Self that brings liberation to the spirit of man. There is a story in the Chandogya Upanishad in which Narada approaches Sanatkumara and says that he knows all the scriptures and all the sciences and arts of his time, but has no knowledge of the Self. The pointed statement put into his mouth viz Mantravideva asmi na atmavit (I know only the mantras but not the Self) should always ring in the ears of all students and scholars of religion so that they may not lose the true perspective in their quest for knowledge.

The Hindu religious tradition, however, does not belittle the place of the intellect in spiritual development. It never encourages blind faith. Taking its clue from the words of Yajnavalkya in his discourse to his wife Maitreyi in the Brihadaranyaka Upanishad, the Vedanta system recognises three stages in the path of self-realisation—Sravana, Manana and Nididhyasana. Sravana stands for the study of the scriptures under a qualified Guru. Manana means constant reflection upon what has been learnt so that intellectual conviction may be produced in the mind. And, lastly, Nididhyasana implies meditation which helps to bring about a direct realisation of the unity of all things in God. Thus intellectual effort is an indispensable element in the process. But it is only a half-way house. If one stops there and is satisfied with mere intellectual knowledge one misses one's aim and is apt to become a prey to pride and arrogance. Hence the warning so often repeated in the Upanishads that the Self cannot be gained by mere reading of the scriptures, nor by mere logical acumen. Knowledge should lead to experience, intellectual convictions should result in direct perception. That is why meditation is insisted on in the last stage of the spiritual journey. The Upanishads themselves prescribe certain exercises in meditation as preliminary steps. These are called Upasanas in which some objects or symbols are chosen and meditated on as being identical with the Self. To this class belong meditations on the five elements and meditations on Prana and on the mystic syllable Aum. These Upasanas are calculated to prepare the aspirant for the final stage of identifying himself with Brahman the Absolute.

But more helpful than all these rather technical aids and suggestions is the indirect guidance afforded by the beautiful stories of enlightenment found in some of the Upanishads—those of Nachiketas in Katha, of Bhrigu in Taittiriya and of Satyakama, Upakosala, Svetaketu and several others in Chandogya. In all these cases it will be found that enlightenment comes to the seeker either through his own earnest enquiry or his deep meditation under the guidance of a well-known and competent Master who has himself seen the light.

The story of Satyakama's illumination is specially interesting. Though of obscure and probably of illegitimate parentage, he was accepted as a pupil by the sage Gautama Haridrumata on the ground that he had spoken the truth about it. The sage, having initiated him, gave him four hundred lean and weak cows and asked him to take them to the forest and tend them. Satyakama took them to the forest and lived there for a number of years till they grew to a thousand. Then he started to return home to his master with the herd. On his way home, we are told, the truth about Brahman was revealed to him in four stages, first by the bull of the herd, then by his camp fire, then by a swan and then by a diver-bird. At last he reached the house of the master. Gautama looked at him and said, "My boy, you are shining like one who has known Brahman. Who has taught you?" Satyakama replied, "Others than men," and requested the sage to teach him, as he had heard that the knowledge imparted by one's own teacher was the best. The Upanishad concludes the story by saying that Gautama taught Satyakama the very same thing he had already learnt in the forest. This story is very significant, as it is a very good illustration of what is now called Nature mysticism in Western mystical literature. If we remove its symbolism, it means that Satyakama, living alone in the forest grazing his master's cows for a number of years, pondered deeply on all that he saw around him and slowly the truth dawned upon him by degrees. At first he felt the presence of God vaguely in the East and the West, in the North and the South. Then he saw Him in the earth and the sea, in the sky and the firmament. Then he saw Him in the sun and the moon, in the fire and the lightning. And finally he saw Him in the sight and the hearing, in the breath and the mind of man. At first he realised Him as the Resplendent, then as the Endless, then as the Luminous and finally as the Abiding. Above all, he saw and felt the mystic unity of the spirit behind Nature and the spirit of man. That is what those "others than men" had taught him and the same was confirmed by his Guru.

It may be remarked that this aspect of the Upanishadic teaching, bearing on what is now called Nature mysticism, as well as many other aspects, is either lost sight of or is reduced to a cold hardened doctrine in most of our later scriptures, without the warm enthusiasm and the profound mystic insight of the original seers. No wonder, therefore, that the Upanishads, together with the Gita which contains their essence, still remain the fountain head of all streams of religious and philosophic thought in our country.

XII

Thus, (it may be said in conclusion) on all the four fundamental questions which are of vital importance to any religious tradition—namely, those of God and His creation, and of man and his salvation—the teaching of the Upanishadic seers is unique and unsurpassed. Their affirmations regarding (1) the eternal and impersonal Absolute of pure Being, together with its temporal phase of an omnipotent and beneficent Ruler of the universe, (2) their discovery of the law of spiritual progression implicit in all creation and of its possible application to all spheres of life, (3) their insight into man's inner being and (4) their view of his progress in the world through life and death and of his glorious ultimate destiny in an ineffable Reality beyond the illusions of time and space—these at least should be of perennial interest and help to all humanity in its weary march from age to age till the far-off goal is reached.

ईशावास्योपनिषत्

From The Isavasya-Upanishad :

१. ईशावास्यमिदं सर्वं यत्किं च जगत्यां जगत् ।

तेन त्यक्तेन भुञ्जीथा मा गृधः कस्यस्विद्धनम् ॥

1. All this, whatsoever moves in this moving world, is pervaded by God. Through such renunciation you may enjoy. Do not covet ; for whose, indeed, is wealth ?

२. कुर्वन्नेवेह कर्माणि जिजीविषेच्छतं समाः ।

एवं त्वयि नान्यथेतोऽस्ति न कर्म लिप्यते नरे ॥

2. Always performing works here, one should wish to live a hundred years. If you live thus as a man, works will not cling to you—there is no other way.

३. असुर्या नाम ते लोका अन्धेन तमसा वृताः ।

तांस्ते प्रेत्याभिगच्छन्ति ये के चात्महनो जनाः ॥

3. There are the worlds of Asuras enveloped in blinding darkness, and to them go after death those who have destroyed their self.

४. अनेजदेकं मनसो जवीयो नैनद्देवा आप्नुवन्पूर्वमर्षत् ।

तद्वावतोऽन्यानत्येति तिष्ठत्तस्मिन्नपो मासृश्वा दधाति ॥

4. The Self is unmoving, indivisible ; it is swifter than thought. The senses never reach it, as it is ever ahead of them. Though standing still, it outstrips those who run. And in it does the moving spirit support the activities of man.

५. तदेजति तन्नैजति तदूरे तद्वन्तिके ।

तदन्तरस्य सर्वस्य तदु सर्वस्यास्य बाह्यतः ॥

5. It moves and it moves not ; it is far and likewise near. It is inside of all this, and it is outside of all this.

६. यस्तु सर्वाणि भूतानि आत्मन्येवानुपश्यति ।

सर्वभूतेषु चात्मानं ततो न विजिगृप्सते ॥

6. And he who sees all beings in the Self, and the Self in all beings—he never turns away from it.

७. यस्मिन्सर्वाणि भूतानि आत्मैवाभूद्विजानतः ।

तत्र को मोहः कः शोक एकत्वमनुपश्यतः ॥

7. When the Self has become all things to a man who knows, what sorrow, what delusion, can there be to him who has perceived this oneness ?

८. स पर्यगाच्छुक्रमकायमव्रणमस्नाविर & शुद्धमपापविद्धम् ।

कविर्मनीषी स्वयम्भूर्याथातथ्यतोऽर्थान् व्यदधाच्छाश्व-
तोभ्यः समाभ्यः ॥

8. He pervades all things ; He is radiant, incorporeal, invulnerable and sinewless ; He is pure and untouched by evil ; He is the seer, wise, all-pervading and self-existent.—He has disposed all things rightly through endless years.

९. अन्धं तमः प्रविशन्ति ये अविद्यामुपासते ।

ततो भूय इव ते तमो य उ विद्याया & रताः ॥

9. Those who are ever devoted to what is not knowledge enter into blinding darkness, and those who ever delight in knowledge only enter into still greater darkness, as it were.

१०. अन्यदेवाहुर्विद्यया अन्यदाहुरविद्यया ।

इति शुश्रुम धीराणां ये नस्तद्विचक्षिरे ॥

10. The result of knowledge, they say, is one thing; and the result of what is not knowledge is another. Thus have we heard from the wise who taught us this.

११. विद्यां चाविद्यां च यस्तद्वेदोभय * सह ।

अविद्यया मृत्युं तीर्त्वा विद्ययाऽमृतमश्नुते ॥

11. Knowledge and what is not knowledge—he who grasps both of them together overcomes death through what is not knowledge and obtains life eternal through knowledge.

१२. अन्धं तमः प्रविशन्ति येऽसम्भूतिमुपासते ।

ततो भूय इव ते तमो य उ सम्भूत्याऽऽरताः ॥

12. Those who are ever devoted to what is not manifest enter into blinding darkness, and those who ever delight in what is manifest enter into still greater darkness, as it were.

१३. अन्यदेवाहुः सम्भवादन्यदाहुरसम्भवात् ।

इति शुश्रुम धीराणां ये नस्तद्विचक्षिरे ॥

13. What results from the manifest, they say, is one thing, and what results from the unmanifest is another. Thus have we heard from the wise who taught us this.

१४. सम्भूतिं च विनाशं च यस्तद्वेदोभय * सह ।

विनाशेन मृत्युं तीर्त्वा सम्भूत्याऽमृतमश्नुते ॥

14. The manifest and the unmanifest—he who grasps both of them together overcomes death through the unmanifest and obtains life eternal through the manifest.

१५. हिरण्मयेन पात्रेण सत्यस्यापिहितं मुखम् ।
तत्त्वं पूषन्नपावृणु सत्यधर्माय दृष्टये ॥

15. The face of Truth is covered with a golden disc. Remove it, O Pushan, so that I, whose law of being is Truth, may see it.

१६. पूषन्नेकैर्बे यम सूर्यं प्राजापत्य व्यूह रश्मीन्समूह । तेजो
यत्ते कल्याणतमं तत्ते पश्यामि योऽसावसौ पुरुषः

16. O Pushan, the sole Seer, Controller, O Surya, son of Prajapati, remove Thy rays and gather up Thy brilliant light, so that I may behold Thy glorious form. That Person who is within Thee—well, I am He.

CHAPTER II

केनोपनिषत्

From The Kena-Upanishad :

I (Up. 1.)

१. केनेषितं पतति प्रेषितं मनः केन प्राणः प्रथमः प्रैति युक्तः ।
केनेषितां वाचमिमां वदन्ति चक्षुः श्रोत्रं क उ देवो युनक्ति ॥

1. Impelled and directed by whom does the mind light on its objects ? Commanded by whom does the first life-breath move forward ? Prompted by whom do men utter this speech ? And what god directs the eye and the ear ?

२. श्रोत्रस्य श्रोत्रं मनसो मनो यद्वाचो ह वाचं स उ प्राणस्य प्राणः ।
चक्षुषश्चक्षुरतिमुच्य धीराः प्रेत्यास्माल्लोकादमृता भवन्ति ॥

2. It is the ear of the ear, the mind of the mind, the speech of the speech, the breath of the breath and the eye of the eye. Hence the wise, giving up these and departing from this world, become immortal.

३. न तत्र चक्षुर्गच्छति न वाग्गच्छति नो मनः ।
न विद्वो न विजानीमो यथैतदनुशिष्यात् ॥

3. The eye does not go there, speech does not go, nor the mind. We do not know, we do not understand how we can instruct one about it.

४. अन्यदेव तद्विदितादथो अविदितादधि ।
इति शुश्रुम पूर्वेषां ये नस्तद्वाचचक्षिरे ॥

4. It is indeed other than the known, and also above the unknown. Thus have we heard from the ancients who explained it to us.

५. यद्वाचाऽनभ्युदितं येन वागभ्युद्यते ।
तदेव ब्रह्म त्वं विद्धि नेदं यदिदमुपासते ॥

5. That which is not expressed through speech, but that by which speech is expressed—know that as Brahman, and not what people worship here.

६. यन्मनसा न मनुते येनाहुर्मनो मतम् ।
तदेव ब्रह्म त्वं विद्धि नेदं यदिदमुपासते ॥

6. That which is not thought by the mind, but that by which, they say, the mind is made to think—know that as Brahman, and not what people worship here.

७. यच्चक्षुषा न पश्यति येन चक्षुषि पश्यति ।
तदेव ब्रह्म त्वं विद्धि नेदं यदिदमुपासते ॥

7. That which is not seen by the eye, but that by which the eyes are made to see—know that as Brahman, and not what people worship here.

८. यच्छ्रोत्रेण न शृणोति येन श्रोत्रमिदं श्रुतम् ।
तदेव ब्रह्म त्वं विद्धि नेदं यदिदमुपासते ॥

8. That which is not heard by the ear, but that by which the ears are made to hear—know that as Brahman, and not what people worship here.

९. यत्प्राणेन न प्राणिति येन प्राणः प्रणीयते ।
तदेव ब्रह्म त्वं विद्धि नेदं यदिदमुपासते ॥

9. That which is not inhaled by breath, but that by which breath is made to inhale—know that as Brahman, and not what people worship here.

II (Up. 2.)

१. यदि मन्यसे सुवेदेति दध्नमेवापि नूनं त्वं वेत्थ ब्रह्मणो रूपम् ।
यदस्य त्वं यदस्य देवेष्वथ नु मीमांस्यमेव ते मन्ये विदितम् ॥

1. If you think that you know the form of Brahman, well, it is certain that you know it but little, whether it refers to you or to the gods. So then what you think you know has to be further examined.

२. नाहं मन्ये सुवेदेति नो न वेदेति वेद च ।
यो नस्तद्वेद तद्वेद नो न वेदेति वेद च ॥

2. I do not think that I know it well. Nor do I think that I do not know it. Among us he who knows it—knows it. And he too does not know that he does not know.

३. यस्यामतं तस्य मतं मतं यस्य न वेद सः ।
अविज्ञातं विजानतां विज्ञातमविजानताम् ॥

3. He who does not conceive it—to him it is known. He who conceives it—he does not really know. It is not really understood by those who understand it ; it is really understood by those who do not understand it.

४. प्रतिबोधविदितं मतममृतत्वं हि विन्दते ।
आत्मना विन्दते वीर्यं विद्यया विन्दतेऽमृतम् ॥

4. When it is known through every conscious state, it is rightly known, and one attains eternal life thereby. Through his own self he gains strength, and through his knowledge immortality.

५. इह चेदवेदीदथ सत्यमस्ति न चेदिहावेदीन्महती विनष्टिः ।
भूतेषु भूतेषु विचित्य धीराः प्रेत्यास्माल्लोकादमृता भवन्ति ॥

5. If one knows it here—then there is Truth ; if one does not know it, there is great loss. Hence, seeing the Real in all beings, wise men become immortal on departing from this world.

III (Up. 3, 4.)

१. ब्रह्म ह देवेभ्यो विजिग्ये तस्य ह ब्रह्मणो विजये देवा
अमहीयन्त । त ऐक्षन्तास्माकमेवायं विजयोऽस्माकमेवायं
महिमेति ॥

1. It is said that once Brahman won a victory for the gods. And the gods exulted in that victory of Brahman. They thought, "Ours indeed is this victory, ours indeed is this greatness."

२. तद्वैषां विजज्ञौ तेभ्यो ह प्रादुर्बभूव तन्न व्यजानत किमिदं

3. They said to Agni, "O Jatavedas, find out this, what spirit it is." "So be it," said he.

४. तद्भ्यद्रवत्तमभ्यवर्त्कोऽसीत्यग्निर्वा अहमस्मीत्यब्रवीज्जा- तवेदा वा अहमस्मीति ॥

4. He ran towards it. It said, "Who are you ?" "I am Agni," indeed, I am Jatavedas," he replied.

५. तस्मिंस्त्वयि किं वीर्यमित्यपीद * सर्वं दहेयं यदिदं

6. It placed a straw before him and said, "Burn this." He went at it with all speed, but could not burn it. So he went back and said, "I have not been able to find out what this spirit is."

७. अथ वायुमब्रवन्वायवेतद्विजानीहि किमेतद्यक्षमिति तथेति ॥

7. Then they said to Vayu, "O Vayu, find out this, what spirit it is."

"So be it," said he.

८. तदभ्यद्रवत्तमभ्यवदत्कोऽसीति वायुर्वा अहमस्मीत्य-ब्रवीन्मातरिश्वा वा अहमस्मीति ॥

8. He ran towards it. It said to him, "Who are you ?"

"I am Vayu, indeed, I am Matarisvan," he replied.

९. तस्मिंस्त्वयि किं वीर्यमित्यपीद * सर्वमाददीय यदिदं
पृथिव्यामिति ॥

9. "What power is there in you ?"

"I can blow off everything, whatever there is on this earth."

१०. तस्मै तृणं निद्धावेतदादत्स्वेति तदुपप्रेयाय सर्वजवेन
तन्न शशाकादातुं स तत एव निववृते ॥ नैतदशकं

10. It placed before him a straw and said, "Blow it off." Vayu went at it with all speed, but could not blow it off. So he went back and said, "I have not been able to find out what this spirit is."

११. अथेन्द्रमब्रुवन्मघवन्नेतद्विजानीहि किमेतद्यक्षमिति तथेति
तदभ्यद्रवत्तस्मात्तिरोदधे ॥

11. Then they said to Indra, "O Maghavan, find out this—what spirit it is."

"So be it," said he and hastened towards it. But it disappeared from him.

१२. स तस्मिन्नेवाकाशे श्रियमाजगाम बहुशोभमानासुमां
हैमवतीं तां होवाच किमेतद्यक्षमिति ॥

12. And in that very place he came across a woman exceedingly beautiful—Uma, the daughter of Himavat—and said to her, "What is this spirit?"

१३. सा ब्रह्मेति होवाच ब्रह्मणो वा एतद्विजये महीयध्वमिति
ततो हैव विदाञ्चकार ब्रह्मेति ॥

13. She replied, "It is Brahman. And surely it is in the victory of Brahman that you have been exulting." Then only did he understand that it was Brahman.

१४. तस्माद्वा एते देवा अतितरामिवान्यान्देवान्यदग्निर्वायु-
रिन्द्रस्ते होनन्नेदिष्टं पस्पर्शुस्ते होनन्प्रथमो विदाश्चकार
ब्रह्मेति ॥

14. It is on account of this that these gods—Agni, Vayu and Indra—greatly surpass the other gods, for it was they that contacted Brahman closest, it was they that for the first time knew it was Brahman.

IV (Up. 4.)

१. तस्यैष आदेशो यदेतद्विद्युतो व्युद्युतदा ३ इतीन्यमी-
मिषदा ३ इत्यधिदैवतम् ॥

1. About this Brahman there is this illustration—that it is like a flash of lightning or like the winking of the eye. Such is the illustration with reference to the gods.

२. अथाध्यात्मं यदेतद्वच्छतीव च मनोऽनेन चैतदुपस्मरत्य-
भीक्ष्णं सङ्कल्पः ॥

2. Then there is this illustration with reference to the individual, that it is like the mind going towards it—the mind by which one remembers and likewise wills.

३. तद्व तद्वनं नाम तद्वनमित्युपासितव्यं स य एत-
देवं वेदाभि हैनं सर्वाणि भूतानि संवाञ्छन्ति ॥

3. It is the inmost self of all and hence indeed the dearest to all. And it has to be meditated upon as such. All beings seek him who meditates thus.

४. उपनिषदं भो ब्रह्मीयुक्ता त उपनिषद्ब्राह्मी वाव त
उपनिषदमब्रूमेति ॥

4. "Sir, give me the secret teaching."

"It is the secret teaching that has been given to thee. We have taught thee the secret relating to Brahman.

५. तस्यै तपो दमः कर्मेति प्रतिष्ठा वेदाः सर्वाङ्गाणि सत्यमायतनम् ॥

5. "Penance, self-control and works are its support. The Vedas are all its organs. And truth is its abode."

६. यो वा एतामेवं वेदापहृत्य पाप्मानमन्ते स्वर्गे लोके ज्येये
प्रतितिष्ठति प्रतितिष्ठति ॥

6. Whoever knows this—he indeed overcomes sin and in the end is firmly established in the supreme world of heaven—yea, he is firmly established.

कठोपनिषत्

From The Katha-Upanishad :

I (Up. I. 1.)

१. ओं उशन्ह वै वाजश्रवसः सर्ववेदसं ददौ ।
तस्य ह नचिकेता नाम पुत्र आस ॥

1. Desiring the fruits of a sacrifice, Vajasravasa, it is said, gave away all his wealth. He had a son, Nachiketas by name.

२. त * ह कुमार * सन्तं दक्षिणासु नीयमानासु
श्रद्धाविवेश सोऽमन्यत ॥

2. As the gifts were being distributed, faith entered into Nachiketas, though he was a boy, and he thought :—

३. पीतोदका जग्धतृणा दुग्धदोहा निरिन्द्रियाः ।
अनन्दा नाम ते लोकास्तान्स गच्छति ता ददत् ॥

3. These cows that have drunk their last water, eaten their last grass, yielded their last milk and worn out their organs—miserable, surely, are the worlds to which he will go who gives away such things.

४. स होवाच पितरं तात कस्मै मां दास्यसीति ।
द्वितीयं तृतीयं त * होवाच मृत्यवे त्वा ददमीति ॥

He said to his father, "To whom, O Sire, will you give me?"—a second time, a third time; and he replied, "To Death will I give you."

५. बहूनामेमि प्रथमो बहूनामेमि मध्यमः ।

किं ५ स्विद्यमस्य कर्तव्यं यन्मयाद्य करिष्यति ॥

5. (Nachiketas)—“Of many I go as the first, and of many I go as the midmost. What duty towards Yama will he accomplish today through me ?

६. अनुपश्य यथा पूर्वे प्रतिपश्य तथाऽपरे ।

सस्यमिव मर्यः पच्यते अस्यमिवाजायते पुनः ॥

6. “Look back to how it was with those who went before, look forward to how it will be with those who come hereafter. A mortal ripens like corn, like corn he springs up again.”

७. वैश्वानरः प्रविशति अतिथिर्ब्राह्मणो गृहान् ।

तस्यैता ५ शान्तिं कुर्वन्ति हर वैवस्वतोदकम् ॥

7. (A voice in Yama's abode)—“Like fire does a Brahmin guest enter into houses, and they make him this peace-offering ; bring water, O son of Vivaswat.

८. आशाप्रतीक्षे सङ्गत ५ सूनृतां चेष्टापूर्ते पुत्रपशू-

५ श्व सर्वान् । एतत् वृङ्क्षते पुरुषस्याल्पमेधसो

यस्यानश्नन्वसति ब्राह्मणो गृहे ॥

8. “Hope and expectation, good company and pleasant discourse, the fruits of sacrifices and good deeds, sons and cattle—all are taken away from that person of little understanding in whose house a Brahmin remains without food.”

९. तिस्रो रात्रीर्यद्वात्सीर्गृहे मेऽनश्नन्ब्रह्मन्नतिथिर्नमस्यः ।
नमस्तेऽस्तु ब्रह्मन्स्वस्ति मेऽस्तु तस्मात्प्रति त्रीन्वरा-
न्वृणीष्व ॥

9. (Yama).—"O Brahmin, since you, a venerable guest, have stayed in my house for three nights without food I make obeisance to you, and may it be well with me ! Therefore, choose now three boons in return."

१०. शान्तसंकल्पः सुमना यथा स्याद्वीतमन्युर्गौतमो मामि-
मृत्यो । त्वत्प्रसृष्टं माभिवदेत्प्रतीत एतत्त्रयाणां प्रथमं
वरं वृणे ॥

10. (N.).—"That Gautama (my father) may be pacified, that he may be kind and free from anger towards me and that he may recognise me and greet me when I shall have been set free by you, O Death—this is the first of the boons I choose."

११. यथा पुरस्ताद्भविता प्रतीत आहालकिराखणिर्मत्प्रसृष्टः ।
सुखं * रात्रीःशयिता वीतमन्युस्त्वां ददृशिवान्मृत्युमुखा-
त्प्रमुक्तम् ॥

11. (Y.).—"Through my favour Auddalaki Aruni (your father) will recognise you and be again towards you as he was before. And, seeing you released from the jaws of death, he shall be free from anger, and sleep peacefully through the night."

१२. स्वर्गे लोके न भयं किञ्चनास्ति न तत्र त्वं न जरया

स्वर्गलोके ॥

12. (N.).—"In the world of heaven there is no fear whatever, you are not there and no one is afraid of old age. Overcoming both hunger and thirst, and leaving sorrow behind, one rejoices in the world of heaven."

१३. स त्वमग्निं ५ स्वर्गमध्येषि मृत्यो प्रब्रूहि त ५ श्रद्धधानाय
मह्यम् । स्वर्गलोका अमृतत्वं भजन्त एतत् द्वितीयेन वृणे
चरेण ॥

13. "You know, O Death, that fire-sacrifice which leads one to heaven. Explain it to me—for I am full of faith—how the dwellers in heaven gain their immortality. This I choose as my second boon."

१४. प्र ते ब्रवीमि तदु मे निबोध स्वर्गमग्निं नचिकेतः प्रजानन् ।
अनन्तलोकाप्तिमथो प्रतिष्ठां विद्धि त्वमेतं निहितं गुहायाम् ॥

14. (Y.)—"O Nachiketas. I know well that fire which leads one to heaven. I will declare it to you. Learn it of me and know that it is the means of gaining the endless world, that it is its foundation and that it abides in the cave of the heart."

१५. लोकादिमग्निं तमुवाच तस्मै या इष्टका यावतीर्या यथा वा
स चापि प्रत्यवदद्यथोक्तमथास्य मृत्युः पुनरवाह तुष्टः

15. He then described to him that fire, which is the first of the worlds, and also what kind of bricks are to be used, how many of them and in what manner. And he (Nachiketas) repeated all, as it had been told. Then, being pleased with him, Death spoke again.

१६. तमब्रवीत्प्रीयमाणो महात्मा वरं तवेहाद्य ददामि भूयः ।
तवैव ज्ञात्वा भवितायमग्निः सृङ्कां चेमामनेकरूपां गृहाण ॥

16. That great one, being delighted, said to him :—

"I will give you here today another boon—by your name will this fire be known hereafter. Take also this necklace of many colours.

१७. एषतेऽग्निर्नचिकेतः स्वर्ग्यौ यमवृणीथा द्वितीयेन वरेण । एतमग्निं तवैव प्रवक्ष्यन्ति जनासस्तृतीयं वरं नचिकेतो वृणीष्व ॥

17. "This is your fire-sacrifice, O Nachiketas, which leads one to heaven and which you have chosen for your second boon. People will call this by your name only. Choose now, O Nachiketas, your third boon."

१८. येयं प्रेते विचिकित्सा मनुष्येऽस्तीत्येके नायमस्तीति चैके । एतद्विद्यामनुशिष्टस्त्वयाहं वराणामेष वरस्तृतीयः ॥

18. (N.) "When a man passes away there is this doubt, some hold that he exists and some that he does not. This I should like to know, instructed by you. This is the third of the boons."

१९. देवैरत्रापि विचिकित्सितं पुरा न हि सुविज्ञेयमणुरेष धर्मः । अन्यं वरं नचिकेतो वृणीष्व मा मोपरोत्सीरिति मां सृजैनम् ॥

19. (Y.)—"Even the gods of old had doubts on this. It is not easy to understand. So subtle is the truth about it. Choose another boon, O Nachiketas. Do not press me. Release me from this."

२०. देवैरत्रापि विचिकित्सितं किल त्वं च मृत्यो यन्न सुज्ञेय-
मात्थ । वक्ता चास्य त्वाद्गन्धो न लभ्यो नान्यो वरस्तुह्य
एतस्य कश्चित् ॥

20. (N.)—"Indeed even the gods had doubts on this, and, O Death, you say it is not easy to understand. But no other teacher of it like you can be got, and no other boon is equal to this."

२१. शतायुषः पुत्रपौत्रान्वृणीष्व बहून्पशून्हस्तिहिरण्यमश्वान् ।
भूमेर्महदायतनं वृणीष्व स्वयं च जीव शरदो यावदिच्छसि॥

21. (Y.)—"Choose sons and grandsons, who shall live a hundred years, herds of cattle, elephants, gold and horses ; choose the wide expanse of the earth and live for as many years as you like.

२२. एतत्तुभ्यं यदि मन्यसे वरं वृणीष्व वित्तं चिरजीविकां च ।
महाभूमौ नचिकेतस्त्वमोधि कामानां त्वा कामभाजं

मानुप्राक्षीः ॥

23. "Whatever desires are difficult to attain in this world of men, ask freely for all of them. Here are these fair maidens with their chariots and musical instruments. Such are not to be obtained by men. Be served by these whom I give to you. But, O Nachiketas, do not question me about death."

२४. देवोभावा मर्त्यस्य यदन्तकैतत्सर्वेन्द्रियाणां जरयन्ति तेजः ।
अपि सर्वं जीवितमल्पमेव तवैव बाह्यास्तव नृत्तगीते ॥

24. (N.)—"Transient are all these, O Death, and they wear out the vigour of all the senses. Moreover all life is short. Keep your horses to yourself, keep your dance and your song.

२५. न वित्तेन तर्पणीयो मनुष्यो लप्स्यामहे वित्तमद्राक्ष्म
चेत्त्वा । जीविष्यामो यावदीशिष्यासि त्वं वरस्तु मे वरणीयः
स एव ॥

25. "No man can be satisfied with wealth. We shall enjoy wealth when we see you ! We shall live as long as you are in power ! That alone is the boon to be chosen by me.

२६. अजीर्यताममृतानामुपेत्य जीर्यन्मर्त्यः क्वथस्थः प्रजानन् ।
अभिध्यायन्वर्णरतिप्रमोदानतिदीर्घे जीविते को रमेत ॥

26. "What mortal decaying here below and coming to know of the undecaying nature of the immortals would ever delight in too long a life, thinking of the pleasures which arise from beauty and love ?

२७. यस्मान्निदं विचिकित्सन्ति मृत्यो यत्साम्पराये महति ब्रूहि

वृणीते ॥

27. "O Death, tell us that about which people have doubts, what there is in that great hereafter. Nachiketas does not choose another boon but that which penetrates this mystery."

II (Up. I. 2)

१. अन्यं छेयोऽन्यदुतैव प्रेयस्ते उभे नानार्थे पुरुषं सिनीतः

1. (Y.)—"The good is one thing, the pleasant is another. These two, having different purposes, bind a man. Of these two, it is well for him who takes hold of the good ; he who chooses the pleasant misses his end.

२. श्रेयश्च प्रेयश्च मनुष्यमेतस्तौ सम्परीत्य विविनक्ति धीरः ।
श्रेयो हि धीरोऽभिप्रेयसो वृणीते प्रेयो मन्दो योगक्षेमात्
वृणीते ॥

2. "The good and the pleasant approach a man ; the wise man considers and distinguishes the two. Wisely does he prefer the good to the pleasant, but a fool chooses the pleasant for its worldly good.

३. स त्वं प्रियान्प्रियरूपाश्च कामानभिध्यायन्नाचिकेतोऽ-
त्यस्त्राक्षीः । नैता *सृङ्गां वित्तमयीमवाप्तो यस्यां मज्जन्ति

3. "You, O Nachiketas, have, after examining, rejected the pleasures that are delightful or seem to be so. You have not taken the road that leads to wealth in which many men perish.

४. दूरमेते विपरीते विषूची अविद्या या च विद्येति ज्ञाता ।
विद्याभीप्सिनं नचिकेतसं मन्ये न त्वा कामा बहवो
लोलुपन्तः ॥

4. "Wide apart and leading to different ends are these which are known as ignorance and knowledge. I believe Nachiketas to be one who desires knowledge, for even many pleasures have not tempted you.

५. अविद्यायामन्तरे वर्तमानाः स्वयं धीराः पण्डितं मन्यमानाः ।
दन्द्रस्यमाणाः परियन्ति मूढा अन्धेनैव नीयमाना यथान्धाः ॥

5. "Fools steeped in ignorance, wise in their own conceit and regarding themselves as learned, go about staggering like blind men led by the blind.

६. न साम्यरायः प्रतिभाति बालं प्रमाद्यन्तं वित्तमोहेन मूढम् ।
अयं लोको नास्ति पर इति मानी पुनः पुनर्वशमापद्यते मे ॥

6. "The way to the other world does not shine for the ignorant man who blunders, ever deluded by the glamour of wealth. 'This is the world, and there is no other,' he thinks and thus he falls again and again under my sway.

७. श्रवणायापि बहुभिर्यो न लभ्यः शृण्वन्तोऽपि बहवो यं
न विदुः । आश्रयो वक्ता कुशलोऽस्य लब्धाऽऽश्रयो ज्ञाता
कुशलानुशिष्टः ॥

7. "He who cannot be heard of by many and whom many, even hearing, do not know—wonderful is the man who can teach Him, and clever is the man who can find Him. And wonderful indeed is the man who can know Him, even when taught by an expert.

८. न नरेणावरेण प्रोक्त एष सुविज्ञेयो बहुधा चिन्त्यमानः ।
अनन्यप्रोक्ते गतिरत्र नास्ति अणीयान्धतर्क्यमणु- प्रमाणात् ॥

8. "When taught by an inferior man, it (the self) is not easily known, even though often meditated upon. Unless it is taught by a different man, there is no way to it, for it is inconceivable, being subtler than the subtle.

९. नैषा तर्केण मतिरापनेया प्रोक्तान्येनैव सुज्ञानाय प्रेष्ठ । यां

9. "Not by argument is this knowledge obtained. But, O dearest, when taught by another, it is easy to understand. You have obtained it now, holding fast to truth. May we always have an enquirer like you, O Nachiketas !"

III (Up. I. 2, 3.)

१. अन्यत्र धर्मादन्यत्राधर्मादन्यत्रास्मात्कृताकृतात् ।

अन्यत्र भूताच्च भव्याच्च यत्पश्यसि तद्वद ॥

1) (N.)—"Tell me that which you see beyond right and wrong, beyond effect and cause and beyond past and future."

२. सर्वे वेदा यत्पदमामनन्ति तपांसि सर्वाणि च यद्वदन्ति ।
यदिच्छन्तो ब्रह्मचर्यं चरन्ति तत्र पदं सङ्गृहेण ब्रवी-

2. (Y.)—"That word which all the Vedas declare, which all austerities proclaim, and which men desire when they lead the life of religious students—that word, I tell you briefly. It is Aum.

३. एतद्वयेवाक्षरं ब्रह्म एतद्वयेवाक्षरं परम् ।

एतद्वयेवाक्षरं ज्ञात्वा यो यदिच्छति तस्य तत् ॥

3. "This syllable is indeed Brahman ; this syllable is indeed the highest ; he who knows this syllable—whatever he desires will be his.

४. एतदालम्बनं श्रेष्ठमेतदालम्बनं परम् ।

एतदालम्बनं ज्ञात्वा ब्रह्मलोके महीयते ॥

4. "This is the best support ; this is the highest support ; he who knows this support becomes great in the world of Brahma.

५. न जायते म्रियते वा विपश्चिन्नायं कुतश्चिन्न बभूव कश्चित् ।
अजो नित्यः शाश्वतोऽयं पुराणो न हन्यते हन्यमाने

5. "The knowing Self is never born, nor does it die. It sprang from nothing, and nothing sprang from it. It is unborn, eternal, everlasting and primeval. It is not slain when the body is slain,

६. हन्ताच्चेन्मन्यते हन्तु ५ हतश्चेन्मन्यते हतम् ।

उभौ न विजानीतो नाय ५ हन्ति न हन्यते ॥

6. "If the slayer thinks that he slays or if the slain thinks that he is slain, both of them do not understand. He neither slays nor is he slain.

७. अणोरणीयान्महतो महीयानात्मास्य जन्तोर्निहितो गुहायाम्
तमक्रतुः पश्यति वीतशोको धातुप्रसादान्महिमानमात्मनः॥

7. "Smaller than the small and greater than the great, the Self is hidden in the heart of every creature. A man who is free from desires beholds the glory of that Self through the tranquillity of his mind and senses and becomes freed from sorrow.

८. आसीनो दूरं व्रजति शयानो याति सर्वतः ।

कस्तं मदामदं देवं मदन्यो ज्ञातुमर्हति ॥

8. "Though sitting still He travels far, though lying down He goes everywhere. Who, except myself, is able to know that God who is both joyful and joyless ?

९. अशरीर ५ शरीरेष्वनवस्थेष्ववस्थितम् ।

महान्तं विभुमात्मानं मत्वा धीरो न शोचति ॥

9. "The wise man who knows the Self as bodiless within the bodies, as the unchanging among changing things, as great and all-pervading, will never grieve.

१०. नायमात्मा प्रवचनेन लभ्यो न मेधया न बहुना श्रुतेन ।

यमेवैष वृणुते तेन लभ्यस्तस्यैष आत्मा विवृणुते तनू ५
स्वाम् ॥

10. "This Self cannot be gained by the Veda, nor by intellectual power, nor by much learning. He is to be gained only by the one whom He chooses. To such a one the Self reveals His own nature.

११. नाविरतो दुश्चरितान्नाशान्तो नासमाहितः ।
नाशान्तमानसो वापि प्रज्ञानेनैनामाप्नुयात् ॥

11. "The man who has not turned away from his evil ways, who is not tranquil, who has no concentration of mind and whose mind is not at rest—he can never reach this Self through mere knowledge.

१२. यस्य ब्रह्म च क्षत्रं च उभे भवत ओदनः ।
मृत्युर्यस्योपसेचनं क इत्था वेद यन्न सः ॥

12. "Who knows where He is—He to whom both Brahmins and Kshatriyas are as food, and death itself is as a condiment ?

१३. आत्मानं रथिनं विद्धि शरीरं रथमेव तु ।
बुद्धिं तु सारथिं विद्धि मनः प्रग्रहमेव च ॥

13. "Know that the Self is like the lord of the chariot, and the body is his chariot. Know that the intellect is the charioteer and the mind the reins.

१४. इन्द्रियाणि हयान्याहुर्विषया ऽ स्तेषु गोचरान् ।
आत्मेन्द्रियमनोयुक्तं भोक्तेत्याहुर्मनीषिणः ॥

14. "The senses, they say, are the horses, the objects of the senses their roads. When the Self is in union with the body, the senses and the mind, the wise call Him the enjoyer.

१५. यस्त्वविज्ञान्भवत्ययुक्तेन मनसा सदा ।
तस्येन्द्रियाण्यवक्ष्यानि दुष्टाश्वा इव सारथेः ॥

15. "He who has no understanding and whose mind is ever unrestrained—his senses are out of control as vicious horses for a charioteer.

१६. यस्तु विज्ञानवान्भवति युक्तेन मनसा सदा ।
तस्येन्द्रियाणि वश्यानि सदश्वा इव सारथेः ॥

16. "But he who has understanding and whose mind is always restrained—his senses are under control as good horses for a charioteer.

१७. यस्त्वविज्ञान्भवत्यमनस्कः सदाऽशुचिः ।
न स तत्पदमाप्नोति संसारं चाधिगच्छति ॥

17. "He who has no understanding, who has no control over his mind and who is ever impure—he does not reach that place, but comes back to the round of births.

१८. यस्तु विज्ञानवान्भवति समनस्कः सदा शुचिः ।
स तु तत्पदमाप्नोति यस्माद्भूयो न जायते ॥

18. "He, however, who has understanding, who has control over his mind and who is ever pure—he reaches that place from which he is not born again.

१९. विज्ञानसारथिर्यस्तु मनः प्रग्रहवान्नरः ।
सोऽध्वनः पारमाप्नोति तद्विष्णोः परमं पदम् ॥

19. "The man whose charioteer is his understanding, who holds the reins of his mind—he reaches the end of his journey, the supreme abode of Vishnu.

२०. इन्द्रियेभ्यः परा ह्यर्था अर्थेभ्यश्च परं मनः ।
मनसस्तु परा बुद्धिर्बुद्धेरात्मा महान्परः ॥

20. "Beyond the senses there are the essences, beyond the essences there is the mind, beyond the mind there is the understanding, and beyond the understanding there is the great soul.

२१. महतः परमव्यक्तमव्यक्तात्पुरुषः परः ।

पुरुषान्न परं किञ्चित्सा काष्ठा सा परा गतिः ॥

21. "Beyond the great soul there is the unmanifest, and beyond the unmanifest there is the spirit. Beyond the spirit there is nothing—that is the end, that is the highest reach.

२२. एष सर्वेषु भूतेषु गूढोऽत्मा न प्रकाशते ।

दृश्यते त्वग्रया बुद्ध्या सूक्ष्मया सूक्ष्मदार्ढ्यभिः ॥

22. "That Self, hidden in all beings, does not shine forth, but it is seen by subtle seers through their sharp and subtle intellect.

२३. यच्छेद्धाङ्गनसी प्राञ्चस्तद्यच्छेज्ज्ञान आत्मनि ।

ज्ञानमात्मनि महति नियच्छेत्तद्यच्छेच्छान्त आत्मनि ॥

23. "A wise man should draw his speech into his mind, his mind into his understanding, his understanding into the great soul and the great soul into the silent Self.

२४. उत्तिष्ठत जाग्रत प्राप्य वरान्निबोधत ।

क्षुरस्य धारा निशिता दुरत्यया दुर्गे पथस्तत्कवयो

वदन्ति ॥

24. "Arise, awake, obtain the best teachers and learn of them. Sharp as the edge of a razor, hard to cross and difficult, is that path—so the sages say.

२५. अशब्दमस्पर्शमरूपमव्ययं तथाऽरसं नित्यमगन्धवच्च यत्

अनाद्यनन्तं महतः परं ध्रुवं निचाय्य तं मृत्युमुखात्प्र-मुच्यते ॥

25. "That which is without sound, without touch, without form, without decay and likewise without taste, without change, without smell, without beginning, without end, beyond the great, and ever-abiding—by realising it one is freed from the jaws of death."

२६. नाचिकेतमुपाख्यानं मृत्युप्रोक्तं सनातनम् ।
उत्तवा श्रुत्वा च मेधावी ब्रह्मलोके महीयते ॥

26. This ancient story of Nachiketas told by Death—by repeating it or listening to it a wise man grows great in the world of Brahma.

२७. य इमं परमं गुह्यं श्रावेयत् ब्रह्मसंसदि ।
प्रयतः श्राद्धकाले वा तदानन्त्याय कल्पते तदानन्त्याय
कल्पत इति ॥

27. Whoever with zeal causes to be recited, before an assembly of Brahmins or at the time of Sraddha ceremonies, this supreme secret—it will secure for him immortality—yea, it will secure immortality.

IV (Up. II. 1)

१. पराञ्चि खानि व्यतृणत्स्वयम्भूस्तस्मात्पराङ् पश्यति
नान्तरात्मन् । कश्चिद्धीरः प्रत्यगात्मानमैक्षदावृत्त-
चक्षुरमृतत्वमिच्छन् ॥

1. The Self-existent pierced the senses outward, and so one looks outward and not within oneself. Some wise man, however, seeking immortality, and turning his eyes inward, sees the inner Self.

२. पराचः कामाननुयन्ति बालास्ते मृत्योर्यन्ति विततस्य
पाशम् । अथ धीरा अमृतत्वं विदित्वा ध्रुवमध्रुवे-
ष्विह न प्रार्थयन्ते ॥

2. The ignorant pursue outward pleasures, they walk into the wide-spread net of death. The wise, however, recognising eternal life, do not seek the constant among inconstant things.

३. येन रूपं रसं गन्धं शब्दान्स्पर्शांश्च मैथुनान् ।
एतेनैव विजानाति किमत्र परिशिष्यते ॥ एतद्वैतत् ॥

3. That by which one perceives form, taste, smell, sounds and touches of love—by that alone one has knowledge. What is there that remains unknown to it ? This, verily, is that.

४. स्वप्नान्तं जागरितान्तं चोभौ येनानुपश्यति ।
महान्तं विभुमात्मानं मत्वा धीरो न शोचति ॥

4. That by which one perceives things both in dreams and in the waking state—having known that as the great omnipresent Self, the wise man does not grieve.

५. य इमं मध्वदं वेद आत्मानं जीवमन्तिकात् ।
ईशानं भूतभव्यस्य न ततो विजुगुप्सते ॥ एतद्वैतत् ॥

5. He who knows this living spirit, which is close at hand and which experiences the objects, as the lord of the past and the future—he fears no more. This, verily, is that.

६. यतश्चोदेति सूर्योऽस्तं यत्र च गच्छति ।
तं देवाः सर्वेऽर्पितास्तद्गु नात्येति कश्चन ॥ एतद्वैतत् ॥

6. That from which the sun rises and in which it goes to set—in it are contained all the gods, and no one ever goes beyond that. This, verily, is that.

७. यदेवेह तदमुत्र यदमुत्र तदन्विह ।
मृत्योः स मृत्युमाप्नोति य इह नानेव पश्यति ॥

7. Whatever is here the same is there ; whatever is there the same is here. He goes from death to death who sees only multiplicity here.

८. मनसैवेदमवाप्तव्यं नेह नानास्ति किञ्चन ।

मृत्योः स मृत्युमाप्नोति य इह नानेव पश्यति ॥

8. By mind alone is this to be realised. There is no multiplicity here whatsoever. He goes from death to death who sees only multiplicity here.

९. अङ्गुष्ठमात्रः पुरुषो मध्य आत्मनि तिष्ठति ।

ईशानं भूतभव्यस्य न ततो विजुगुप्सते ॥ एतद्वैतत् ॥

9. The person of the size of a thumb resides in the middle of the body. After knowing him as the Lord of the past and the future one fears no more. This, verily, is that.

१०. अङ्गुष्ठमात्रः पुरुषो ज्योतिरिवाधूमकः ।

ईशानो भूतभव्यस्य स एवाद्य स उ इवः ॥ एतद्वैतत् ॥

10. That person of the size of a thumb is like a flame without smoke. He is the Lord of the past and the future. He is the same today and tomorrow. This, verily, is that.

११. यथोदकं दुर्गे वृष्टं पर्वतेषु विधावति ।

एवं धर्मान्पृथक्पृथक्स्तानेवानुविधावति ॥

11. As rain water that has fallen on a mountain-ridge runs down among the hills on all sides, so does a man who sees things as separate ones run after them on all sides.

१२. यथोदकं शुद्धे शुद्धमासिक्तं तादृगेव भवति ।

एवं मुनेर्विजानत आत्मा भवति गौतम ॥

12. As pure water poured into pure water becomes the very same, so, O Gautama, does the self of the seer who knows.

५. न प्राणेन नापानेन मर्त्यो जीवति कश्चन ।
इतरेण तु जीवन्ति यस्मिन्नेतावुपाश्रितौ ॥

5. It is not by any upward breath or downward breath that a mortal lives ; but it is by some other, on which these two depend, that men live.

६. हन्त त इदं प्रवक्ष्यामि गुह्यं ब्रह्म सनातनम् ।
यथा च मरणं प्राप्य आत्मा भवति गौतम ॥

6. Well, I will explain to you now, O Gautama, the mystery of Brahman, the eternal, and also what happens to the soul after meeting death.

७. योनिमन्ये प्रपद्यन्ते शरीरत्वाय देहिनः ।
स्थाणुमन्येऽनुसंयन्ति यथाकर्म यथाश्रुतम् ॥

7. Some souls enter into a womb for embodiment, others go into stationary things, according to their deeds and according to their thoughts.

८. स एष सुतेषु जागर्ति कामं कामं पुरुषो निर्ममाणः ।
तदेव शुक्रं तद्ब्रह्म तदेवामृतमुच्यते ॥
तस्मिंल्लोकाः श्रिताः सर्वे तदु नात्येति कश्चन ॥ एतद्वैतत् ॥

8. That spirit which is awake in those that sleep, shaping desire after desire—that is indeed the Pure, that is Brahman, that indeed is called the Immortal. In it are contained all the worlds, and no one ever goes beyond it. This, verily, is that.

VI (Up. II. 2)

१. अग्निर्यथैको भुवनं प्रविष्टो रूपं रूपं प्रतिरूपो बभूव ।

एकस्तथा सर्वभूतान्तरात्मा रूपं रूपं प्रतिरूपो बहिश्च ॥

1. As fire, which is one, entering the world assumes different forms corresponding to different objects, so does the one Self within all beings assume different forms corresponding to different beings and also exists outside them all.

२. वायुर्यथैको भुवनं प्रविष्टो रूपं रूपं प्रतिरूपो बभूव ।
एकस्तथा सर्वभूतान्तरात्मा रूपं रूपं प्रतिरूपो बहिश्च ॥

2. As air, which is one, entering the world, assumes different forms corresponding to different objects, so does the one Self within all beings assume different forms corresponding to different beings and also exists outside them all.

३. सूर्यो यथा सर्वलोकस्य चक्षुर्न लिप्यते चाक्षुर्बैर्बाह्यदोषैः ।
एकस्तथा सर्वभूतान्तरात्मा न लिप्यते लोकदुःखेन बाह्यः ॥

3. As the sun, the eye of the whole world, is not defiled by the external impurities seen by our eyes, so is the one Self within all beings not defiled by the misery of the world, being himself without.

४. एको वशी सर्व भूतान्तरात्मा एकं रूपं बहुधा यः करोति ।
तमात्मस्थं येऽनुपश्यन्ति धीरास्तेषां सुखं शाश्वतं नेतरेषाम् ॥

4. The one Ruler, the Self within all beings who makes His one form manifold—the wise who perceive Him within themselves, to them belongs eternal happiness, not to others.

५. नित्योऽनित्यानां चेतनश्चेतनानामेको बहूनां यो विदधाति
कामान् । तमात्मस्थं येऽनुपश्यन्ति धीरास्तेषां
शान्तिः शाश्वती नेतरेषाम् ॥

5. The Eternal among the transient, the consciousness of conscious beings, the One who fulfils the desires of many—the wise who perceive Him within themselves, to them belongs eternal peace, not to others.

६. तदेतदिति मन्यन्तेऽनिर्देश्यं परमं सुखम् ।

कथं नु तद्विजानीयां किमु भाति विभाति वा ॥

6. "That is it"—it is only thus that they recognise the indescribable highest happiness. How then can I know of it, whether it shines of itself or shines in reflection ?

७. न तत्र सूर्यो भाति न चन्द्रतारकं नेमा विद्युतो भान्ति

कुतोऽयमग्निः । तमेव भान्तमनुभाति सर्वं तस्य

भासा सर्वमिदं विभाति ॥

7. The sun does not shine there, nor the moon and the stars, nor these lightnings. How then could this fire ? When He shines, everything shines after Him ; by His light all this is lighted.

VII (Up. II. 3)

१. ऊर्ध्वमूलोऽवाक्शाख एषोऽश्वत्थः सनातनः ।

तदेव शुक्रं तद्ब्रह्म तदेवामृतमुच्यते ॥

तस्मिँल्लोकाः श्रिताः सर्वे तदु नात्येति कश्चन ॥

एतद्वै तत् ॥

1. With its root above and its branches below stands this ancient world-tree. That (the root) is indeed the Pure, that is Brahman, that indeed is called the Immortal. All the worlds are contained in it, and no one ever goes beyond it. This, verily, is that.

२. यदिदं किञ्च जगत्सर्वं प्राण एजति निःसृतम् ।

महद्भयं वज्रमुद्यतं य एतद्विदुरमृतास्ते भवन्ति ॥

2. The whole world, whatever there is, springs from and moves in Life (Brahman) which is a great terror, an upraised thunderbolt. Those who know it become immortal.

३. भयादस्याग्निस्तपति भयात्तपति सूर्यः ।

भयादिन्द्रश्च वायुश्च मृत्युर्धावति पञ्चमः ॥

3. Through fear of Him fire burns, through fear of Him the sun blazes, through fear of Him Indra, Vayu and also Yama, as the fifth, speed on their way.

४. इह चेदशकद्बोद्धुं प्राक्शरीरस्य विस्मयः ।

ततः सर्गेषु लोकेषु शरीरत्वाय कल्पते ॥

4. If a man is not able to know Him before his body falls away, he becomes liable to be embodied again in the created worlds.

५. न सन्दृशे रूपमस्य न चक्षुषा पश्यति कश्चनैनम् ।

हृदा मनीषा मनसाभिकृप्तो य एतद्विदुरमृतास्ते भवन्ति ॥

5. His form is not to be seen, no one beholds Him with the eye. He is to be apprehended by the heart, by thought, by mind. Those who know Him thus become immortal.

६. यदा पञ्चावतिष्ठन्ते ज्ञानानि मनसा सह ।

बुद्धिश्च न विचेष्टति तामाहुः परमां गतिम् ॥

6. When the five instruments of knowledge stand still, together with the mind, and the intellect itself does not stir—that, they say, is the highest state.

७. तां योगमिति मन्यन्ते स्थिरामिन्द्रियधारणाम् ।

अप्रमत्तस्तदा भवति योगो हि प्रभवाप्ययौ ॥

7. This they consider to be Yoga, this steady control of the senses. Then does one become watchful, for Yoga comes and goes.

VIII (Up. II. 3)

१. नैव वाचा न मनसा प्राप्तुं शक्यो न चक्षुषा ।

अस्तीति ब्रुवतोऽन्यत्र कथं तदुपलभ्यते ॥

1. Not by speech, not by mind, not by sight can He be reached. How can He be apprehended unless one says to oneself that He is ?

२. अस्तीत्येवोपलभ्यस्तत्त्वभावेन चोभयोः ।

अस्तीत्येवोपलब्धस्य तत्त्वभावः प्रसीदति ॥

2. It is by saying "He is" that He is to be apprehended together with His twofold nature. His real nature reveals itself to those who apprehend that He is.

३. यदा सर्वे प्रमुच्यन्ते कामा येऽस्य हृदि श्रिताः ।

अथ मर्त्योऽमृतो भवत्यत्र ब्रह्म समश्नुते ॥

3. When all the desires that dwell in the heart are cast away—then does a mortal become immortal and attain to Brahman even here.

४. यदा सर्वे प्रभिद्यन्ते हृदयस्येह ग्रन्थयः ।

अथ मर्त्योऽमृतो भवत्येतावदनुशासनम् ॥

4. When all the ties of the heart are cut asunder here—then does a mortal become immortal. Thus far is the teaching.

५. अङ्गुष्ठमात्रः पुरुषोऽन्तरात्मा सदा जनानां हृदये सन्निविष्टः ।

तं स्वाच्छरीरात्प्रवृहेन्मुञ्जादिवेधीकां धैर्येण ॥

तं विद्याच्छुक्रममृतं तं विद्याच्छुक्रममृतमिति ॥

5. The Person of the size of a thumb, the inner Self, abides always in the hearts of men. One should draw Him out from the body with firmness as one draws the pith from a reed. One should know Him as the pure, the immortal, yea, one should know Him as the pure, the immortal.

६. मृत्युप्रोक्तां नचिकेतोऽथ लब्ध्वा विद्यामेतां योगविधिं च कृत्स्नम्
ब्रह्मप्राप्तो विरजोऽभूद्विमृत्युरन्योऽप्येवं यो विदध्यात्ममेव ॥

6. Having gained this knowledge imparted by Death and the whole rule of Yōga, Nachiketās attained Brahman and became free from passion and death. And so may any other who knows this teaching regarding the Self.

CHAPTER IV

प्रश्नोपनिषत्

From The Prasna-Upanishad :

I (Up. 1, 2.)

१. ओं सुकेशा च भारद्वाजः शैब्यश्च सत्यकामः सौर्यायणी च गार्ग्यः कौसल्यश्चाश्वलायनो भार्गवो वैदर्भिः कबन्धी कात्यायनस्ते हैते ब्रह्मपरा ब्रह्मनिष्ठाः परं ब्रह्मान्वेषमाणा एष ह वै तत्सर्वं वक्ष्यतीति ते ह समित्पाणयो भगवन्तं पिप्पलादमुपसन्नाः ॥

1. Sukesha (son of Bharadvaja), Satyakama (son of Sibi), Gargya (grandson of Surya), Kausalya (son of Asvala), Bhargava (of Vidarbha), and Kabandhi (son of Katya)—all these, intent on Brahman, devoted to Brahman, and seeking the highest Brahman, approached the revered Pippalada with sacrificial fuel in their hands, thinking that he would explain all that to them.

२. तान्ह स ऋषिरुवाच भूय एव तपसा ब्रह्मचर्येण श्रद्धया संवत्सरं संवत्स्यथ यथाकामं प्रश्नान्पृच्छथ यदि विज्ञास्यामः सर्वं ह वो वक्ष्याम इति ॥

2. The Seer said to them, "Live with me another year with austerity, chastity and faith. Then ask questions as you please. If we know, we will tell you all."

३. अथ कबन्धी कात्यायन उपेत्य पप्रच्छ । भगवन्कुतो ह वा इमाः प्रजाः प्रजायन्त इति ॥

3. After that time, Kabandhi, son of Katya, approached him and asked, "Venerable Sir, whence are all these creatures born?"

४. तस्मै स होवाच प्रजाकामो वै प्रजापतिः स तपोतप्यत स तपस्तप्त्वा स मिथुनमुत्पादयते । रयिं च प्राणं चेत्येतौ मे बहुधा प्रजाः करिष्यत इति ॥

4. To him he said, "The Lord of Creation, wishing to have offspring, brooded in thought. Having brooded in thought, he created a pair—matter and life—thinking that they would produce creatures for Him."

५. अथ हैनं भार्गवो वैदर्भिः पप्रच्छ । भगवन्कत्येव देवाः प्रजां विधारयन्ते कतर एतत्प्रकाशयन्ते कः पुनरेषां वरिष्ठ इति ॥

5. Then Bhargava of Vidarbha questioned him, "Sir, how many powers support a creature? How many illumine it, and which of them, again, is the most important?"

६. तस्मै स होवाच । आकाशो ह वा एष देवो वायुरग्निरापः पृथिवी वाङ्मनश्चक्षुः श्रोत्रं च । ते प्रकाश्याभिवदन्ति वयमेतद्वाणमवष्टभ्य विधारयामः ॥

6. To him he said, "Space is such a power—and air, fire, water, earth—also speech, mind, eye and ear. These, having illumined it, declare, 'We sustain and support this body.'

७. तान्वरिष्ठः प्राण उवाच । मा मोहमापद्यथाहमेवैतत्पञ्चधात्मानं प्रविभज्यैतद्वाणमवष्टभ्य विधारयामीति तेऽश्नद्धधाना बभूवुः ।

7. "But Life, the most important of them all, said to them, 'Do not cherish this delusion. I alone, dividing myself into five, sustain and support this body.' They did not believe him.

८. सोऽभिमानादूर्ध्वमुत्क्रामत इव तस्मिन्नुत्क्रामत्यथेतरे सर्व एवोत्क्रामन्ते तस्मिंश्च प्रतिष्ठमाने सर्व एव प्रातिष्ठन्ते । तद्यथा मक्षिका मधुकरराजानमुत्क्रामन्तं सर्वा एवोत्क्रामन्ते तस्मिंश्च प्रतिष्ठमाने सर्वा एव प्रातिष्ठन्त एव वाङ्मनश्चक्षुश्चोत्रं च ते प्रीताः प्राणं स्तुन्वन्ति ॥

8. "Then through pride he seemed as if to rise up from it. When he rose up, all of them rose up, and when he settled down, all of them settled down with him.

"As all the bees rise up when the king bee rises, and as they settle down when he settles down, even so did these—speech, mind, sight and hearing. They were satisfied and sang the praises of Life :—

९. एषोऽग्निस्तपत्येष सूर्य एष पर्जन्यो मघवानेष वायुः । एष पृथिवी रयिर्देवः सदसच्चामृतं च यत् ॥

9. "As fire he burns. He is the sun, he is the rain-god Indra. He is the wind, the earth and matter. He is a god. He is being and non-being and what is immortal.

१०. अरा इव रथनाभौ प्राणे सर्वं प्रतिष्ठितम् । ऋचो यजूंषि सामानि यज्ञः क्षत्रं ब्रह्म च ॥

10. "As spokes in the hub of a wheel everything is established in Life—the Rik, the Yajus and the Saman verses, and also sacrifices, valour and wisdom.

११. प्रजापतिश्चरसि गर्भे त्वमेव प्रतिजायसे । तुभ्यं प्राण प्रजा-स्त्विमा बाले हरन्ति यः प्राणैः प्रतितिष्ठसि ॥

11. "As the Lord of creatures, thou movest in the womb and thou thyself art born again. To thee, O Life, that dwellest with the vital breaths, these creatures bring their offerings.

१२. देवानामसि वह्निमतः । पितॄणां प्रथमा स्वधा । ऋषीणां चरितं सत्यमथर्वाङ्गिरसामसि ॥

12. "Thou art the chief bearer of oblations to the gods. Thou art the first offering to the Pitris. Thou art the virtuous conduct of the sages, the descendants of Atharvan and Angiras.

१३. इन्द्रस्त्वं प्राण तेजसा रुद्रोऽसि परिरक्षिता । त्वमन्तरिक्षे चरसि सूर्यस्त्वं ज्योतिषां पतिः ॥

13. "Thou art Indra, O Prana, thou art Rudra by thy valour, thou art the protector ; thou movest in the sky. Thou art the sun, the lord of lights.

१४. यदा त्वमभिवर्षस्यथेमाः प्राण ते प्रजाः । आनन्दरूपास्तिष्ठन्ति कामायान्नं भविष्यतीति ॥

14. "When thou comest down as rain, then these creatures breathe and live in a state of bliss, as there will be food to their hearts' content.

१५. ब्राह्म्यस्त्वं प्राणैकर्विरप्ता विश्वस्य सत्पतिः । वयमाद्यस्य दातारः पिता त्वं मातरिष्व नः ॥

15. "Thou art ever pure, O Life, the one seer, the eater, the real lord of the universe. We are the givers of food. O All-pervading, thou art our father.

१६. या ते तनूर्बाचि प्रतिष्ठिता या श्रोत्रे या च चक्षुषि । या च मनसि सन्तता शिवां तां कुरु मोत्क्रमीः ॥

16. "That form of thine which abides in speech, in hearing and in sight and which exists continuously in the mind—make it propitious, Do not depart,

१७. प्राणस्येदं वशे सर्वं त्रिदिवे यत्प्रतिष्ठितम् ।
माते^३ पुत्रान्क्षस्व श्रीश्च प्रज्ञां च विधेहि न इति ॥

17. " 'All this is under the sway of life, as also that which is established in heaven above. Protect us as a mother does her sons. Grant us prosperity and wisdom.' "

II (Up. 3)

१. अथ हैनं कौसल्यश्चाश्वलायनः पप्रच्छ । भगवन्कुत एष प्राणो जायते कथमायात्यस्मिच्छरीर आत्मानं वा प्रविभज्य कथं प्रातिष्ठते केनोत्क्रमते कथं बाह्यमभिदत्ते कथमध्यात्ममिति ॥

1. Then Kausalya, son of Asvala, asked him—
"Venerable Sir, whence is this life born ? How does it come into the body ? And how does it distribute itself and establish itself ? In what way does it depart ? How does it relate itself to what is external to the body and how to what is internal and spiritual ?"

२. तस्मै स होवाचातिप्रश्नान्पृच्छसि ब्रह्मिष्ठोऽसीति तस्मात्तेऽहं ब्रवीमि ॥

2. To him he then said, "You are asking questions which are highly transcendental. But, as I think you are most devoted to Brahman, I will tell you.

३. आत्मन एष प्राणो जायते । यथैषा पुरुषे च्छायैतस्मिन्नेतदाततं मनोऽकृतेनायात्यस्मिच्छरीरे ॥

3. "This life is born of the Self. As in the case of a man there is the shadow, so is this life connected with that Self. It comes into the body by the activity of the mind.

४. यथा सम्राड्देवाधिकृतान्विनियुक्ते एतान्प्राप्तेतान्प्राप्ते-
धितिष्ठस्वेत्येवमेवैष प्राण इतरान्प्राप्तेनृथकपृथगेव सन्निधत्ते ॥

4. "As a sovereign commands his officers, saying 'You superintend such and such villages'—even so does this life order the other vital breaths to their respective places.

५. पायूपस्थेऽपानं चक्षुः श्रोत्रे मुखनासिकाभ्यां प्राणः स्वयं
प्रतिष्ठते मध्ये तु समानः । एष ह्येतद्भुतमन्नं समं नयति
तस्मादेताः सप्तार्चिषो भवन्ति ॥

5. "The apana breath is stationed in the organs of excretion and reproduction ; the life-breath itself is in the eye and the ear and also in the mouth and the nose ; the samana breath in the middle distributes equally the food supplied. From this arise those seven fires.

६. हृदि ह्येष आत्मा । अत्रैतदेकशतं नाडीनां तासां शतं
शतमेकैकस्यां द्वासप्ततिर्द्वासप्ततिः प्रतिशाखा नाडीसहस्राणि
भवन्त्यासु व्यानश्चरति ॥

6. "In the heart is the self. Here are these one hundred and one blood-vessels. To each one of these belong a hundred smaller vessels. And to each of these again belong seventy-two thousand branching vessels. Within these moves the vyana breath.

७. अथैकयोर्ध्व उदानः पुण्येन पुण्यं लोकं नयति । पापेन
पापमुभाभ्यामेव मनुष्यलोकम् ॥

7. "Now, rising upwards through one of them, the udana breath leads one to the good world as a result of good deeds, and to the evil world as a result of evil deeds, and to the world of men as a result of both.

८. आदित्यो ह वै बाह्यः प्राण उदयत्येष ह्येनं चाक्षुषं
प्राणमनुगृह्णानः । पृथिव्यां या देवता सैषा पुरुषस्या-
पानमवष्टभ्यान्तरा यदाकाशः स समानो वायुर्व्यानः ॥

8. "The sun rises and it is the external life-breath, for it helps the life-breath in the eye; the divinity which is in the earth supports a person's apana breath. And the space between the two—that is the samana breath; and the air is the vyana breath.

९. तेजो ह वा उदानस्तस्मादुपशान्ततेजाः । पुनर्भवमि-
न्द्रियैर्मनसि सम्पद्यमानैः ॥

9. "Fire indeed is the udana breath. Hence he whose vital heat is quenched goes to rebirth, his senses being merged in his mind.

१०. यश्चित्तस्तेनैष प्राणमायाति प्राणस्तेजसा युक्तः । सहात्मना
यथासङ्कल्पितं लोकं नयति ॥

10. "Whatever be a man's last thoughts—with these he comes to life again. And life joined to vital heat, together with the self, leads to whatever world he has fashioned in his thoughts.

११. य एवं विद्वान्प्राणं वेद न ह्यस्य प्रजा ह्रियतेऽमृतो भवति
तदेष श्लोकः ॥

11. "The wise man who thus knows all about Life—his progeny will have no break and himself will become immortal. On this there is the following verse:—

१२. उत्पत्तिमायाति स्थानं विभुत्वं चैव पञ्चधा । अध्यात्मं चैव
प्राणस्य विज्ञायामृतमश्नुते विज्ञायामृतमश्नुत इति ॥

12. "The origin of Life, its coming, its staying, its five-fold extension and its relation to the Self—knowing these one obtains immortality."

III (Up. 4)

१. अथ हैर्न सौर्यायणी गार्ग्यः पप्रच्छ । भगवन्नेतस्मिन्पुरुषे
कानि स्वपन्ति कान्यस्मिञ्जाग्रति कतर एष देवः स्वप्नान्पश्यति
कस्यैतत्सुखं भवति कस्मिन्नु सर्वे सम्प्रतिष्ठिता भवन्तीति ॥

1. Then Gargya, grandson of Surya, asked him:—

“Venerable Sir, what are the powers that go to sleep in a man when he goes to sleep and what are they that are awake when he is awake? Who is that divinity that witnesses the dreams, and whose is that happiness? And in whom, again, are all these established?”

२. तस्मै स होवाच । यथा गार्ग्य मरीचयोऽर्कस्यास्तं गच्छतः
सर्वा एतस्मिन्स्तेजोमण्डल एकीभवन्ति ताः पुनः पुनरुदयतः
प्रचरन्त्येवं ह वै तत्सर्वं परे देवे मनस्येकी भवति । तेन तर्ह्येष
पुरुषो न शृणोति न पश्यति न जिघ्रति न रसयते न स्पृशते
नाभिवन्दते नादत्ते नानन्दयते न विसृजते नेयायते
स्वपितीत्याचक्षते ॥

2. To him he then said, “Just as, O Gargya, all the rays of the setting sun become one in an orb of light and spread themselves out when he rises, again and again, even so do all become one in that supreme divinity—the mind. Therefore in that state the man does not see, does not smell, does not taste, does not touch, does not speak, does not take, does not rejoice, does not emit and does not move about. They say, he sleeps.

३. प्राणान्नय एवैतस्मिन्पुरे जाग्रति ॥

3. “The fires of life alone remain awake in this city. /

४. अत्रैष देवः स्वप्ने महिमानमनुभवति । यत् दृष्टं दृष्टमनु-

4. "There, in sleep, the divine mind has experience of its power. It sees again whatever object has been seen, it hears again whatever has been heard, it experiences again and again whatever has been experienced before in different places and directions. Also what has been seen and not been seen, what has been heard and not been heard, what has been experienced and not been experienced, and what is existent and what is non-existent—it sees all; being all, it sees all.

6. "Just as birds resort to a tree for rest, even so, my friend, all things here go into the supreme Self—earth and the elements of earth, water and the elements of water, fire and the elements of fire, air and the elements of air, ether and the elements of ether; sight and what can be seen, hearing and what can be heard, smell and what can be smelt, taste and what can be tasted, the skin and what can be touched, speech and what can be spoken, hands and what can be handled, the organ of generation and what can be enjoyed, the organ of excretion and what can be excreted, feet and what can be trodden, the mind and what can be perceived, the intellect and what can be conceived, self-consciousness and what it can be conscious of, thought and what can be thought, light and what can be illumined and life and what can be supported by it.

8. "Verily, O friend, he who recognises the shadowless, bodiless, colourless, pure, imperishable Self attains that supreme imperishable itself. He, knowing all, becomes the All. On this, there is this verse:—

९. विज्ञानात्मा सह देवैश्च सर्वैः प्राणा भूतानि सम्प्रतिष्ठन्ति यत्र ।
तदक्षरं वेदयते यस्तु सोम्य स सर्वज्ञः सर्वमेवाविवेशेति ॥

9. "He who recognises the imperishable Self, in whom the conscious self, with all its powers, its vital breaths and the elements are established—he, O my friend, knowing all, has become the All."

IV (Up. 5)

१. अथ हैनं शौभ्यः सत्यकामः पप्रच्छ । स यो ह वै तद्भगव-

1. Then Satyakama, son of Sibi, asked him, "Venerable Sir, if among men any one meditates on Aum to the end of his life, what world does he win thereby?"

२. तस्मै स होवाच । एतद्वै सत्यकाम परं चापरं ब्रह्म यदोङ्कारः ।
तस्माद्विद्वानेतेनैवायतनेनैकतरमन्वेति ॥

2. To him he said, "Verily, O Satyakama, this syllable Aum is both the higher and the lower Brahman.
Therefore he who knows it can reach by its support either the one or the other.

३. स यद्येकमात्रमभिध्यायीत स तेनैव संवेदितस्तूर्णमेव जगत्या-

3. "If he meditates on one element of it, he is enlightened even by that and comes back quickly to the earth. The Rik verses lead him to the world of men.
There, endowed with austerity, chastity and faith, he experiences greatness.

४. अथ यदि द्विमात्रेण मनसि सम्पद्यते सोऽन्तरिक्षं यजुभिर्-

4. "If he meditates on two elements, then he becomes one with the mind and is led by Yajus formulas to the intermediate space, to the lunar world; and having experienced greatness there he returns hither again.

५. यः पुनरेतं त्रिमात्रेणोमित्येतेनैवाक्षरेण परं पुरुषमभिध्यायीत

5. "But if with the three elements of the syllable Aum he meditates on the highest Person, he becomes one with the light, the sun. And being freed from his sins, as a snake is freed from its skin, he is led by Saman chants to the world of Brahma. He sees the Person who dwells in the body, higher than the highest assemblage of life. On this subject there are these two verses:—

६. तिस्रो मात्रा मृत्युमत्यः प्रयुक्त अन्योन्यसक्ता अनुविप्रयुक्ताः
क्रियासु बाह्याभ्यन्तरमध्यमासु सम्यक्प्रयुक्तासु न कम्पते ज्ञः ॥

6. "These three elements, each by itself, are within the sphere of mortality. But if they are united and not separated from each other and are employed in actions well-performed, internal, external or intermediate—the knower is not shaken.

७. ऋग्भिरेतं यजुर्भिरन्तरिक्षं सामभिर्यत्तत्कवयो वेदयन्ते ।
तमोङ्कुरेणैवायतनेनान्वेति विद्वान्यत्तच्छान्तमजरममृतमभयं परं

7. "With the Rik verses one gains this world, with the Yajus formulas the interspace, and with Saman chants that which the sages know. With Aum as the sole support the wise man attains to that which is tranquil, undecaying, deathless, fearless and supreme."

1. Then Sukesha, son of Bharadvaja, asked him, "Venerable Sir, Hiranyanabha, a prince of Kosala, came to me and asked this question, 'Bharadvaja, do you know the person with sixteen parts?' I replied to the prince, 'I do not know him. If I knew him why would I not tell you? He who speaks an untruth will indeed wither away to his roots. It is not proper for me, therefore, to speak an untruth.' Thereupon he silently mounted his chariot and went away. Now I will ask you, Where is that person?"

२. तस्मै स ह्येवात्र । इहैवान्तःशरीरे सोम्य स पुरुषो यस्मिन्नेताः

4. "He created life, and from life, faith, space, air, light, water, earth, senses, mind and food; and from food vitality, austerity, hymns, works, worlds, and in the worlds individuals.

५. स यथेमा नद्यः स्यन्दमानाः समुद्रायणाः समुद्रं प्राप्यास्तं गच्छन्ति भिद्येते तासां नामरूपे समुद्र इत्येवं प्रोच्यते । एवमेवास्य परिदृष्टुरिमाः षोडशकलाः पुरुषायणाः पुरुषं प्राप्यास्तंगच्छन्ति भिद्येते तासां नामरूपे पुरुष इत्येवं प्रोच्यते । स एषोऽकलोऽमृतो भवति । तदेष श्लोकः ॥

5. "Just as these running streams flowing towards the sea disappear on reaching the sea and are simply called the sea, their name and form being broken up, even so these sixteen parts of this seer, tending towards the person, disappear on reaching him, and are simply called the person, their name and form being broken up. This one is without parts and is immortal. On this there is the following verse:—

६. अरा इव रथनाभौ कला यस्मिन्प्रतिष्ठिताः । तं वेद्यं पुरुषं वेद यथा मा वो मृत्युः परिव्यथा इति ॥

६. "He in whom the parts are well established as spokes in the centre of the wheel—know him as the person to be known so that death may not afflict you."

७. तान्होवाचैतावदेवाहमेतत्परं ब्रह्म वेद । नातः परमस्तीति ॥

7. To them he said, "Only thus far do I know that supreme Brahman. There is nothing higher than that."

८. ते तमर्चयन्तस्त्वं हि नः पिता योऽस्माकमविद्यायाः परं पारं तारयसीति । नमः परमर्षिभ्यो नमः परमर्षिभ्यः ॥

8. Then they praised him, "Thou art indeed our father, taking us across to the other shore of our ignorance."

Salutation to the supreme sages,

CHAPTER V

मुण्डकोपनिषत्

From the Mundaka-Upanishad.

I (Up. I. 1)

१. शौनको ह वै महाशालोऽङ्गिरसं विधिवदुपसन्नः पप्रच्छ ।
कस्मिन् भगवो विज्ञाते सर्वमिदं विज्ञातं भवतीति ॥

1. Saunaka, a great householder, approached Angiras with due respect and said, "Sir, what is that which, being known, everything else will be known?"

२. तस्मै स होवाच । द्वे विद्ये वेदितव्ये इति ह स्म यद्विद्वद्विदो
वदन्ति परा चैवापरा च ॥

2. To him he replied, "There are two kinds of knowledge to be known, as declared by those who know Brahman—the higher and the lower.

३. तत्रापरा ऋग्वेदो यजुर्वेदः सामवेदोथर्ववेदः शिक्षा कल्पो
व्याकरणं निरुक्तं छन्दो ज्योतिषमिति । अथ परा यया तद-
क्षरमधिगम्यते ।

3. "Of these the lower is that of the Rig-Veda, the Yajur-Veda, the Sama-Veda, the Atharva-Veda, and of phonetics, rituals, grammar, etymology, prosody and astrology. And the higher is that by which the Imperishable is apprehended.

४. यत्तदद्रेश्यमग्राह्यमगोत्रमवर्णमच्छुःश्रोत्रं तदपाणिपादम् ।
नित्यं विभुं सर्वगतं सुसूक्ष्मं तदव्ययं यद्भूतयोनिं परिपश्यन्ति
धीराः ॥

4. "That which cannot be seen or grasped, which has neither origin nor properties, which has neither eyes nor ears, neither hands nor feet, which is eternal, all-pervading, omnipresent and extremely subtle—that is the Imperishable which the sages regard as the source of all beings.

५. यथोर्गनाभिः सृजते गृह्णते च यथा पृथिव्यामोषधयस्सम्भवन्ति । यथा सतः पुरुषात्केशलोमानि तथाऽक्षरात्सम्भवतीह विश्वम् ॥

5. "Even as a spider sends forth and draws in (its thread), even as plants spring out of the earth, and hairs from the head and the body of a living man—even so does the whole creation arise out of that Imperishable.

६. तपसा चीयते ब्रह्म ततोऽन्नमभिजायते ।
अन्नात्प्राणो मनः सत्यं लोकाः कर्मसु चामृतम् ॥

6. "The Eternal broods and expands, and thence is produced matter, and from matter—life, mind, the elements, the worlds, and actions and their unfailing consequences.

७. यः सर्वज्ञ सर्वविद्यस्य ज्ञानमयं तपः ॥
तस्मादेतद्ब्रह्म नामरूपमन्नं च जायते ॥

7. "He who knows all, who perceives everything and whose brooding thought is wisdom itself—from Him are born this world-soul, these names and forms and this primal matter."

II (Up. I. 2)

१. तदेतत्सत्यं मन्त्रेषु कर्मणि कवयो यान्यपश्यन्तानि त्रेतायां बहुधा सन्ततानि । तान्याचरथ नित्यं सत्यकामा एष वः पन्थाः सुकृतस्य लोके ॥

1. This is the truth. The rituals which the sages contemplated in the hymns were developed in various ways in the three Vedas. Perform them always with a sincere desire. This is your way to the world of good works.

२. यदा लेलायते ह्यग्निः समिद्धे हव्यवाहने ।

तदाज्यभागावन्तरेणाहुतीः प्रतिपादयेच्छ्रद्धया हुतम् ॥

2. When the fire is kindled and the flame flickers one should offer one's oblations—and offer them with faith—between the two places where ghee is poured.

३. एहोहीति तमाहुतयः सुवर्चसः सूर्यस्य रश्मिभिर्यजमानं
वहन्ति । प्रियां वाचमभिवदन्त्योऽर्चयन्त्य एष वः पुण्यः
सुकृतो ब्रह्मलोकः ॥

3. Saying 'Come, Come', these oblations shining bright will carry the sacrificer along the rays of the sun and utter pleasant words and praise him saying: "This is the holy heaven which you have gained by your good works."

४. प्लवा ह्येते अहदा यन्नरूपा अष्टादशोक्तमवरं येषु कर्म।
एतच्छ्रेयो येऽभिनन्दन्ति मूढा जरामृत्युं ते पुनरेवापियन्ति ॥

4. But frail are these boats, these eighteen sacrificial forms, in which the lower karma has been told. Fools who praise this as the highest good are subject to old age and death, again and again.

५. अविद्यायामन्तरे वर्तमानाः स्वयं धीराः पण्डितं मन्यमानाः ।
जङ्घन्यमानाः परियन्ति मूढा अन्धेनैव नीयमाना यथाग्धाः ॥

5. Abiding in ignorance, wise in their own esteem, thinking themselves to be learned, these fools wander about much afflicted, like the blind led by one who is himself blind.

६. अविद्यायां बहुधा वर्तमाना वयं कृतार्था इत्यभिमन्यन्ति बालाः । यत्कर्मिणो न प्रवेदयन्ति रागात्तेनातुराः क्षीणलोकाश्च्यवन्ते ॥

6. Though living in ignorance in every way, they childishly say to themselves, "We have accomplished our object." These ritualists never know the truth on account of their attachments and therefore when the fruit of their works is exhausted they sink down and are miserable.

७. इष्टापूर्ते मन्यमाना वरिष्ठं नान्यच्छ्रेयो वेदयन्ते प्रमूढाः । नाकस्य पृष्ठे ते सुकृतेऽनुभूत्वा इमं लोकं हीनतरं वा विशन्ति ॥

7. Considering sacrifices and good works as most important these deluded men know no higher good, and, having enjoyed on the heights of heaven the reward of their good works, they enter again this world or even a lower one.

८. तपः श्रद्धे ये ह्युपवसन्त्यरण्ये शान्ता विद्वांसो भैक्षचर्या चरन्तः । सूर्यद्वारेण ते विरजाः प्रयान्ति यन्नामृतः स पुरुषो ह्यन्ययात्मा ॥

8. But those who practise austerities and faith in the forest, being tranquil and wise, and leading the life of a mendicant, free from passion, depart through the sun to where dwells that immortal, imperishable Person.

९. परीक्ष्य लोकान्कर्मचितान्ब्राह्मणो निर्वेदमायान्नास्त्यकृतः कृतेन । तद्विज्ञानार्थं स शुभमेवाभिगच्छेत्समित्पाणिः श्रोत्रियं ब्रह्मनिष्ठम् ॥

9. Let a Brahmana, after he has examined these worlds, which are gained by works, acquire freedom from desire. The uncreated is not to be gained by mere works. To acquire this knowledge let him take the sacrificial fuel in his hand and approach a teacher who is learned and well established in Brahman.

तस्मै स विद्वानुपसन्नाय सम्यक्प्रशान्तचित्ताय शमान्विताय ।
येनाक्षरं पुरुषं वेद सत्यं प्रोवाच तां तत्त्वतो ब्रह्मविद्याम् ॥

10. To a pupil who thus approaches him in due form and whose heart is subdued and who has attained perfect peace the wise teacher will impart the knowledge of Brahman by which the true immortal Person is known.

III (Up. II. 1)

१. तदेतत्सत्यं यथा सुदीप्तात्पावकाद्विस्फुलिङ्गाः सहस्रशः प्रभवन्ते
सरूपाः । तथाऽक्षराद्विधाः सोम्य भावाः प्रजायन्ते तत्र
चैवापियन्ति ॥

1. This is the truth. As from a blazing fire sparks of like form issue forth by the thousand, even so, my friend, various beings issue forth from the Imperishable and also return thither.

२. दिव्यो ह्यमूर्तः पुरुषः स बाह्याभ्यन्तरो ह्यजः ।

अप्राणो ह्यमनाः शुभ्रो ह्यक्षरात्परतः परः ॥

2. Divine and formless is that Person. He is without and within, unborn and pure, transcending life and mind and higher than the high Imperishable.

३. एतस्माज्जायते प्राणो मनः सर्वेन्द्रियाणि च ।

खं वायुर्ज्योतिरापः पृथिवी विश्वस्य धारिणी ॥

3. From Him are born life, mind and all the senses—and also space, air, light, water and the earth which supports all.

४. अग्निर्ब्रह्मा चक्षुषी चन्द्रसूर्यौ दिशः श्रोत्रे वाग्विवृतश्च वेदाः ।

वायुः प्राणो हृदयं विश्वमस्य पद्भ्यां पृथिवी ह्येष सर्व-भूतान्तरात्मा ॥

4. Fire is His head, the sun and the moon are His eyes, the quarters are His ears, the revealed Vedas are

His voice, and wind is His breath, the universe is His heart, and the earth has come from His feet. He is indeed the inner Self of all created things.

५. तस्मादग्निः समिधो यस्य सूर्यः सोमात्पर्जन्य ओषधयः
पृथिव्याम् । पुमान्नेतः सिञ्चति योषितायां बह्वीः प्रजाः पुरुष-
त्सम्प्रसूताः ॥

5. From Him comes the fire whose fuel is the sun; from the moon comes rain; and from the earth herbs; and man scatters seed in woman. Thus many beings are begotten from the Purusha.

६. तस्माद्वचः साम यजूंषि दीक्षा यज्ञाश्च सर्वे ऋतवो दक्षिणाश्च ।
संवत्सरश्च यजमानश्च लोकाः सोमो यत्र पवते यत्र सूर्यः ॥

6. From Him come the Rik, the Saman, the Yajus, the Diksha, and all sacrifices and ceremonies and sacrificial gifts—the year too, and the sacrificer and the worlds where the moon shines bright as well as the sun.

७. तस्माच्च देवा बहुधा सम्प्रसूताः साध्या मनुष्याः पशवो
वयांसि । प्राणापानौ ब्रीहियवौ तपश्च श्रद्धा सत्यं ब्रह्मचर्यं
विधिश्च ॥

7. From Him are born the various gods and demi-gods, and men and cattle and birds; and also the breaths of life, rice and corn, penance and faith, and truth, chastity and law.

८. सप्त प्राणाः प्रभवन्ति तस्मात् सप्तार्चिषः समिधः सप्त होमाः ।
सप्त इमे लोका येषु चरन्ति प्राणा गुहाशया निहिताः सप्त
सप्त ॥

8. From Him are born the seven Pranas (organs of sense) and also the seven flames and their sevenfold fuel, the seven oblations and these seven worlds in which move the sense-organs, resting in the cave of the heart, fixed there, seven and seven.

९. अतः समुद्रा गिरयश्च सर्वेऽस्मात्स्यन्दन्ते सिन्धवः सर्वरूपाः ।
अतः सर्वा ओषधयो रसाश्च येनैष भूतैस्तिष्ठते ह्यन्तरात्मा ॥

9. From Him come all the seas and the mountains; from Him flow the rivers of every kind; from Him come all the herbs and their juices, by which this inner soul subsists along with the elements.

१०. पुरुष एवेदं विश्वं कर्म तपो ब्रह्म परामृतम् । एतद्यो वेद
निहितं गुहायां सोऽविद्याग्रन्थि विकरतीह सोम्य ॥

10. The Purusha alone is all this universe—sacrifices and austerities. All this is Brahman, the highest and the immortal. He who knows that which is hidden in the cave of the heart—he cuts asunder, my friend, the knot of ignorance even here on earth.

IV (Up. II. 2)

१. आविः सन्निहितं गुहाचरं नाम महत्पदमत्रैतत्समर्पितम् ।
एजत्प्राणन्निमिषञ्च यदेतज्जानथ सदसद्वरेण्यं परं विज्ञानाद्यद्वरिष्ठं
प्रजानाम् ॥

1. Radiant and near, indeed stirring in the heart itself, is that great Being. In it is centred everything—everything that moves and breathes and winks. Know this which is both being and non-being, adorable, supreme and beyond the understanding of men.

२. यदर्चिमद्यदणुभ्योऽणु च यस्मिंल्लोका निहिता लोकिनश्च ।
तदेतदक्षरं ब्रह्म स प्राणस्तदु वाङ्मनः । तदेतत्सत्त्वं तदमृतं
तद्वेद्व्यं सोम्य विद्धि ॥

2. That which is luminous and subtler than the subtle and in which are founded all the worlds and their inhabitants—that is the eternal Brahman. It is life, it is speech, it is mind. It is truth, it is immortality. It is to be known. Know it, O friend.

३. धनुर्गृहीत्वौपनिषदं महास्त्रं शरं ह्युपासानिशितं सन्दधीत ।
आयम्य तद्भावगतेन चेतसा लक्ष्यं तदेवाक्षरं सोम्य विद्धि ॥

3. Taking the Upanishad as your bow, as your great weapon, fix on it the arrow sharpened by devotion, and then, drawing it with a mind concentrated on That, hit the target of that Eternal, O friend.

४. प्रणवो धनुः शरो ह्यात्मा ब्रह्म तल्लक्ष्यमुच्यते ।
अप्रमत्तेन वेद्व्यं शरवत्तन्मयो भवेत् ॥

4. Aum is the bow, one's own self is the arrow and Brahman is said to be its aim. It should be hit by a man who is undistracted. And like the arrow he should become one with It.

५. यस्मिन्द्यौः पृथिवी चान्तरिक्षमोतं मनः सह प्राणैश्च सर्वैः ।
तमेवैकं जानथ आत्मानमन्या वाचो विमुञ्चथामृतस्यैष सेतुः ॥

5. He in whom are woven together the heaven and the earth and the sky, and also the mind and the senses—know Him alone as the Self and leave off all other words. He is the bridge to immortality.

६. अरा इव रथनाभौ संहता यत्र नाड्यः स एषोऽन्तश्चरते बहुधा
जायमानः । ओमित्येवं ध्यायथात्मानं स्वस्तिः वः पाराय तमसः
परस्तात् ॥

6. Where the arteries meet together like the spokes on a nave—there He moves about making Himself manifold. Meditate on Aum as the Self. May you be successful in crossing over to the farther shore of darkness!

७. यः सर्वज्ञः सर्वविद्यस्यैष महिमा भुवि ।

दिव्ये ब्रह्मपुरे ह्येष व्योम्यात्मा प्रतिष्ठितः ॥

7. He who knows all, who understands all and to whom belongs the glory on the earth—He is the Self established in the divine city of Brahman (the heart) as well as in space.

८. मनोमयः प्राणशरीरनेता प्रतिष्ठितोऽन्ने हृदयं सन्निधाय ।

तद्विज्ञानेन परिपश्यन्ति धीरा आनन्दरूपममृतं यद्विभाति ॥

8. He consists of mind, He guides the senses and the body. Established in the body He controls the heart. The wise, through their understanding, behold the Eternal, which shines forth full of bliss.

९. भिद्यते हृदयग्रन्थिश्छिद्यन्ते सर्वसंशयाः ।

क्षीयन्ते चास्य कर्माणि तस्मिन्दृष्टे परावरे ॥

9. The fetters of the heart are broken, all doubts are dissolved and one's works melt away when He that is both high and low is seen.

१०. हिरण्ये परे कोशे विरजं ब्रह्म निष्कलम् ।

तच्छुभ्रं ज्योतिषां ज्योतिस्तद्यदात्मविदो विदुः ॥

10. In the innermost sheath of golden hue there is Brahman without stain and without parts. It is the Pure. It is the Light of lights. That is what they know who know the Self.

११. न तत्र सूर्यो भाति न चन्द्रतारकं नेमा विद्युतो भान्ति कुतोऽय-

मग्निः । तमेव भान्तमनुभाति सर्वं तस्य भासा सर्वमिदं विभाति ॥

11. The Sun does not shine there, nor the moon and the stars, nor these lightnings, much less this fire. When He shines everything shines after Him. By His light all this is lighted.

१२. ब्रह्मैवेदममृतं पुरस्ताद्ब्रह्म पश्चाद्ब्रह्म दक्षिणतश्चोत्तरेण ।
अधश्चोर्ध्वं च प्रसृतं ब्रह्मैवेदं विश्वमिदं वरिष्ठम् ॥

12. That immortal Brahman is before; that Brahman is behind; that Brahman is to the right and to the left. It is stretched below and above. Brahman indeed is all this. It is the best.

V (Up. III. 1)

१. द्वा सुपर्णा सयुजा सखाया समानं वृक्षं परिषस्वजाते ।
तयोरन्यः पिप्पलं स्वाद्वत्ति अनश्नन्नन्यो अभिचाकशीति ॥

1. Two birds, inseparable companions, cling to the same tree. One of them eats the sweet fruit, the other looks on without eating.

२. समाने वृक्षे पुरुषो निमग्नोऽजीशया शोचति मुह्यमानः ।
ब्रुष्टं यदा पश्यत्यन्यमीशमस्य महिमानमिति वीतशोकः ॥

2. On the self-same tree man sits immersed and deluded and grieves on account of his helplessness. But when he sees the other—the Lord who is worshipped by all—and His glory, he becomes freed from sorrow.

३. यदा पश्यः पश्यते स्वमवर्णं कर्तारमीशं पुरुषं ब्रह्मयोनिम् ।
तदा विद्वान्पुण्यपापे विधूय निरञ्जनः परमं साम्यमुपैति ॥

3. When the seer sees the radiant Creator, the Lord, the Person who has His source in Brahman, then does he become a knower and, shaking off good and evil and becoming free from stain, reach supreme equality with the Lord.

४. प्राणो ह्येष यः सर्वभूतैर्विभ्राति विजानन्विद्वान्भवते नातिवादी ।
आत्मन्त्रीड आत्मरतिः क्रियावानेष ब्रह्मविदां वरिष्ठः ॥

4. He is the Life shining through all beings. The wise man who knows Him will not talk of anything else. He revels in the Self, he delights in the Self, and, having performed his works, he is established in Brahman, and is the best of those who know Brahman.

५. सत्येन लभ्यस्तपसा ह्येष आत्मा सम्यग्ज्ञानेन ब्रह्मचर्येण नित्यम् ।
अन्तःशरीरे ज्योतिमयो हि शुभ्रो यं पश्यन्ति यतयः क्षीणदोषाः॥

5. By truthfulness, by austerities, by right knowledge and by ceaseless abstinence is that Self to be gained. He whom the sinless ascetics behold is pure and like a light within the body.

६. सत्यमेव जयते नानृतं सत्येन पन्था विततो देवयानः ।
येनाक्रमन्त्यृषयो ह्यातकामा यत्र तत्सत्यस्य परमं निधानम् ॥

6. Truth alone succeeds, not falsehood. By truth is laid out the path of the gods, on which the sages whose desires are fulfilled proceed to where there is the highest repository of truth.

७. बृहच्च तद्व्यमचिन्त्यरूपं सूक्ष्माच्च तत्सूक्ष्मतरं विभाति ।
दूरात्सुदूरे तदिहान्तिके च पश्यत्स्वहैव निहितं गुहायाम् ॥

7. Grand, divine, inconceivable in form and smaller than the small, it shines forth. It is farther than the far and yet it is here at hand, hidden in the hearts of those who see it even here.

८. न चक्षुषा गृह्यते नापि वाचा नान्यैर्देवैस्तपसा कर्मणा वा ।
ज्ञानप्रसादेन विशुद्धसत्त्वस्ततस्तु तं पश्यते निष्कलं ध्यायमानः ॥

8. He is not grasped by the eye, nor even by speech, nor by the other senses—no, not by austerities or by works. When a man's nature is purified by the serene light of knowledge, then through meditation he can see Him who is without parts.

९. एषो गुह्यमा चेतसा वेदितव्यो यस्मिन्प्राणः पञ्चधा संविवेश ।
प्राणैश्चित्तं सर्वमोतं प्रजैर्नां यस्मिन्विशुद्धे विभवत्येष आत्मा ॥

9. That subtle Self is to be known by thought, into which the senses have entered fivefold The whole thinking of men is interwoven with the senses. And when that is purified, the Self shines forth of itself.

१०. यं यं लोकं मनसा संविभाति विशुद्धसत्त्वः कामयते यांश्च कामान्
तं तं लोकं जयते तांश्च कामांस्तस्मादात्मज्ञं ह्यर्चयेद्भूतिकामः ॥

10. Whatever world a man of purified nature imagines in his mind and whatever desires he desires—he wins that world and he obtains those desires. Therefore let a man who desires prosperity honour him who knows the Self.

VI (Up. III. 2)

१. स वैदैन्यपरमं ब्रह्म धाम यत्र विश्वं निहितं भाति शुभ्रम् ।
उपासते पुरुषं ये ह्यकामास्ते शुक्रमेतदतिवर्तन्ति धीराः ॥

1. He (the knower of the Self) knows the supreme abode of Brahman, resting on whom the universe shines radiant The wise who, having no desires, worship the Purusha—they overcome the seed of rebirth

२. कामान्यः कामयते मन्यमानः स कामभिर्जायते तत्र तत्र ।
पर्याप्तकामस्य कृतात्मनस्तु इहैव सर्वे प्रविलीयन्ति कामाः ॥

2. He who cherishes desires, ever thinking of them, is born again here and there on account of those desires, while for him whose desires are fulfilled and who has realised the Self all desires vanish even here on earth.

३. नायमात्मा प्रवचनेन लभ्यो न मेधया न बहुना श्रुतेन ।
यमेवैष वृणुते तेन लभ्यस्तस्यैष आत्मा विवृणुते तनूं स्वाम् ॥

3. This Self cannot be gained by the study of scriptures, nor by the power of intellect, nor even by much hearing. It can be gained only by him whom it chooses. To him it reveals its true nature.

४. नायमात्मा बलहीनेन लभ्यो न च प्रमादात्तपसो वाऽप्यलिङ्गात् ।
एतैरुपायैर्यतते यस्तु विद्वांस्तस्यैष आत्मा विशते ब्रह्मधाम ॥

4. This Self cannot be gained by one who is devoid of strength, who is without earnestness and without the right kind of austerity. But if a wise man strives after it by these means, his spirit enters the abode of Brahman.

५. सम्प्राप्यैनमृषयो ज्ञानतृप्ताः कृतात्मानो वीतरागाः प्रशान्ताः ।
ते सर्वगं सर्वतः प्राप्य धीरा युक्तात्मानः सर्वमेवाविशन्ति ॥

5. When they have reached Him, the sages become satisfied through their knowledge. They become perfect in their souls—tranquil and free from passion. These wise men, having reached the Omnipresent on all sides with concentrated minds, enter into the All itself.

६. वेदान्तविज्ञानमुनिश्चितार्थाः संन्यासयोगाद्यतयः शुद्धसत्त्वाः ।
ते ब्रह्मलोकेषु परान्तकाले परामृताः परिमुच्यन्ति सर्वे ॥

6. Having well ascertained the object of the knowledge of Vedanta and having purified their minds by the Yoga of renunciation, these ascetics, enjoying the highest immortality, become free in the worlds of Brahma at the time of death.

७. गताः कलाः पञ्चदश प्रतिष्ठा देवाश्च सर्वे प्रतिदेवतासु ।
कर्माणि विज्ञानमयश्च आत्मा परेऽव्यये सर्व एकीभवन्ति ॥

7. Their fifteen parts have gone back to their elements, and the powers of their senses to their respective deities. Their works and their understanding self have all become one in the supreme Imperishable.

८. यथा नद्यः स्यन्दमानाः समुद्रेऽस्तं गच्छन्ति नामरूपे विहाय ।
तथा विद्वान्नामरूपाद्विमुक्तः परात्परं पुरुषमुपैति दिव्यं ॥

8. As the flowing rivers disappear in the ocean, losing their name and form, so does the knower, freed from name and form, go to the divine Purusha, higher than the high.

९. स यो ह वै तत्परमं ब्रह्म वेद ब्रह्मैव भवति नास्याब्रह्म-
वित्कुले भवति । तरति शोकं तरति पाप्मानं गुहाग्रन्थिभ्यो
विमुक्तोऽमृतोभवति ॥ तदेतद्वचाभ्युक्तम्—

9. Indeed he who knows the supreme Brahman becomes Brahman himself. In his family no one who does not know Brahman will be born. He overcomes grief. He overcomes sin. Free from the fetters of the heart he becomes immortal. This is declared in the following verse :—

१० क्रियावन्तः श्रोत्रिया ब्रह्मनिष्ठाः स्वयं जुह्वत एकर्षिं श्रद्धयन्तः ।
तेषामेवैतां ब्रह्मविद्यां वदेत शिरोव्रतं विधिवच्चैस्तु चीर्णम् ॥

10. Let a man impart this knowledge of Brahman to those only who have performed all rites, who are well versed in the Veda, who are intent on Brahman, who by themselves have offered with faith oblations in the Ekarshi fire, and who have duly observed the vow of the head.

११. तदेतत्सत्यमृषिरङ्गिराः पुरोवाच नैतदचीर्णव्रतोऽधीते ।
नमः परमऋषिभ्यो नमः परमऋषिभ्यः ॥

11. This is the truth which the seer Angiras declared of yore. Let no one who has not carried out the vow read it. Adoration to the highest Rishis! Adoration to the highest Rishis!

CHAPTER VI

माण्डूक्योपनिषत्

From the Mandukya-Upanishad :

१. हरिः ओं ॥ ओमित्येतदक्षरमिदं सर्वं तस्योपव्याख्यानं भूतं
भवद्भविष्यदिति सर्वमोङ्कारः एव । यच्चान्यत्रिंशदालातीतं
तदप्योङ्कार एव ॥

1. Aum—this syllable is this whole world. Its explanation is :—

The past, the present and the future—all this is only the syllable Aum. And whatever else there is that transcends the threefold time—that too is only the syllable Aum.

२. सर्वं ह्येतद्ब्रह्मायमात्मा ब्रह्म सोऽयमात्मा चतुष्पात् ॥

2. Everything here is verily Brahman. This self is Brahman. This same self has four quarters.

३. जागरितस्थानो बहिःप्रज्ञः सप्ताङ्ग एकोनविंशतिमुखः स्थूल-
भुवैश्वानरः प्रथमः पादः ॥

3. The first quarter is Vaisvanara, whose sphere is the waking state, who cognises external objects, who has seven limbs and nineteen mouths, and who enjoys gross material objects.

४. स्वप्नस्थानोऽन्तःप्रज्ञः सप्ताङ्ग एकोनविंशतिमुखः प्रविदित्त-
भुक्तैजसो द्वितीयः पादः ॥

4. The second quarter is Taijasa, whose sphere is the dream state, who cognises internal objects, who has seven limbs and nineteen mouths and who enjoys objects which are subtle.

५. यत्र सुप्तो न कञ्चन कामं कामयते न कञ्चन स्वप्नं पश्यति तत्सुषुप्तम् । सुषुप्तस्थान एकीभूतः प्रज्ञानघन एवानन्दमय यो ह्यानन्दभुक्चेतोमुखः प्राज्ञस्तृतीयः पादः ॥

5. Where one, being fast asleep, does not desire any desire whatsoever and does not see any dream whatsoever—that is the state of deep sleep. The third quarter is Prajna, whose sphere is this state of deep sleep, who has become unified, who is verily a mass of cognition, who is full of bliss and who enjoys bliss and whose opening is thought.

६. एष सर्वेश्वर एष सर्वज्ञ एषोऽन्तर्याम्येष योनिः सर्वस्य प्रभवाप्ययौ हि भूतानाम् ॥

6. This is the Lord of all, this is the knower of all, this is the inner controller. This is the source of all, for this is the beginning and the end of beings.

७. नान्तः प्रज्ञं न बहिः प्रज्ञं नोभयतः प्रज्ञं न प्रज्ञानघनं न प्रज्ञं नाप्रज्ञम् । अदृश्यमव्यवहार्यमग्राह्यमलक्षणमचिन्त्यमव्यपदेश्यमेकात्मप्रत्ययसारं प्रपञ्चोपशमं शान्तं शिवमद्वैतं चतुर्थं मन्यन्ते स आत्मा स विज्ञेयः ॥

7. That which does not cognise either internal objects or external objects, which is not a mass of cognition, which is neither cognitive nor non-cognitive—that which cannot be seen, which cannot be described, which cannot be grasped, which has no distinctive marks, which cannot be thought of, which cannot be designated,—that of which the essence is the knowledge of the oneness of the Self, that in which the world ceases to exist—the peaceful, the benign, the non-dual—such, they think, is the fourth quarter. That is the Atman. That is to be known.

2 Bring then unto me that prosperity which always brings, increases and preserves long for me clothes and cattle, food and drink—prosperity in wool along with the cattle. Svaha !

May students of sacred knowledge flock to me!

May students of sacred knowledge flock to me from every side!

May students of sacred knowledge flock to me in large numbers!

May the students curb their senses!

May the students become tranquil in mind!

3. May I become famous among men!

May I become more renowned than the rich!

May I enter into Thee, O Lord!

Do Thou enter into me, O Lord!

In Thee, O Lord, consisting of a thousand branches, may I be cleansed!

As waters run downward, as months run into years —even so, O Lord, may students flock to me from every side!

Thou art my refuge! Enlighten me! Take possession of me!

2. "Do not neglect the rites due to the gods and thy ancestors! Let thy mother be to thee like a god! Let thy father be to thee like a god! Let thy teacher be to thee like a god! Let thy guest be to thee like a god! Whatever actions are blameless—those should be performed and not others. Whatever good practices there are among us—they are to be adopted by thee, not others.

4. "If there should be any doubt in thy mind with regard to any deed or with regard to conduct—in that case conduct thyself as Brahmanas do who are competent to judge, who are devoted, but not led by others, and who are not harsh lovers of virtue.

"And then with regard also to persons who have been spoken against, conduct thyself towards them as Brahmanas do who are competent to judge, who are devoted, but not led by others, and who are not harsh lovers of virtue.

"This is the rule; this is the teaching. This is the secret of the Veda. This is the command. Thus should one observe. Thus indeed should it be observed."

1. Aum! The Knower of Brahman reaches the Supreme. On this the following has been said: "He who knows Brahman, the Real, the Intelligent and the Infinite, placed in the depth of the heart as well as in the highest heaven—he realises all desires along with Brahman, the infellegant."

२. यतो वाचो निवर्तन्ते । अप्राप्य मनसा सह । आनन्दं ब्रह्मणो

2. He who knows the bliss of that Brahman from which all speech, with the mind, turns away unable to reach it—he does not fear anything from anywhere. He does not distress himself with the thought, ‘Why did I not do what is good? Why did I do what is bad?’ He who knows this saves himself from these thoughts. For, truly, he who knows this saves himself from both of these. This is the Upanishad.

IV (Up. III. 1-6)

१. भृगुर्वै वारुणिः । वरुणं पितरमुपससार । अधीहि भगवो ब्रह्मेति । तस्मा एतत्प्रोवाच । अन्नं प्राणं चक्षुः श्रोत्रं मनो वाचमिति । तं होवाच । यतो वा इमानि भूतानि जायन्ते । येन जातानि जीवन्ति । यत्प्रयन्त्यभिसंविशन्ति । तद्विजिज्ञासस्व । तद्ब्रह्मेति ॥

1. Bhrigu, son of Varuna, approached his father and said, ‘Sir, teach me Brahman.’

To him he said, ‘Matter, life, sight, hearing, mind and speech’—(these are the means). He said further, ‘That from which these beings are born, that by which, when born, they live, and that into which they enter on passing away—try to know that. That is Brahman.’

२. स तपोऽतप्यत । स तपस्तप्त्वा । अन्नं ब्रह्मेति व्यजानात् । अन्नाद्ध्येव खल्विमानि भूतानि जायन्ते । अन्नेन जातानि जीवन्ति । अन्नं प्रयन्त्यभिसंविशन्तीति । तद्विज्ञाय । पुनरेव वरुणं पितरमुपससार । अधीहि भगवो ब्रह्मेति । तं होवाच । तपसा ब्रह्म विजिज्ञासस्व । तपो ब्रह्मेति ॥

2. He performed penance. Having performed penance, he understood that matter was Brahman. For it is from matter that these beings are born, it is by matter that, when born, they live, and it is matter that they enter, on passing away.

Having understood this he again approached his father Varuna and said, "Sir, teach me Brahman."

Then he said to him, "Try to know Brahman through penance, for penance is the best means."

३. स तपोऽतप्यत । स तपस्तप्त्वा । प्राणो ब्रह्मेति व्यजानात् ।

3. He performed penance. Having performed penance he understood that life was Brahman. For it is from life that these beings are born. It is through life that, when born, they live, and it is life that they enter on passing away.

Having understood this, he again approached his father Varuna and said, "Sir, teach me Brahman." Then he said to him, "Try to know Brahman through penance. For penance is the best means."

४. स तपोऽतप्यत । स तपस्तप्त्वा । मनो ब्रह्मेति व्यजानात् ।

तपसा ब्रह्म विजिज्ञासस्व । तपो ब्रह्मेति ॥

4. He went and performed penance. Having performed penance he understood that mind was Brahman. For it is from mind that these beings are born. It is through mind that, when born, they live, and it is mind that they enter on passing away.

Having understood this he again approached his father Varuna and said, "Sir, teach me Brahman."

Then he said to him, "Try to know Brahman through penance. For penance is the best means"

५. स तपोऽतप्यत । स तपस्तप्त्वा । विज्ञानं ब्रह्मेति व्यजानात् ।

वरुणं पितरमुपससार । अधीहि भगवो ब्रह्मेति । तं होवाच ।
तपसा ब्रह्म विजिज्ञासस्व । तपो ब्रह्मेति ॥

5. He went and performed penance. Having performed penance he understood that understanding was Brahman. For it is from understanding that these beings are born. It is by understanding that, when born, they live, and it is understanding that they enter on passing away.

Having understood this, he again approached his father Varuna and said, "Sir, teach me Brahman."

Then he said to him, "Try to know Brahman through penance. For penance is the best means."

६. स तपोऽतप्यत । स तपस्तप्त्वा । आनन्दो ब्रह्मेति व्यजानात् ।
आनन्दाद्ध्येव खल्विमानि भूतानि जायन्ते । आनन्देन जातानि

ष्ठति । अन्नवानन्नादो भवति । महान्भवति प्रजया पशुभिर्ब्रह्म-
वर्चसेन । महान्कीर्त्या ॥ . .

6. He went and performed penance. Having performed penance he understood that perfect bliss was Brahman. For it is from bliss that these beings are born. It is by bliss that, when born, they live, and it is bliss that they enter on passing away. This is the wisdom of Bhrigu and Varuna established in the highest heaven. He who knows this becomes well established. He becomes rich in food and enjoys his food. He becomes great in offspring and cattle and in the splendour of sacred knowledge and great in fame.

1. He who is here in man and He who is yonder in the sun—He is one.

He who knows this, when he has departed from this world, proceeds to the self which consists of food, proceeds thence to the self which consists of life, proceeds thence to the self which consists of mind, proceeds thence to the self which consists of understanding, proceeds thence to the self which consists of bliss and goes up and down the worlds eating the food he desires and assuming the forms he desires. He sits singing this song :—

2. Oh ! wonderful, wonderful, wonderful!
I am food, I am food, I am food !
I am the eater of food, I am the eater of food,
I am the eater of food !
I am the composer, I am the composer, I am the composer !
I am the first-born of the world-order !
Earlier than the gods, I was in the centre of the Immortal !
Whoso gives me away—he alone thus saves me.
And him who eats food by himself I eat as food.
I have overcome the world and like the glorious sun I shine !
He who knows this—This is the Upanishad !

१०. तन्मनसाजिघृक्षत्तन्नाशकनोन्मनसा ग्रहीतुं स यद्वैनन्मनसा-
ग्रहैष्यद्व्यात्वा हैवान्नमन्नस्यत् ॥

10. He then sought to seize it with his mind. He could not grasp it with his mind. If he had grasped it with his mind, then by merely thinking of food one would have been satisfied.

११. तदपानेनाजिघृक्षत्तदावयत् । सैषोऽन्नस्य ग्रहो यद्वायुरन्नायुर्वा
एष यद्वायुः ।

11. He then sought to seize it with his Apana (digestive breath). He got it. It is this breath that takes in food. It is this breath that lives on food.

१२. स ईक्षत कथं न्विदं महते स्यादिति स ईक्षत कतरेण प्रपद्या

यदि चक्षुषा दृष्टं यदि श्रोत्रेण श्रुतं यदि त्वचा स्पृष्टं यदि मनसा
ध्यातं यद्यपानेनाभ्यपानितं अथ कोऽहमिति ॥

12. He (the Atman) bethought himself, "Now can this thing (this person) live without me?" He bethought himself, "By which way shall I enter it?" He bethought himself, "If speaking is done by the organ of speech, breathing by breath, seeing by the eye, hearing by the ear, touching by the skin, thinking by the mind, eating by the Apana—then who am I?"

१३. स एतमेव सीमानं विदार्येतया द्वारा प्रापद्यत । सैषा विद्वति-
र्नाम द्वास्तदेतन्नान्दनं तस्य त्रय आवसथास्त्रयः स्वप्ना अयमाव-सथोऽयमावसथोऽयमावसथ इति ।

13. So cleaving asunder this end (of the head), He entered by that way. This is the opening known as Vidriti (the cleft). It is the place of bliss. For Him there are three abodes (in the body)—three states of sleep—this one, this one, and this one.

१४. स जातो भूतान्यभिव्यैख्यत्किमिहान्यं वावदिषदिति । स एतमेव पुरुषं ब्रह्म ततममपश्यदिदमदर्शमिति ॥

14. He (the Jiva), being born, knew and talked only of the created objects. How should he speak of any other? And then (after enlightenment) did he see this very Person, Brahman, the All-pervading and say "This have I seen."

II (Up. III. 1.)

१. कोऽयमात्मेति वयमुपास्महे कतरः स आत्मा येन वा पश्यति येन वा शृणोति येन वा गन्धानाजिघ्रति येन वा वाचं व्याकरोति येन वा स्वादु चास्वादु च विजानाति ॥

1. "Who is he whom we worship as Atman?" "Which one is Atman? Is it he by whom one sees, or by whom one hears, or by whom one smells the smell or by whom one speaks the speech, or by whom one knows the sweet and the unsweet?"

२. यदेतद्बुद्धयं मनश्चैतत् । संज्ञानमज्ञानं विज्ञानं प्रज्ञानं मेधा दृष्टिर्धृतिर्मतिर्मनीषा जूतिः स्मृतिः सङ्कल्पः कतुरसुः कामो वश इति । सर्वाण्येवैतानि प्रज्ञानस्य नामधेयानि भवन्ति ॥

2. "That which is known as the heart, the mind—that is, consciousness, perception, discrimination, intelligence, wisdom, insight, steadfastness, thought, acuteness, impulse, memory, volition, decision, life, desire, control—all these are, indeed, the names of Intelligence (Prajnana).

३. एष ब्रह्मैष इन्द्र एष प्रजापतिरेते सर्वे देवा इमानि च पञ्चमहा-

3. "This Brahma, this Indra, this Prajapati, these gods, these five great elements—earth, air, ether, water, fire—these things together with small creatures, and those of different origins—those born from an egg, those born from a womb, those born from sweat and those born from a sprout; horses, cows, men, elephants; and whatever breathing thing there is here, whether moving or flying, and whatever is stationary—all this is guided by intelligence, is based on intelligence. The world is guided by intelligence. Intelligence is the basis. Intelligence is Brahman."

४. स एतेन प्रज्ञेनात्मनास्माल्लोकादुत्क्रम्यामुष्मिन्स्वर्गे लोके सर्वा-

4. By means of this Intelligent Self he (Vamadeva) soared upward from this world and, having fulfilled all his desires in the yonder world of heaven, became immortal—yea, became immortal.

CHAPTER IX

छान्दोग्योपनिषत्

From the Chandogya-Upanishad

I (Up. I. 1.)

१. ओमित्येतदक्षरमुद्रीथमुपासीत। ओमिति ह्युद्गायति तस्योप-व्याख्यानम् ॥

1. One should meditate on the syllable Aum, called the Udgita, for the Udgita (a portion of the Sama Veda) is sung beginning with Aum. Of this syllable the explanation is :—

२. एषां भूतानां पृथिवी रसः पृथिव्या आपो रसः अपामोषधयो
रस ओषधीनां पुरुषो रसः पुरुषस्य वाग्रसो वाच ऋग्रस ऋचः
साम रसः साम्न उद्रीथो रसः ॥

2. The essence of things here is the earth ; the essence of the earth is water ; the essence of water is plants ; the essence of plants is man ; the essence of man is speech ; the essence of speech is the Rig Veda ; the essence of the Rig Veda is the Sama Veda ; and the essence of the Sama Veda is the Udgita.

३. स एष रसानां रसतमः परमः परार्थोऽष्टमो यदुद्रीथः ।

3. It is the best of all essences—the highest, the supreme, the eighth—namely* the Udgita.

४. तेनेयं त्रयी विद्या वर्तते । ओमित्याश्रावयत्योमिति शंसत्यो-
मित्युद्गायत्येतस्यैवाक्षरस्यापचित्ये माहम्ना रसेन ॥

4. By this does the threefold knowledge proceed ; saying Aum one recites, saying Aum one orders, and saying Aum one sings aloud—all in honour of that syllable with its greatness and its essence.

५. तेनोभौ कुरुतो यश्चैतदेवं वेद यश्च न वेद । नाना तु विद्या चाविद्या यदेव विद्यया करोति श्रद्धयोपनिषदा तदेव वीर्यवत्तरं भवतीति खल्वेतस्यैवाक्षरस्योपव्याख्यानं भवति ॥

5. He who understands it and he who does not—both perform the same sacrifice. But knowledge and ignorance are different. What one performs with knowledge, faith and meditation becomes more powerful. This indeed is the full explanation of this syllable.

II (Up. I. 2.)

१. देवासुरा ह वै यत्र संयेतिर उभये प्राजापत्यास्तद्ध देवा उद्गीथमाजहुरुनेनैनानभिभविष्याम इति ॥

1. When the gods and the demons, both descendants of Prajapati, contended with one another the gods took hold of the Udgita thinking, "With this we shall overcome them."

२. ते ह नासिक्यं प्राणमुद्गीथमुपासाञ्चक्रिरे तं हासुराः पाप्मना विविधुस्तस्मात्तेनोभयं जिघ्रति सुरभि च दुर्गन्धि च पाप्मना ह्येष विद्धः ॥

2. Then they meditated on the Udgita as the breath in the nose, but the demons pierced it with evil. Therefore one smells with it both the sweet-smelling and the foul-smelling, for it was pierced with evil.

३. अथ ह वाचमुद्गीथमुपासाञ्चक्रिरे तां हासुराः पाप्मना विविधुस्तस्मात्तेनोभयं वदति सत्यं चानृतं च पाप्मना ह्येषा विद्धा ॥

3. Then they meditated on the Udgita as speech; but the demons pierced it with evil. Therefore one speaks with it both truth and falsehood. For it was pierced with evil.

४. अथ ह चक्षुर्द्वीथमुपासाञ्चकिरे तद्वासुराः पाप्मना विविधुस्तस्मात्तेनोभयं पश्यति दर्शनीयं चादर्शनीयं च पाप्मना ह्येतद्विद्धम् ॥

4. Then they meditated on the Udgita as the eye, but the demons pierced it with evil. Therefore one sees with it both what is sightly and what is unsightly, for it was pierced with evil.

५. अथ ह श्रोत्रमुद्रीथमुपासाञ्चकिरे तद्वासुराः पाप्मना विविधुस्तस्मात्तेनोभयं श्रुणोति श्रवणीयं चाश्रवणीयं च पाप्मना ह्येतद्विद्धम् ॥

5. Then they meditated on the Udgita as the ear, but the demons pierced it with evil. Therefore one hears with it both what should be heard and what should not be heard, for it was pierced with evil.

६. अथ ह मन उद्रीथमुपासाञ्चकिरे तद्वासुराः पाप्मना विविधुस्तस्मात्तेनोभयं सङ्कल्पते सङ्कल्पनीयं चासङ्कल्पनीयं च पाप्मना ह्येतद्विद्धम् ॥

6. Then they meditated on the Udgita as the mind, but the demons pierced it with evil. Therefore one imagines with it both what should be imagined and what should not be imagined, for it was pierced with evil.

७. अथ ह य एवायं मुख्यः प्राणस्तमुद्रीथमुपासाञ्चकिरे तद्वासुरा ऋत्वा विध्वंसुर्यथाश्मानमाखणमृत्वा विध्वंसेतैवम् ॥

7. Then they meditated on the Udgita as the chief vital breath itself. When the demons came against it they were destroyed as one would be in dashing against a solid rock.

८. 'यथाश्मानमाखणमृत्वा विध्वंसत एवं हैव स विध्वंसते य एवं-
विदि पाप कामयते यश्चैनमभिदासति स एषोऽश्माखणः ॥

8. Just as a ball of earth striking against a solid rock is destroyed, so will one be destroyed who wishes evil to him who knows this or one who injures him, for he is a solid rock.

९. नैवैतेन सुरभि न दुर्गन्धि विजानात्यपहतपाप्मा ह्येष तेन
यदश्नाति यत्पिबति तेनेतरान्प्राणानवति । एतमु एवान्ततोऽऽ
विस्वोत्क्रामनि व्याददात्येवान्तत इति ॥

9. With this vital breath one does not discern either the sweet-smelling or the foul-smelling, for it is free from evil With this, whatever one eats or drinks, one supports the other vital breaths And, not having this in the end, one finally departs and leaves the mouth open.

१ त्रयो होद्गीथे कुशला बभूवुः शिलकः शालावत्यश्चैकितायनो
दालभ्यः प्रवाहणो जैवलिरिति ते होचुरुद्गीथे वै कुशलाः स्मो
हन्तोद्गीथे कथां वदाम इति ॥

1. There were once three men well-versed in the Udgita—Silaka Salavatya, Chaikitayana Dalbya and Pravahana Jaivali. They said, "We are indeed well-versed in the Udgita. Well, let us have a discussion on it."

२. तथेति ह समुपविशुः स ह प्रवाहणो जैवलिरुवाच
भगवन्तावग्रे वदतां ब्राह्मणयोर्वदतोर्वाच श्रोष्यामीति ॥

2. "So be it," said they and sat down Then Pravahana Jaivali said, "You two, sirs, speak first, for I wish to hear what two Brahmins have to say"

३. स ह शिलकः शालावत्यश्चैकितायनं दाल्भ्यमुवाच हन्त त्वा पृच्छानीति पृच्छेति होवाच ॥

3. Then Silaka Salavatya said to Chaikitayana Dalbhya, "Let me ask you."

"Ask," he replied.

४. का साझो गतिरिति स्वर इति होवाच स्वरस्य का गतिरिति प्राण इति होवाच प्राणस्य का गतिरित्यन्नमिति होवाचान्नस्य का गतिरित्याप इति होवाच ॥

4. "What is the origin (abode) of the Saman (Udgita)?"

"Tone," he replied.

"What is the origin of tone?"

"Breath," he replied.

"What is the origin of breath?"

"Food," he replied.

"What is the origin of food?"

"Water," he replied.

५. अपां का गतिरित्यसौ लोक इति होवाचामुष्य लोकस्य का गतिरिति न स्वर्गं लोकमतिनयेदिति होवाच स्वर्गं वयं लोकं सामाभिसंस्थापयामः स्वर्गसंस्तावं हि सामेति ॥

5. "What is the origin of water?"

"Yonder world," he replied.

"What is the origin of the yonder world?"

He replied, "One should not go beyond the world of heaven. We establish the Saman in the world of heaven, for the Saman is extolled in heaven."

६. तं हि शिलकः शालावत्यश्चैकितायनं दाल्भ्यमुवाचाप्रतिष्ठितं वै किल ते दाल्भ्य साम यस्त्वेतर्हि ब्रूयान्मूर्धा ते विपतिष्यतीति मूर्धा ते विपतेदिति ॥

6. Then Silaka Salavatya said to Chaikitayana Dalbhya, "Your Saman, O Dalbhya, is not firmly established. If now anyone were to say 'Your head shall fall off,' surely your head would fall off."

७. हन्ताहमेतद्भगवतो वेदानीति विद्धीति होवाचामुष्य लोकस्य का गतिरित्ययं लोक इति होवाचास्य लोकस्य का गतिरिति न प्रतिष्ठां लोकमतिनयेदिति होवाच प्रतिष्ठां वयं लोकं सामाभिसंस्थापयामः प्रतिष्ठासंस्तावं हि सामेति ।

7. "Well, then, let me know it from you, Sir," said Dalbhya.

"Know it," replied Silaka Salavatya.

"What is the origin of the yonder world?"

"This world," he replied.

"And what is the origin of this world?"

He replied, "One should not go beyond this world as its support. We establish the Saman in this world as its support, for the Saman is praised as the support."

८. तं ह प्रवाहणो जैवलिरुवाचान्तवद्वै किल ते शालावत्य सामयस्वेतर्हि ब्रूयान्मूर्धा ते विपतिष्यतीति मूर्धा ते विपतेदिति हन्ताहमेतद्भगवतो वेदानीति विद्धीति होवाच ॥

8. Then said Pravahana Jaivali to him, "Indeed, O Salavatya, your Saman has an end. If someone were now to say, 'Your head shall fall off,' surely your head would fall off."

"Well, then, let me know this from you, Sir."

"Know it," he replied.

९. अस्य लोकस्य का गतिरिति । आकाश इति होवाच सर्वाणि ह वा इमानि भूतान्याकाशादेव समुत्पद्यन्त आकाशं प्रत्यस्तं यान्त्यकाशो होवैभ्यो ज्यायानाकाशः परायणम् ॥

9. "What is the origin of this world?"

"Space," he replied. "For all these creatures take their rise from space, and they return to space."

Space is indeed greater than these. Space is the ultimate abode."

१०. स एष परोवरीयानुद्गीथः स एषोऽनन्तः परोवरीयसो ह लोका-
अयति य एतदेवं विद्वान्परोवरीयांसमुद्गीथमुपास्ते ॥

10. This indeed is the Udgita—the highest and the best. It is without an end. He who, knowing this, meditates on the Udgita, the highest and the best, becomes the highest and the best and obtains the highest and the best of worlds.

IV (Up. I. 10-11.)

१. मटचीहतेषु कुरुष्वाटिक्या सह जाययोषस्तिर्ह चाक्रायण
इभ्यग्रामे प्रद्राणक उवास ।

1. When the land of the Kurus was afflicted by a hailstorm, Ushasti Chakrayana lived as a beggar with his virgin wife at Ibhyagrama.

२. स हेभ्यं कुल्माषान्खादन्तं विभिक्षे तं होवाच । नेतोऽन्ये
विद्यन्ते यच्च ये म इम उपनिहिता इति ।

2. Seeing the chief of the village eating beans he begged of him. The chief said, "I have no other than these which are set before me."

३. एतेषां मे देहीति होवाच तानस्मै प्रददौ हन्तानुपानमि-
त्युच्छिष्टं वै मे पीतं स्यादिति होवाच ।

3. "Give me some of them," said he. He gave them to him and said, "Here is water to drink along." But he replied, "That would be drinking something that was left over and therefore unclean."

४. न स्विदेतेष्युच्छिष्टा इति न वा अजीविष्यमिमान्खाद-यन्निति होवाच कामो म उदकपानमिति ॥

4. "Were not these beans also left over and therefore unclean?" "No", he replied. "For I should not have lived if I had not eaten them, but the drinking of water would be my pleasure."

५. स ह खादित्वातिशेषाञ्जायाया आजहार साग्र एव सुभिक्षा बभूव तान्प्रतिगृह्य निदधा ॥

5. When he had eaten, he gave what still remained to his wife. But she had eaten well before. So she took them and kept them safe.

६. स ह प्रातः सञ्जिह्वान उवाच यद्वृत्तान्नस्य लभेमहि लभेमहि धनमात्रां राजासौ यक्ष्यते स मा सर्वेरात्रिविज्येर्वृणीतेति ॥

6. Next morning he arose and said, "Alas, if only we could get some food we might make some money, for the king over there is performing a sacrifice, he might choose me for all the priestly offices there."

७. तं जायोवाच हन्त पत इम एव कुलमाषा इति तान्खादित्वामुं यज्ञं विततमेयाय ॥

7. His wife said to him, "Look, my lord, here are those beans." Having eaten them he went over to the sacrifice which was being performed.

८. तत्रोद्गातृनास्तावे स्तोष्यमाणानुपोपविवेश स ह प्रस्तोता- रमुवाच ॥

8. There he sat down near the Udgatri priests who were about to sing the Stotra in the place assigned for the purpose. He said to the Prastotri priest :—

९. प्रस्तोतार्या देवता प्रस्तावमन्वायत्ता तां चेद्विद्वान्प्रस्तोष्यसि मूर्धो ते विपानेष्यतीति ॥

9. "O Prastotri, if you are going to sing the Prastava without knowing the deity which belongs to it your head will fall off."

१०. एवमेवोद्गातारमुवाचोद्गातर्या देवतोद्गीथमन्वायन्ता तां चेद्विद्वानुद्गास्यसि मूर्ध्ना ते विपतिष्यतीति ॥

10. Similarly, he said to the Udgatri priest, "O Udgatri, if you are going to sing the Udgita without knowing the deity which belongs to it, your head will fall off."

११. एवमेव प्रतिहर्तारमुवाच प्रतिहर्तर्या देवता प्रतिहारमन्वायन्ता तां चेद्विद्वान्प्रतिहरिष्यसि मूर्ध्ना ते विपतिष्यतीति । ते ह समारतास्तूष्णीमासाञ्चक्रिरे ॥

11. Similarly, he said to the Pratihatri priest "O Pratihatri, if you are going to sing the Pratihara without knowing the deity which belongs to it, your head will fall off." Then they stopped and sat in silence.

१२. अथ हैनं यजमान उवाच भगवन्तं वा अहं विविदिषाणीत्युषस्तिरस्मि चाक्रायण इति होवाच ॥

12. Thereupon the sacrificer said to him, "I should like to know who you are, Sir." He replied, "I am Ushasti Chakrayana."

१३. स होवाच भगवन्तं वा अहमेभिः सर्वैरात्विज्यैः पर्यैशिषं भगवतो वा अहमवित्त्यान्यानवृषि । भगवांस्त्वेव मे सर्वैरात्विज्यैरिति ॥

13. Then he said, "I looked for you, Sir, for all these priestly offices. But not finding you I have chosen others. Now, Sir, please take up all these offices for me."

१४. तथेत्यथ तर्हो न एव समतिसृष्टाः स्तुवतां । यावत्येभ्यो धनं दद्यास्तावन्मम दद्या इति तथैति ह यजमान उवाच ॥

14. "So be it," he said, "and let them with my permission sing the hymns. But you should give me as much money as you would give them." The sacrificer consented.

१५. अथ हैनं प्रस्तोतोपससाद् प्रस्तोतर्या देवता प्रस्तावमन्वायत्ता तां चेद्विद्वान्प्रस्तोष्यसि मूर्ध्ना ते विपतिष्यतीति मा भगवानवोचत्कतमा सा देवतेति ॥

15. Then the Prastotri priest approached him and said, "Sir, you said to me, 'O Prastotri, if you are going to sing the Prastava without knowing the deity which belongs to it, your head will fall off.' Which is that deity?"

१६. प्राण इति होवाच सर्वाणि ह वा इमानि भूतानि प्राणमेवाप्ति-
संविदन्ति प्राणमभ्युज्जिहते सैषा देवता प्रस्तावमन्वायत्ता तां
चेद्विद्वान्प्रस्तोष्यो मूर्ध्ना ते व्यपतिष्यत्तथोक्तस्य मयेति ।

16. "Life," said he. "For all beings enter into life and rise out of life. This is the deity belonging to the Prastava. If without knowing that deity you had sung the Prastava your head would have fallen off, after you had been warned by me."

१७. अथ हैनमुद्रातोपससादोद्रातर्या देवतोद्गीथमन्वायत्ता तांचे- द्विद्वानुद्रास्यसि मूर्ध्ना ते विपतिष्यतीति मा भगवानवोच-
त्कतमा सा देवतेति ॥

17. Then the Udgatri priest approached him and said, "Sir, you said to me, 'O Udgatri, if you are going to sing the Udgita without knowing the deity which belongs to it, your head will fall off.' Which is that deity?"

१८. आदित्य इति होवाच सर्वाणि ह वा इमानि भूतान्यादित्यं
उच्चैः सन्तं गायन्ति सैषा देवतोद्गीथमन्वायत्ता तां
चेद्विद्वानुद्गास्यो मूर्ध्ना ते व्यपतिष्यत्तथोक्तस्य मयेति ॥

18. "The sun," said he. "For all beings sing of the sun when he is up. This is the deity belonging to the Udgita. If without knowing that deity you had sung the Udgita your head would have fallen off, after you had been warned by me."

१९. अथ हैनं प्रतिहर्तौपससाद् प्रतिहर्तर्या देवता प्रतिहारमन्वायत्ता तां चेद्विद्वान्प्रतिहरिष्यसि मूर्धा ते व्यपतिष्यतीति मा भगवानवोचत्कतमा सा देवतेति ॥

19. Then the Pratihatri priest approached him and said, "Sir, you said to me, 'O Pratihatri, if you are going to sing the Pratihara without knowing the deity which belongs to it, your head will fall off.' Which is that deity?"

२०. अन्नमिति होवाच सर्वाणि ह वा इमानि भूतान्यन्नमेव प्रतिहरमाणानि जीवन्ति सैषा देवता प्रतिहारमन्वायत्ता तां चेद्विद्वान्प्रत्यहरिष्यो मूर्धा ते व्यपतिष्यत्तथोक्तस्य मयेति ॥

20. "Food," he said, "For all beings here live only when they partake of food. This is the deity belonging to the Pratihara. If without knowing that deity you had sung the Pratihara, your head would have fallen off, after you had been warned by me."

V (Up. III. 12.)

१. गायत्री वा इदं सर्वं भूतं यदिदं किञ्च वाग्वै गायत्री वाग्वा इदं सर्वं भूतं गायति च त्रायते च ॥

1. Verily, Gayatri is all this—whatever has been and whatever is here. Speech, verily, is Gayatri, for speech sings of and protects all that has come to be.

२. या वै सा गायत्रीयं वाव सा येयं पृथिव्यस्यां हीदं सर्वं भूतं प्रतिष्ठितमेतामेव नातिशीयते ॥

2. Verily, what this Gayatri is, that, verily, is what this earth is. For all that exists rests on the earth and does not go beyond it.

३. या वै सा पृथिवीयं वाव सा यदिदमस्मिन्पुरुषे शरीरम-
स्मिन्हीमे प्राणाः प्रतिष्ठिता एतदेव नातिशीयन्ते ॥

3. Verily, what this earth is, that, verily, is what the body is in man here. For in it are the vital breaths established and do not go beyond

४. यद्वै तत्पुरुषे शरीरमिदं वाव तद्यदिदमस्मिन्नन्तः पुरुषे
हृदयमस्मिन्हीमे प्राणाः प्रतिष्ठिता एतदेव नातिशीयन्ते ॥

4. Verily, what the body in man is, that, verily, is what the heart is within man. For in it are the vital breaths established and do not go beyond it.

५. सैवा चतुष्पदा षड्विधा गायत्री तदेतद्वचाभ्यनूक्तम् ।

5. This Gayatri has four feet and is sixfold. This is also declared by a Rik verse :—

६. तावानस्य महिमा ततो ज्यायाँश्च पूरुषः । पादोऽस्य
सर्वा भूतानि त्रिपादस्यामृतं दिवीति ॥

6. "Such is its power. But greater than that is the Purusha Himself. For all mortal beings are only a fourth part of Him. The other three parts are immortal and in heaven."

७. यद्वै तद्ब्रह्मेतीदं वाव तद्योऽयं बहिर्धा पुरुषादाकाशो यो
वै स बहिर्धा पुरुषादाकाशः ॥

7. Verily, what is called Brahman, that is what the space outside a person is, verily, that is what the space outside a person is.

८. अयं वाव स योऽयमन्तःपुरुष आकाशो यो वै सोऽन्तः
पुरुष आकाशः ॥

8. And that is again what the space inside a person is, verily, what the space inside a person is.

९. अयं वाव स योऽयमन्तर्हृदय आकाशस्तदेतत्पूर्णमप्रवर्ति
पूर्णमप्रवर्तिनीं श्रियं लभते य एवं वेद ॥

9. And what the space inside a person is, that, verily, is what the space here within the heart is. And that is the Perfect and Unchanging. He who knows this obtains perfect and unchanging happiness.

VI (Up. III. 13.)

१. अथ यदतः परो दिवो ज्योतिर्दीप्यते विश्वतः पृष्ठेषु
सर्वतः पृष्ठेष्वनुत्तमेषूत्तमेषु लोकेष्विदं वाव तद्यदिदम-
स्मिन्नन्तः पुरुषे ज्योतिः ॥

1. Now that light which shines above this heaven, higher than all, higher than everything, in the highest world, beyond which there are no other worlds, verily, that is the same as this light which is here within man.

२. तस्यैषा दृष्टिर्यत्रैतदग्निमङ्करीरे संस्पृशेन्नोष्णिमानो
विजानाति तस्यैषा श्रुतिर्यत्रैतत्कर्णावपिगृह्य निनदमिव
नदथुरिवाग्नेरिव ज्वलत उपशृणोति तदेतद्दृष्टं च श्रुतं
चेत्युपासीत चक्षुष्यः श्रुतो भवति य एवं वेद य एवं
वेद ॥

2. There is this visible proof of it as one perceives by touch the warmth in the body. There is this audible proof of it, as one hears, on closing one's ears, something like a rumbling sound or a bellowing or the sound of a blazing fire. One should meditate on this as that (Brahman) which is seen and heard. He who meditates thus becomes worthy of being seen and heard —yea, he who meditates thus.

VII (Up. III. 14.)

१. सर्वं खल्विदं ब्रह्म तज्जलानिति शान्त उपासीत । अथ
खलु क्रतुमयः पुरुषो यथाक्रतुरास्मिँल्लोके पुरुषो भवति
तथेतः प्रेत्य भवति स क्रतुं कुर्वीत ॥

1 Verily, all this is Brahman. Let a man meditate on it in tranquillity as that from which he came forth, to which he shall return and in which he breathes. Now, verily, a man is what he meditates. According as he meditates in this world he becomes on departing hence. So let him meditate thus :—

२. मनोमयः प्राणशरीरो भारूपः सत्यसङ्कल्प आकाशात्मा
सर्वकर्मा सर्वकामः सर्वगन्धः सर्वरसः सर्वमिद-
मभ्यात्तोऽवाक्यनादरः ।

2 He who consists of mind, whose body is life, whose form is light, whose will is truth, whose soul is space, who contains all works, all desires, all odours, all tastes, and who pervades the whole world—silent and unmoved—

३. एष म आत्माऽन्तर्हृदयेऽणीयान्त्रीहेर्वा यवाद्वा सर्षपाद्वा

2. His next forty-four years form the midday libation, for the Trishtubh metre has forty-four syllables and the midday libation is offered with a Trishtubh hymn.

३. अथ यान्यष्टाचत्वारिंशद्वर्षाणि तत्तृतीयसवनमष्टाचत्वा- रिंशदक्षरा जगती जागते तृतीयसवनम् ॥

3. Then his next forty-eight years form the third libation, for the Jagati metre has forty-eight syllables, and the third libation is offered with a Jagati hymn.

४. स यदृशिशिषति यत्पिपासति यन्न रमते ता अस्य दीक्षाः ॥

4. As he hungers and thirsts and abstains from pleasures—these constitute the preliminary rites of initiation.

५. अथ यदश्नाति यत्पिबति यद्रमते तदुपसद्वैरेति ॥

5. And as he eats and drinks and enjoys pleasures—he may be said to join in the Upasada ceremonies.

६. अथ यद्भक्षति यज्जक्षति यन्मैथुनं चरति स्तुतशस्त्रैरेव तदेति ॥

6. And as he laughs and eats and indulges in sexual pleasures, he may be said to join in the chants and recitations.

७. अथ यत्तपो दानमार्जवमहिंसा सत्यवचनमिति ता अस्य दक्षिणाः ॥

7. And his austerities, alms-giving, uprightness, non-violence and truthfulness—these constitute the gifts to the priests.

८. तन्मरणमेवावभृतः

8. His death is the final ablution.

8. "Next follows the explanation of the Infinite as the Self. The Self indeed is below. The Self is above. The Self is behind. The Self is in front. The Self is to the south. The Self is to the north. The Self indeed is all this.

"Verily, he who sees this, who thinks this, who understands this—he loves the Self, he delights in the Self, he merges in the Self, he rejoices in the Self—he becomes a Self-ruler, he has unlimited freedom in all the worlds. But those who think differently from this have others for their rulers. They live in perishable worlds and have no freedom in all the worlds.

10. "On this there is the following verse :—

'He who sees this does not see death, nor illness nor sorrow. He who sees this sees everything and obtains everything-everywhere.

'He is one (before creation); he becomes three; he becomes five; he becomes seven; he becomes nine. Then again he is said to be eleven, also a hundred and eleven and also a thousand and twenty.'

When what one takes in is purified, one's nature is purified. When nature becomes pure memory becomes firm. And on the acquisition of such memory all ties of the heart are loosened."

Thus does the venerable Sanatkumara show to Narada, after the faults of the latter have been removed, the further shore of darkness. They call him Skanda, yea, they call him Skanda.

1. The Self is a bank, a boundary that preserves these worlds. Day and night do not reach that bank—neither old age nor death, neither grief, nor good nor evil deeds. From it all evils turn back, for the world of Brahman is one where sin is vanquished.

1. The Self which is free from sin, free from old age, free from death, free from grief, free from hunger and thirst, whose desire is Reality, whose will is Truth—it is that which one has to seek, it is that which one has to know. He who has found out that Self and understands it—he obtains all worlds and all desires.” Thus spoke Prajapati (Lord of creatures).

2. The gods and the demons both heard this and said, “Let us seek that Self, by seeking which one obtains all worlds and all desires.” Then Indra from among the gods and Vairochana from among the demons went to him ; and both of them, without communicating with each other, came into the presence of Prajapati, fuel in hand.

They replied, "Sir, people declare this to be your speech :—

'The Self which is free from sin, free from old age, free from death, free from grief, free from hunger and thirst, whose desire is Reality, whose will is Truth—it is that which one has to seek, it is that which one has to know. 4. Then Prajapati said to them, "The person that is seen in the eye—that is the Self I spoke of, that is the immortal, the fearless. That is Brahman."

"But, Sir, he who is perceived in the water and he who is perceived in a mirror—who is he?"

"It is he himself that is perceived in all these," he replied.

They now adorned themselves, put on their best clothes, tidied themselves and looked into the pan of water.

"That is the Self, that is the immortal, the fearless. That is Brahman," he said.

They both went away satisfied in their hearts.

8. And Prajapati, looking after them, said, "They both are going away without having perceived and without having known the Self. Whoever of the two, be they gods or demons, will follow this doctrine shall perish."

Then Virochana, satisfied in his heart, went to the demons and preached that doctrine to them—that the self (the body) alone is to be worshipped, that the self (the body) alone is to be served and that he who worships that self and serves that self gains both the worlds—this world and the next.

9. Therefore even now they call a man who does not give alms here, who has no faith and who offers no sacrifices, a demon, for this is the doctrine of the demons. They adorn the body of the deceased with perfume, flowers and fine clothes and ornaments and think that thereby they will win the other world.

18. Then Prajapati said to him, "O Maghavat, this body is indeed mortal, it is always held by death. But it is the support of the Self which is immortal and bodiless. The Self, when it is in the body, is subject to pleasure and pain. So long as he is in the body he cannot be free from pleasure and pain. But when he is bodiless, then neither pleasure nor pain touches him.

Now as these, when they arise from yonder space and reach the highest light, appear each in its own form—even so does that serene being, when he rises up from this body and reaches the highest light, appear in his own form. He is then the Highest Person. He moves about there, laughing, playing, rejoicing with women, chariots or relatives, never remembering the appendage of this body. Like an animal bound to a cart, so is the spirit bound to this body.

He who is cognisant of 'Let me hear this,' he is the Self, the ear is for hearing. He who is cognisant of 'Let me think this', he is the Self, the mind is his divine eye. He (the Self) rejoices, seeing these pleasures through his divine eye, namely the mind.

Brahma told this to Prajapati, Prajapati to Manu and Manu to mankind. He who has learnt the Veda from a family of teachers, according to rule, in the time left over from doing service to the teacher, and who, after coming back again, has settled down in a home of his own, keeping up the memory of what he has learnt by repeating it regularly in some sacred spot and who has begotten virtuous sons and concentrated all his senses on the Self, never giving pain to any creatures except at specified holy places—he who behaves thus all through his life reaches the world of Brahman and does not return here again, yea, he does not return here again.

1. This Self is dearer than a son, dearer than wealth, dearer than all else, and is the innermost.

2. If one were to say to a person, who speaks of anything else than the Self as dear, that he will lose what he holds dear, very likely he would. One should worship the Self alone as dear. He who worships the Self as dear—the object of his love will not perish.

4. Verily, in the beginning this was Brahman. It knew itself only as "I am Brahman." Therefore it became all. And whoever among the gods became awakened to this—he indeed became that. And the same was the case with Rishis, the same with men. Seeing this indeed, the Rishi Vamadeva knew himself, "I was Manu, I was the sun too." It is so even now. Whoever knows, "I am Brahman," he becomes all. Even the gods cannot prevent his becoming this, for he himself has become their Self.

5. So if a man worships another deity thinking that the deity is one and he another, he does not know. He is like an animal to the gods. As many animals serve a man, so does he serve the gods. Even if one animal is taken away it causes displeasure. How much more then when many are taken? Therefore it is not pleasing to the gods that men should know this.

If anyone departs from this world without realising his own world (the Self), it, being unknown, does not protect him, as the Vedas not studied or as a deed not done do not protect him. Even if anyone who does not know the Self should perform in this world some great and holy work, it would perish for him in the end. One should meditate on the Self only as one's true world. If a man meditates on the Self only as his true world his work does not perish, for out of that very Self he creates whatsoever he desires.

24. Then Maitreyi said, "Here you have bewildered me, sir, by saying that when he is gone there is no more consciousness."

But Yajnavalkya replied, "Surely, I am not saying anything bewildering. It is wisdom enough, my dear. For when there is duality, as it were, then one smells another, one sees another, one hears another, one speaks to another, one thinks of another, one understands another. But when everything has become the Self then by what and whom should one smell, by what and whom should one see, by what and whom should one hear, by what and to whom should one speak, by what and of whom should one think, and by what and whom should one understand? By what should one know that by which all this is known? By what, my dear, should one know the knower?"

1. Janaka, the king of the Videhas, performed a sacrifice at which many presents were offered. The Brahmins of the Kurus and the Panchalas had gathered there, and Janaka desired to know which of those Brahmins was the most learned in scriptures. So he enclosed a thousand cows and to the horns of each cow were fastened ten padas of gold.

2. He said to them, "Venerable Brahmins, he who is the wisest Brahmin among you—let him take away these cows."

Those Brahmins durst not do so. Then Yajnavalkya said to his pupil, "My dear Samasrava, please drive these home." He drove them away. The Brahmins were enraged, "How does he dare to call himself the wisest Brahmin among us ?"

Thereupon Asvala, the Hotri priest, determined to question him.

Then Jaratkara Artabhagā questioned him.

Then Bhujya Lahyayani questioned him.

5. Ushasta Chakrayana then said, "You have explained this only as one might say 'Such and such is a cow or such and such is a horse'. Explain to me the Brahman which is immediately present and directly perceived and which is the self within all beings."

"It is your self which is within all beings."

"Which self is within all beings, O Yajnavalkya?"

"You cannot see the seer of seeing, you cannot hear the hearer of hearing, you cannot think the thinker of thinking, you cannot understand the understander of understanding. He is your self which is within all beings. Everything else is of evil."

"He who transcends hunger and thirst, grief and delusion, decay and death. When Brahmins know this Self and have risen above the desire for sons, for wealth and for the worlds, they wander about as mendicants."

7. Then Gargi Vachaknavi asked him, "Yajnavalkya," said she, "since all this here is woven, like warp and woof, in water, in what indeed is water woven like warp and woof?"

"In air, O Gargi."

"In what, then, is the air woven like warp and woof?"

"In what, then, are the worlds of Brahman woven like warp and woof?"

He said, "O Gargi, do not ask too much, lest your head should fall off. You are asking too much, indeed, about a divinity about which one should not ask too much. So do not ask too much, O Gargi."

8. Then Uddalaka Aruni questioned him :—

"Yajnavalkya," said he. "We lived in the country of Madra in the house of Patanchala Kapya, studying the scriptures on sacrifices. His wife was possessed of a Gandharva. We asked him, 'Who are you?' He answered, 'I am Kabandha Atharvana.' And he said to Patanchala Kapya and to the students of sacrifices, 'Do you know, O Kapya, the thread (force) by which this world, the other world and all beings are held together?' And Patanchala Kapya replied, 'I do not know it, Sir.' He said again to Patanchala Kapyā and to the students of sacrifices, 'Do you know, O Kapyā, the inner controller, who from within controls this world, the other world and all beings ?' And Patanchala Kapyā replied, 'I do not know, sir.' He said again to Patanchala Kapyā and to the students of sacrifices, 'He who knows that thread, O Kapyā, and that inner controller—he knows Brahman, he knows the worlds, he knows the gods, he knows the Vedas, he knows the beings, he knows the Self, he knows everything.'

"Then he explained it to them. I know it. If you, O Yajnavalkya, without knowing that thread and that inner controller, take away those cows that belong only to the knowers of Brahman, your head will fall off."

"I know, O Gautama, that thread and that inner controller."

"Anyone might say, 'I know, I know'. Tell us what you know."

He replied quoting this very Nivid, 'As many as are mentioned in the Nivid of the hymn of praise addressed to all the gods, namely, three hundred and three, and three thousand and three.'

"Yes", said he, "but how many gods are there really, O Yajnavalkya ?"

"Thirty-three", he said.

40. "Yes" said he, "but who are those three hundred and three, and three thousand and three?"

"They are only their various powers," said he. "There are in reality only thirty-three gods."

"Who are those thirty-three?"

"The eight Vasus, the eleven Rudras, the twelve Adityas. They make thirty-one, and Indra and Prajapati make thirty-three."

But those Brahmanas did not dare (to say anything).

43. Then he questioned them with these verses :—

१. यथा वृक्षो वनस्पतिस्तथैव पुरुषोऽमृषा ।

"(1) As is a mighty tree in the forest, so indeed is man ; his hair are the leaves, and his skin the outer bark.

२. त्वच एवास्य रुधिरं प्रस्यन्दि त्वच उत्पटः ।

तस्मात्तदा तृणत्प्रैति रसो वृक्षादिवाऽऽहतात् ॥

- (2) From his skin flows forth blood, from its bark the sap. Therefore blood comes forth from a wounded man as sap does from a tree that is struck.

३. मांसान्यस्य शकराणि किनाटं स्नाव तत्स्थिरम् ।

अस्थीन्यन्तरतो दारुणि मज्जा मज्जोपमा कृता ॥

- (3) His flesh is its inner bark, his nerves are tough like its fibres. His bones are its wood within, and his marrow is made resembling its pith.

४. यद्वृक्षो वृक्णो रोहति मूलान्नवतरः पुनः ।

मर्त्यः स्विन्मृत्युना वृक्णः कस्मान्मूलात्प्ररोहति ॥

- (4) A tree, when it is felled, springs up from its root in a newer form. But from what root does man spring forth when he is cut off by death ?

५. रेतस इति मा वोचत जीवनस्तत्प्रजायते ।

धानारुह इव वै वृक्षोऽञ्जसा प्रेत्य सम्भवः ॥

- (5) Do not say 'from the seed', for that is produced from the living ; a tree also springs from the seed. But after it is dead it certainly springs up again.

६. यत्समूलमावृहेयुर्वृक्षं न पुनराभवेत् ।

मर्त्यः स्विन्मृत्युना वृक्णः कस्मान्मूलात्प्ररोहति ॥

- (6) If a tree is pulled out with its root it does not grow again. From what root does man spring forth when he is cut off by death ?

१. जात एव न जायते को न्वेन जनयेत्युनः ।
विज्ञानमानन्दं ब्रह्म रातिर्दातुः परायणं तिष्ठमानस्य

(7) Born already ? No, he is born again.
And who indeed creates him again ?”

Brahman—that which is knowledge and bliss—that is the supreme goal of him who offers gifts and of him who stands still and knows it.

37. "He who consists of knowledge among the senses, he is verily the great unborn Self. In the space within the heart lies the controller of all, the lord of all, the ruler of all. He does not become greater by good works, nor smaller by evil works. He is the bank that serves as a boundary to keep the different worlds apart. Him the Brahmanas seek to know by the study of the Vedā, by sacrifices, by gifts, by penance, by fasting. On knowing him only, one becomes an ascetic. Desiring him only as their world, mendicants leave their homes. It is because they know this that the sages of old did not wish for offspring. What shall we do with offspring, they said,—we who have attained this Self, this World? And they, having risen above the desire for sons, the desire for wealth, the desire for worlds, wander about as mendicants. For the desire for sons is the desire for wealth, and the desire for wealth is the desire for worlds. Both these are indeed desires only.

39. ³⁹This has been expressed in the following hymn :—

"The eternal glory of the knower of Brahman is not increased by work, nor is it diminished. Therefore one should know the nature of that alone. Having known it, one is not tainted by evil action."

"Therefore he who knows it as such, having become calm, self-controlled, withdrawn, patient and collected, sees the Self in his own self, sees all in the Self. Evil does not overcome him, he overcomes all evil. Evil does not burn him, he burns all evil. Free from evil, free from taint, free from doubt he becomes a true knower of Brahman. This is the world of Brahman, O King. You have attained it." So said Yajnavalkya.

"Sir, I give you the Videhas and myself also to serve you."

रेषु वर्तमानहे ब्रह्मविदोऽव्यवस्थाम् ॥

1. Those who discourse on Brahman say: What is the cause? Is it Brahman? Whence are we born? By what do we live? Where is our final rest? O ye who know Brahman, tell us, at whose command do we abide in pleasure or pain?

२. कालः स्वभावो नियतिर्यदृच्छा भूतानि योनिः पुरुष इति चिन्त्यम् । संयोग एषां नत्वात्मभावादात्माप्यनीशः सुखदुःखहेतोः ॥

2. Time, one's own nature, necessity, chance, the elements, the female womb, the male energy—should these be considered as the cause? It cannot be their combination either, because of the existence of the soul. But the soul also is powerless in respect of the cause of pleasure and pain.

३. ते ध्यानयोगानुगता अपश्यन्देवात्मशक्तिं स्वगुणैर्नि-
गूढाम् । यः कारणानि निखिलानि तान् कालात्मयुक्तान्य-धितिष्ठत्येकः ॥

3. Those who were devoted to meditation and concentration saw the power of God Himself, hidden in its own qualities. He is the One who presides over all these causes, from 'time' to the 'soul'.

४. सर्वाजीवे सर्वसंस्थे ब्रुहन्ते तस्मिन्हंसो भ्राम्यते ब्रह्मचक्रे।
पृथगात्मानं प्रेरितारं च मत्वा जुष्टस्तस्तेनामृतत्वमेति ॥

4. In this vast cosmic wheel in which all things live and rest the soul flutters about as long as it thinks that it is different from the Mover. But when it is blessed by Him then it gains immortality.

५. उद्गीतमेतत्परमं तु ब्रह्म तस्मिंस्त्रयं सुप्रतिष्ठाक्षरं च। अत्रान्तरं
ब्रह्मविदो विदित्वा लीना ब्रह्मणि तत्परा योनिमुक्ताः ॥

5. But what is sung (in the Vedas) is the Highest Brahman. In it there is the triad. And it is the firm support, it is the imperishable. The knowers of Brahman, by knowing what is therein, become devoted to it and are merged in Brahman, being freed from birth.

६. संयुक्तमेतत्क्षरमक्षरं च व्यक्ताव्यक्तं भरते विश्वमीशः।
अनीशश्चात्मा बध्यते भोक्तृभावाज्ज्ञात्वा देवं मुच्यते
सर्वपाशैः ॥

6. The Lord supports all this together—the perishable and the imperishable, the manifest and the unmanifest. And the soul, not being a lord, is bound because of its being an enjoyer. But when it knows the Lord it is freed from all fetters.

७. ज्ञाज्ञौ द्वावजावीशानीशावजा ह्येका भोक्तृभोगार्थयुक्ता।
अनन्तश्चात्मा विश्वरूपो ह्यकर्ता त्रयं यदा विन्दते ब्रह्ममेतत् ॥

7. There are two unborn ones—the knowing and the unknowing, the one all-powerful and the other powerless. And there is she—another unborn one—connecting the enjoyer and the enjoyed together. And there is the infinite Self of universal form who is inactive. When one finds out this triad—that is Brahman.

८. क्षरं प्रधानममृताक्षरं हरः क्षरात्मानावीशते देव एकः ।
तस्याभिध्यानाद्योजनात्तत्त्वभावाद्भूयश्चान्ते विश्वमायानिवृत्तिः

8. Perishable is matter, imperishable and immortal is the Lord. He, the only God, rules over both matter and the soul. By meditating on Him, by uniting with Him and becoming one with Him there is in the end complete cessation of the illusion of the world.

९. ज्ञात्वा देवं सर्वपाशापहानिः क्षीणैः क्लेशैर्जन्ममृत्युप्रहाणिः ।
तस्याभिध्यानात्तृतीयं देहभेदे विश्वैश्वर्यं केवलं आप्तकामः॥

9. When that God is known all fetters fall off, sufferings are destroyed and birth and death cease. By meditating on Him there arises, on the dissolution of the body, the third state, that of universal lordship. Being alone, he has his desire fulfilled.

१०. एतज्ज्ञेयं नित्यमेवाभिसंस्थं नातः परं वेदितव्यं हि
किञ्चित् । भोक्ता भोग्यं प्रेरितारं च मत्वा सर्वं प्रोक्तं
त्रिविधं ब्रह्ममेतत् ॥

10. The Eternal which dwells in the soul has to be, known. Beyond that there is nothing else to be known. By knowing the enjoyer, the object of enjoyment and the Ruler everything has been said. This is the threefold Brahman.

११. बह्वैर्यथा योनिगतस्य मूर्तिर्न दृश्यते नैव च लिङ्गनाशः
स भूय एवेन्धनयोनिगृह्यस्तद्वोभयं प्रणवेन देहे ॥

11. As the form of fire which is latent in the wood is not seen, nor that subtle form destroyed but may be seized again and again from the wood by means of a drill, so it is in both cases. The Self has to be seized in the body by means of the Pranava (the syllable Aum).

१२. स्वदेहमरणिं कृत्वा प्रणवं चोत्तरारणिम् ।
ध्याननिर्मथनाभ्यासादेवं पश्येन्निगूढवत् ॥

12. By making one's body the under-stick and the syllable Aum the upper-stick, one can, by practising the drill of meditation, see God like the hidden spark.

१३. तिलेषु तैलं दधिनीव सर्पिरापः स्रोतस्स्वरणीषु
चाग्निः । एवमात्माऽत्मनि गृह्यतेऽसौ सत्येनैनं तपसा
योऽनुपश्यति ॥

13. As oil in seeds, as butter in cream, as water in riverbeds, as fire in sticks of wood, so is the Self seized in one's own self, if one looks for Him with truthfulness and penance.

१४. सर्वव्यापिनमात्मानं क्षीरे सर्पिर्वापितम् । आत्मविद्या
तपोमूलं तद्ब्रह्मोपनिषत्परं तद्ब्रह्मोपनिषत्परमिति ॥

14. The Self which pervades all things, as butter is contained in milk, and which has its roots in self-knowledge and penance—that is Brahman. That is the highest Upanishad.

II (Up. II)

१. त्रिरुन्नतं स्थाप्य समं शरीरं हृदीन्द्रियाणि मनसा संनिरुध्य ।
ब्रह्मोद्बुधेन प्रतरेत् विद्वान्स्रोतांसि सर्वाणि भयावहानि ॥

1. Holding the body steady with its three upper parts (chest, neck and head) erect and drawing his senses together with the mind into his heart, a wise man should cross by means of the boat of Brahman all fearful streams.

२. प्राणान्प्रीड्येह संयुक्तचेष्टः क्षीणे प्राणे नासिकयो-
च्छ्वसीत । दुष्टाश्वयुक्तमिव वाहमेनं विद्वान्मनो
धारयेताप्रमत्तः ॥

2. Compressing his breath within the body, let the man who has controlled his movements breathe gently through his nose. Let the wise man vigilantly restrain his mind as he would a chariot yoked with vicious horses.

३. समे शुचौ शर्करावह्निवाल्मुकाविवर्जिते शब्दजलाश्रया- दिभिः । मनोनुकूले न तु चक्षुषीडने गुह्यानिवाता
श्रयणे प्रयोजयेत् ॥

3. Let him practice yoga in a place level and clean, free from pebbles, fire and dust, favourable to thought on account of its sounds, its waters and others, and not painful to the eye—in a sheltered retreat protected from the wind.

४. नीवारधूमाकानिलानलानां खद्योतविद्युत्स्फटिकाशनीनाम्
एतानि रूपाणि पुरःसराणि ब्रह्मण्यभिव्यक्तिकराणि योगे ॥

4. When yoga is being performed the forms which precede the manifestation of Brahman are—fog, smoke, sun, wind, fire, fire-flies, lightnings and a clear moon.

५. पृथ्व्यात्तेजोऽनिलखे समुत्थिते पञ्चात्मके योगगुणे प्रवृत्ते ।
न तस्य रोगो न जरा न मृत्युः प्राप्तस्य योगाग्निमयं शरीरम् ॥

5. When the five-fold quality of Yoga is produced, arising from earth, water, fire, air and ether—then there is no longer any sickness, no old age or death for him who has obtained a body produced by the fire of yoga.

६. लघुत्वमारोग्यमलोलुपत्वं वर्णप्रसादः स्वरसौष्टवं च ।
गन्धः शुभ्रो मृत्रपुरीषमल्पः योगप्रवृत्तिं प्रथमां वदन्ति ॥

6. Lightness, healthiness, steadiness, a clear complexion, a pleasant voice, a sweet smell and slight excretions—these, they say, are the first results of progress in yoga.

७. यथैव बिम्बं मृदयोपलिप्तं तेजोमयं भ्राजते तत्सुधान्तम् ।
तद्वात्मतत्त्वं प्रसमीक्ष्य देही एकः कृतार्थो भवते
वीतशोकः ॥

7. Even as a mirror tarnished by dust shines bright after it has been cleaned, so does an embodied being, when he has seen the nature of the Self, realise oneness, attain his end and become free from sorrow.

८. यदात्मतत्त्वेन तु ब्रह्मतत्त्वं दीपोपमेनेह युक्तः प्रपश्येत् ।
अजं ध्रुवं सर्वतत्त्वैर्विशुद्धं ज्ञात्वा देवं मुच्यते सर्वपाशैः ॥

8. And when by means of the nature of his own self he sees, as by a lamp, the nature of Brahman—then, having known God, who is unborn, eternal and free from all natures, he is released from all fetters.

९. एषो हि देवः प्रदिशोऽनु सर्वाः पूर्वो ह जातः स उ गर्भे
अन्तः । स एव जातः स जनिष्यमाणः प्रत्यङ्मनास्तिष्ठति
सर्वतोमुखः ॥

9. He indeed is the God who pervades all regions ; He is the first-born ; and He is within the womb. He has been born and He will be born. He is inside all persons, facing all directions.

१०. यो देर्वाऽग्नौ योऽप्सु यो विश्वं भुवनमाविवेश ।
य ओषधीषु यो वनस्पतिषु तस्मै देवाय नमो नमः ॥

10. The God who is in the fire, the God who is in the water, the God who has entered into the whole world, the God who is in herbs, the God who is in trees—adoration be to that God, adoration to Him !

III (Up. III)

१. य एको जालवानीशत ईशानीभिः सर्वाल्लोकानीशत
ईशानीभिः । य एवैक उद्भवे सम्भवे च य एतद्विदुरमृतास्ते
भवन्ति ॥

1. He who spreads the net and rules alone by his powers, who rules all the worlds by those powers and who is one and the same, while things arise and continue to be—they who know this become immortal.

२. एको हि रुद्रो न द्वितीयाय तस्थुर्य इमाँल्लोकानीशत
ईशानीभिः । प्रत्यङ्मनास्तिष्ठति संसृज्योक्तान्तकाले संसृज्य
विश्वं भुवनानि गोपाः ॥

2. There is only one Rudra who rules all the worlds by His powers—there is no second to stand beside Him. He stands behind all creatures, and after creating all the worlds, He the Protector, withdraws them at the end of time

३. विश्वतश्चक्षुरुत विश्वतोमुखो विश्वतो बाहुस्त विश्वत-
स्पात् । संबाहुभ्यां धमति संपतत्रैर्यावाभूमी जनयन्
देव एकः ॥

3. The one God, who has his eyes, his faces, his arms and his feet on every side, creating heaven and earth, forges them together with his arms and wings.

४. ततः परं ब्रह्म परं बृहन्तं यथानिकायं सर्वभूतेषु गूढम् ।
विश्वस्यैकं परिवेष्टितारमीशं तं ज्ञात्वाऽमृता भवन्ति ॥

4. Higher than this is the supreme, infinite Brahman hidden in the bodies of all creatures—the One enveloping the universe. Knowing him to be the Lord one becomes immortal.

५. यस्मात्परं नापरमस्तिकिञ्चिद्यस्मान्नाणीयो न ज्यायोऽस्ति
कश्चित् । वृक्ष इव स्तब्धो दिवि तिष्ठत्येकस्तेनेदं पूर्णं पुरुषेण
सर्वम् ॥

5. The whole universe is filled by this Purusha, to whom there is nothing superior, from whom there is nothing different, than whom there is nothing smaller or larger and who stands alone fixed like a tree in the sky.

६. ततो यदुत्तरतरं तदरूपमनामयम् । य एतद्विदुरमृतास्ते
भवन्ति अथेतरे दुःखमेवापियन्ति ॥

That which is beyond this world is without form and without suffering. Those who know it become immortal, but others suffer only misery.

७. सर्वाननशिरोग्रीवः सर्वभूतगुहाशयः ।
सर्वव्यापी भगवांस्तस्मात्सर्वगतः शिवः ॥

7. He who is in the faces, the heads and the throats of all, He who dwells in the hearts of all beings and who is all-pervading—He is the Lord and therefore He is the omnipresent Siva.

८. महान्प्रभुर्वै पुरुषः सत्वस्यैष प्रवर्तकः । सुनिर्मलामिमां
प्राप्तिमीशानो ज्योतिरव्ययः ॥

8. That person is indeed the great Lord; He is the impeller of the mind for reaching the purest state; He is the Ruler, the Imperishable Light.

९. अङ्गुष्ठमात्रः पुरुषोऽन्तरात्मा सदा जनानां हृदये संनिविष्टः
हृदा मनीषा मनसाभिकल्पो य एतद्विदुरमृतास्ते भवन्ति ॥

9. That Person, who is of the measure of a thumb, is the inner self dwelling in the hearts of men, limited by the heart, the understanding and the mind. Those who know this become immortal.

१०. सर्वतः पाणिपादं तत्सर्वतोऽक्षिशिरोमुखम् ।

सर्वतः श्रुतिमल्लोके सर्वमावृत्य तिष्ठति ॥

10. Its hands and feet are everywhere, its eyes and heads are everywhere, its ears are everywhere. It stands encompassing all in the world.

११. सर्वेन्द्रियगुणाभासं सर्वेन्द्रियविवर्जितम् ।

सर्वस्य प्रभुमीशानं सर्वस्य शरणं बृहत् ॥

11. Reflecting the qualities of all the senses and yet devoid of all the senses, it is the Lord and the Ruler of all, it is the great refuge of all.

१२. नवद्वारे पुरे देही हंसो लेलायेत बहिः ।

वशी सर्वस्य लोकस्य स्थावरस्य चरस्य च ॥

12. The embodied spirit in the city of nine gates sports in the outside world, controlling the whole of it, both the moving and the unmoving.

१३. अपाणिपादो जवनो ग्रहीता पश्यत्यचक्षुः स शृणोत्यकर्णः ।

स वेत्ति वेद्यं न च तस्यास्ति वेत्ता तमाद्गुर्यं पुरुषं, महान्तम् ॥

13. Grasping without hands, hasting without feet, He sees without eyes and hears without ears. He knows whatever there is to be known, but of Him there is no one who knows. They call Him the Primal, the Supreme Person.

१४. अणोरणीयान्महतो महीयानात्मा गुह्यायां निहितोऽ-

स्य जन्तोः । तमक्रतुः पश्यति वीतशोको धातुः प्रसादान्म-हिमानमीशम् ॥

14. Subtler than the subtle, greater than the great, the Self is hidden in the heart of the creature. By the grace of the Lord one sees Him who is actionless, sees His majesty, and becomes freed from sorrow,

IV (Up. IV)

१. ऋचोऽक्षरे परमे व्योमन्यस्मिन्देवा अचिविश्वे निषेदुः ।
यस्तं न वेद किमुचा करिष्यति य इत्तद्विदुरमृतास्ते
भवन्ति ॥

1. He who does not know that indestructible Being of the Rig Veda in which all the gods in the highest heaven reside—of what use is the Rig Veda to him? Those only who know it become immortal.

२. छन्दांसि यज्ञाः क्रतवो व्रतानि भूतं भव्यं यच्च वेदा
वदन्ति । अस्मान्मायी सृजते विश्वमेतत्तस्मिन्श्चान्यो
मायया संनिरुद्धः ॥

2. It is out of this (Being) that the Maker sends forth all these—the Vedas, the sacrifices, the rituals, the observances, the past, the future, and all that the Vedas declare. And it is in this that the other (the soul) is bound up through Maya.

३. मायां तु प्रकृतिं विद्यान्मायिनं च महेश्वरम् ।
तस्यावयवभूतैस्तु व्याप्तं सर्वमिदं जगत् ॥

3. Know that Nature is Maya and that the wielder of Maya is the Great Lord. This whole world is filled with beings that are parts of Him.

४. यो योनिं योनिमधितिष्ठत्येको यस्मिन्निदं सं च विचैति
सर्वम् । तमीशानं वरदं देवमीड्यं निचाय्येमां शान्ति-
मत्यन्तमेति ॥

4. The One who rules over every single cause, in whom all this comes together and goes asunder again, who is the lord, the bestower of blessings, the adorable God—by discerning Him one attains to the eternal peace.

५. यो देवानां प्रभवश्चोद्भवश्च विश्वाधिपो रुद्रो महर्षिः ।
हिरण्यगर्भं पश्यत जायमानं स नो बुद्ध्या शुभया संयुनक्तु ।

5. He who is the source and support of the gods, the ruler of all, Rudra, the great Seer who beheld the world-soul when it was born—may He endow us with good thoughts !

६. यो देवानामधिपो यस्मिंल्लोका अधिष्ठिताः ।
य ईशोऽस्य द्विपदश्चतुष्पदः तस्मै देवाय हविषा विधेम ॥

6. He who is the sovereign of the gods and in whom the worlds rest, he who rules over all two-footed and four-footed creatures—to that God let us offer our oblations.

७. सूक्ष्मातिसूक्ष्मं कलिलस्य मध्ये विश्वस्य स्रष्टारमनेकरूपं ।
विश्वस्यैकं परिवेष्टितारं ज्ञात्वा शिवं शान्तिमत्यन्तमेति ॥

7. He who is subtler than the subtle, who in the midst of chaos has created all things of manifold forms, who alone envelops everything—by knowing Him as the auspicious Lord one attains peace for ever.

८. स एव कालो भुवनस्य गोप्ता विश्वाधिपः सर्वभूतेषु गूढः
यस्मिन् युक्ता ब्रह्मर्षयो देवताश्च तमेवं ज्ञात्वा मृत्यु-
पाशाच्छिन्नन्ति ॥

8. He is indeed the guardian of this world in time, the Lord of all, hidden in all things. In Him are united the seers of Brahman as well as the gods. By knowing Him one cuts the cords of death.

९. घृतात्परं मण्डमिवातिसूक्ष्मं ज्ञात्वा शिवं सर्वभूतेषु गूढम् ॥
विश्वस्यैकं परिवेष्टितारं ज्ञात्वा देवं मुच्यते सर्वपाशैः ॥

9. The blessed Lord who is hidden in all beings who is exceedingly fine like the film over melted butter, the God who alone pervades the universe—by knowing Him one is freed from all bonds.

१०. एष देवो विश्वकर्मा महात्मा सदा जनानां हृदये संनिविष्टः।
हृदा मनीषा मनसाऽभिक्लृप्तो य एतद्विदुरमृतास्ते
भवन्ति ॥

10. That God who is the maker of all things, the great Self always dwelling in the heart of man, is limited by the heart, the understanding and the mind. They who know it become immortal.

११. यदास्तमस्तन्न दिवा न रात्रिः न सन्नचासच्छिव एव
केवलः। तदक्षरं तत्सवितुर्वरेण्यं प्रज्ञा च तस्मात्प्रसृता
पुराणी ॥

11. When the darkness is gone, then there is neither day nor night, neither being nor non-being. The blessed Lord (Siva) alone is there. That is the eternal, the adorable light of Savitr, and from that has proceeded the ancient wisdom.

१२. नैनमूर्ध्वं न तिर्यञ्चं न मध्ये परिजग्रभत्।
न तस्य प्रतिमा अस्ति यस्य नाम महद्यशः ॥

12. No one has grasped him above or across or in the middle. There is none equal to Him whose name is Great Glory.

१३. न संदृशे तिष्ठति रूपमस्य न चक्षुषा पश्यति कश्चनैनम्।
हृदा हृदिस्थं मनसा य एनमेवं विदुरमृतास्ते भवन्ति ॥

13. His form cannot be seen; no one sees Him with the eye. Those who through the heart and the mind know Him who is abiding in the heart become immortal,

१४. अजात इत्येवं कश्चिद्भीरुः प्रपद्यते ।

रुद्र यत्ते दक्षिणं मुखं तेन मां पाहि नित्यम् ॥

14. "Thou art the unborn"—with these words one approaches Thee trembling. O Rudra, may Thy gracious face protect me for ever !

V (Up. V)

१. द्वे अक्षरे ब्रह्मपरे त्वनन्ते विद्याविद्ये निहिते यत्र गूढे ।
क्षरं त्वविद्या ह्यमृतं तु विद्या विद्याविद्ये ईशते यस्तु
सोऽन्यः ॥

1. In the imperishable, infinite and highest Brahman are hidden the two—knowledge and ignorance. Ignorance is perishable, while knowledge is immortal. But he who controls both knowledge and ignorance is another.

२. यो योनिं योनिमधितिष्ठत्येको विश्वानि रूपाणि योनीश्च
सर्वाः । ऋषिं प्रसूतं कपिलं यस्तमग्रे ज्ञानैर्बिभर्ति जायमानं
च पश्येत् ॥

2. It is He who, being one only, rules over every single source, rules over all forms and over all causes. It is He who in the beginning bears in His thoughts and beholds, when born, the fiery seer.

३. एकैकं जालं बहुधा विकुर्वन्नस्मिन्क्षेत्रे संहृत्येष देवः
भूयः सृष्ट्वा पतयस्तथेशः सर्वाधिपत्यं कुरुते महात्मा ॥

3. That God, after spreading out one net after another in various ways, withdraws them again into their own ground. The Lord, the great Self, having further created His chiefs, exercises His lordship over them all.

४. सर्वा दिश ऊर्ध्वमधश्च तिर्यक्प्रकाशयन्भ्राजते यद्वनङ्गान् ।
एवं स देवो भगवान्वरेण्यो योनिस्वभावानधितिष्ठत्येकः ॥

4. Even as the sun shines, lighting up all regions—above, below and across—so does that one God, glorious and adorable, rule over all creatures born from the womb.

५. यच्च स्वभावं पचति विश्वयोनिः पाच्यांश्च सर्वान्परिणामयेद्यः । सर्वमेतद्विश्वमधितिष्ठत्येको गुणांश्च सर्वान्विनियोजयेद्यः ॥

5. He is the source of all, developing each according to its nature and bringing into maturity all that can be developed. He is the one who distributes all qualities and rules over the whole world.

६. यद्वेदगुह्योपनिषत्सु गूढं तद्ब्रह्मा वेदयते ब्रह्मयोनिम् ।
पूर्वं देवा ऋषयश्च तद्विदुस्ते तन्मया अमृता वै बभूवुः ॥

6. That which is hidden in the mystic Upanishads of the Veda—Brahma knows it is the source of himself. The gods and seers of old who knew it came to partake of its nature and became immortal.

७. गुणान्वयो यः फलकर्मकर्ता कृतस्य तस्यैव स चोपभोक्ता । स विश्वरूपस्त्रिगुणस्त्रिवर्त्मा प्राणाधिपः सञ्चरति स्वकर्मभिः ।

7. But he who is endowed with qualities and is the doer of deeds which are to bear fruit—he indeed enjoys the reward of whatever he has done. Led by the three qualities and assuming all forms, and following the three paths, he, being the lord of his own life, migrates according to his own works.

८. अङ्गुष्ठमात्रो रवितुल्यरूपः सङ्कल्पाहङ्कारसमन्वितो यः ।
बुद्धेर्गुणेनात्मगुणेन चैव आराग्रमात्रोप्यपरोऽपि दृष्टः ॥

8. He is of the size of a thumb, but brilliant like the sun. He is endowed with a will and self-consciousness. With the qualities of mind and the qualities of the body he is seen small like the point of a goad.

९. बालाग्रशतभागस्य शतधा कल्पितस्य च ।
भागो जीवः स विज्ञेयः स चानन्त्याय कल्पते ॥

9. This living soul is to be known as a part of the hundredth part of the point of a hair divided a hundredfold, and yet it is potentially infinite.

१०. नैव स्त्री न पुमानेष न चैवायं नपुंसकः ।
यद्यच्छरीरमादत्ते तेन तेन स युज्यते ॥

10. It is neither female nor male, nor yet is it neuter. Whatever body it takes, with that it is joined.

११. सङ्कल्पनस्पर्शनदृष्टिमोहैर्ग्रासांबुवृष्ट्यात्मविवृद्धिजन्म ।
कर्मानुगान्यनुक्रमेण देही स्थानेषु रूपाण्यभिसंप्रपद्यते ॥

11. The embodied soul has its birth and development determined by its thought, touch, sight and passions, as well as by the food and drink that have been poured in. According to its deeds it successively assumes various forms in various places.

१२. स्थूलानि सूक्ष्माणि बहूनि चैव रूपाणि देही स्वगुणै-
र्वृणोति । क्रियागुणैरात्मगुणैश्च तेषां संयोगहेतुरपरोपि दृष्टः ॥

12. According to its own qualities the embodied soul chooses many shapes—gross or subtle. Having itself caused its union with them it is seen as another, through the qualities of those bodies as well as of their acts.

१३. अनाद्यनन्तं कलिलस्य मध्ये विश्वस्य स्रष्टारमनेकरूपम् ।
विश्वस्यैकं परिवेष्टितारं ज्ञात्वा देवं मुच्यते सर्वपाशैः ॥

13. He who has neither beginning nor end, who in the midst of chaos has created all things and who, having many forms, pervades alone the universe—knowing Him one is freed from all fetters.

१४. भावग्राह्यमनीडाख्यं भावाभावकरं शिवम् ।
कलासर्गकरं देवं ये विदुस्ते जहुस्तनुम् ॥

14. He who is to be grasped by the mind, who is said to be incorporeal, who makes alike existence and non-existence—that blessed God, the Maker of creation and its parts—those who know Him have left their bodies behind.

VI (Up. VI)

१. स्वभावमेके कवयो वदन्ति कालं तथान्ये परिमुह्यमानाः ।
देवस्यैष महिमा तु लोके येनेदं भ्राम्यते ब्रह्मचक्रम् ॥

1. ' Some wise men, being deluded, speak of Nature (as the first Cause), others likewise of Time. But it is by the power of God that this cosmic wheel is made to turn.

२. येनावृतं नित्यमिदं हि सर्वं ज्ञः कालकालो गुणी सर्वविद्यः ।
तेनेशितं कर्म विवर्ततेहं पृथिव्यप्तेजोनिलखानि चिन्त्यम् ॥

2. He who always envelops this world, who is the knower and the author of time, who is the possessor of qualities and of all knowledge—it is by His command that this work of creation unfolds itself—that which is regarded as earth, water, fire, air and ether.

३. न तस्य कार्यं करणं च विद्यते न तत्समश्चाभ्यधिकश्च
दृश्यते । परास्य शक्तिर्विविधैव श्रूयते स्वाभाविकी ज्ञान-
बलक्रिया च ॥

3. There is no action and no organ of His to be found. There is not seen His equal or His better. His high power is revealed, indeed, in various ways, and the working of His knowledge and strength is inherent in Him.

४. न तस्य कश्चित्पतिरस्ति लोके न चेशिता नैव च तस्य
लिङ्गम् । स कारणं करणाधिपाधिपो न चास्य कश्चिज्ज-
निता न चाधिपः ॥

4. There is no master of His in the world, no ruler and not even a sign of Him. He is the cause, the Lord of the powers that rule the sense-organs, and there is for Him neither a parent nor a lord.

५. एको देवः सर्वभूतेषु गूढः सर्वव्यापी सर्वभूतान्तरात्मा ।
कर्माध्यक्षः सर्वभूताधिवासः साक्षी चेता केवलो
निर्गुणश्च ॥

5. He is the one God hidden in all beings and pervading all things; He is the self within all creatures, the ordainer of all deeds, the dweller in all beings, the witness, the knower, the Alone, the One who is devoid of all qualities.

६. एको वशी निष्क्रियाणां बहूनामेकं बीजं बहुधा यः करोति ।
तमात्मस्थं येऽनुपश्यन्ति धीरास्तेषां सुखं शाश्वतं
नेतरेषाम् ॥

6. He is the one controller of the inactive many; He makes the one seed manifold. The wise who perceive Him abiding in their self—to them belongs eternal happiness, not to others.

७. नित्यो नित्यानां चेतनश्चेतनानामेको बहूनां यो विदधाति कामान् । तत्कारणं सांख्ययोगाधिगम्यं ज्ञात्वा देवं मुच्यते सर्वपाशैः ॥

7. He is the eternal among the eternal, the intelligent among the intelligences, the one among the many, who fulfils their desires. He is the cause which is to be apprehended through discrimination and discipline. By knowing that God one is freed from all fetters.

८. यदा चर्मवदाकाशं वेष्टयिष्यन्ति मानवाः । तदा देवमविज्ञाय दुःखस्यान्तो भविष्यति ॥

8. It is only when men shall be able to roll up the sky like a hide that there will be an end to sorrow without knowing God.

९. तपः प्रभावद्देवप्रसादाच्च ब्रह्म ह श्वेताश्वतरोऽथ विद्वान् । अत्याश्रमिभ्यः परमं पवित्रं प्रोवाच सम्यग्गृषिसंघजुष्टम् ।

9. Through the power of his penance and through the grace of God the wise Svetasvatara has thus truly proclaimed the highest and holiest Brahman to the advanced ascetics, as approved by the assembly of sages.

१०. वेदान्ते परमं गुह्यं पुराकल्पे प्रचोदितम् । नाऽप्रशान्ताय दातव्यं नाऽपुत्रायाशिष्याय वा पुनः ॥

10. This highest mystery in the Vedanta delivered in a former age should not be imparted to anyone whose passions have not been subdued, nor again to one who is not a son or a pupil.

११. यस्य देवे परा भक्तिः यथा देवे तथा गुरौ । तस्यैते कथिता
ह्यर्थाः प्रकाशन्ते महात्मनः ॥ प्रकाशन्ते महात्मन इति ॥

11. When these subjects are taught to a high-souled person who feels the highest devotion to God and to his Guru as to God himself—then will they shine forth, then will they shine forth indeed.

NOTES

From the Isa-Upanishad

1. Through such renunciation—namely, that everything belongs to God.

For whose is wealth?—This is an alternative interpretation suggested by Sankara. The text is usually interpreted as 'Do not covet another man's wealth'. But this gives a rather weak ending to a mantra which begins so magnificently.

2. The Gita doctrine of Karma Yoga is anticipated here.

9. The words avidya and vidya in this and the following two mantras are interpreted by Sankara to mean karma and upasana respectively—that is, performance of rites and the knowledge of the deities worshipped.

11. According to Sankara, again, death here means activity and knowledge prompted by Nature, and immortality means union with the deities worshipped. He thinks that in these mantras vidya cannot mean jnana or the highest knowledge, because jnana cannot be said to lead to 'greater darkness'. Nor can amrita mean moksha, which jnana alone can give. It can only mean union with the deities worshipped which will gradually lead one to the desired end. However, in modern terms, the teaching here may be said to mean that both knowledge and good works are required for one's salvation.

12-14. According to Sankara the unmanifest (asambhuti) in these three mantras means the unmanifest Nature (Prakriti), and the manifest (sambhuti) means the manifest Brahman called Hiranyagarbha. In No. 14 he takes sambhuti to mean asambhuti or unmanifest Nature and vinasa to mean sambhuti or Hiranyagarbha. Those who worship the unmanifest Nature get absorbed in it, and those who worship Hiranyagarbha obtain supernatural powers like anima etc. In modern terms the teaching here may be said to mean that we have to pay attention to both the eternal and the temporal.

From the Kenopanishad

II. 1.—The Absolute is not an object of knowledge, whether we conceive it in human terms or divine terms. That is why when a man says he knows it, it is certain he does not really know it. The same idea is expressed paradoxically in the following mantras.

The Absolute is not an external object to be known but the eternal subject within us to be realised.

II. 4—When Brahman is known as the witness of all states of consciousness it is correctly known. Such a knowledge acquired by the Atman alone and not by any other means brings strength and that strength can overcome death. Here vidya means jnana, and amrita means moksha.

III. 12—Uma here is the personification of Vidya—the highest knowledge. She is traditionally represented as the daughter of the Himalayas, the abode of great Rishis as well as of Siva, the omniscient Lord.

IV. 12—The illustrations given in these two mantras viz., the flash of lightning, the winking of the eye, and the speed of thought indicate the quick appearance and disappearance of the perception of Brahman—the sudden glimpse of the Reality and its sudden withdrawal.

IV. 13—The formula tadvanam which is mentioned here as the designation of Brahman means "That which is to be meditated upon as the Self of all beings".

From the Kathopanishad

I. 1.—Vajasravasa is represented in the Upanishad as a ritualist who performs a sacrifice with a desire for its fruit in the next world. And Nachiketas, his son, is represented as a higher type of character. He does not care for the pleasures either of this world or the next. He thirsts for the highest kind of knowledge which brings liberation from all desires.

4.—As the gifts made by his father are very unsatisfactory Nachiketas wants to sacrifice himself and make his father's ritual perfect. Yama is often called mṛityu in this Upanishad. But he is not simply death personified. He is the god of death who, if he pleases, can give long life and wealth to a man.

5. Three classes of pupils are mentioned here (1) those who know the teacher's intentions and carry them out, (2) those who carry out only the express commands of the teacher and (3) those who don't carry out even the express commands of the teacher. Nachiketas thinks that he belongs either to the first or second class and not to the third.

6. With these words Nachiketas urges his father not to go back on his word, though it was uttered in anger. Neither the ancestors of Vajasravasa nor other righteous men will ever do such a thing.

25. 'How could a mortal, after approaching you, become poor or short-lived?'—is the comment of Sankara.

II. 8.—'By a different man' means by one who is other than an inferior man, i.e., by a superior man who knows the truth. Sankara's interpretation is 'by one who is not different from the Brahman he teaches', that is, by one who feels his oneness with Brahman.

9. 'You have obtained it now'—he is going to obtain it in a few moments by Yama's granting of the third boon.

III. 7.—Through the tranquillity of his mind and senses—Some interpret the phrase used here to mean 'through the grace of the creator'.

10. Sankara interprets the latter half of this mantra thus :—"It can be obtained by the self of him who seeks it exclusively. To him the Self reveals its nature".

12. He to whom—condiment—This means that in God all social distinctions disappear and even death is swallowed up.

20. The essences—these are the so-called tanmatras or subtle elements out of which, according to the Sankhya system, the senses are evolved. the great soul—this is Mahat or Mahan Atma, the cosmic soul or Hiranyagarbha.

21. the unmanifest—the Primal or undifferentiated Nature, also called Avyakrita.

the spirit—Purusha here is best translated as the all-pervading spirit.

IV. 3.—The Self is ever present in all experience. What is there that is not an object of knowledge for the Self?

This is verily That—that which Nachiketas asked for, that which is beyond right and wrong, beyond cause and effect etc. (III-1).

7. here—in the conditioned existence here below.

there—in the unconditioned Brahman.

That which exists here is not different from the highest Brahman. from death to death—through Samsara.

9.—of the size of the thumb—The cavity of the heart in which the self is supposed to reside is said to have the size of the thumb.

11. runs after them—becomes worldly and plunges more deeply into the error of seeing only multiplicity here.

11 & 12. In these two mantras we have a comparison between a man who persists in seeing only the separateness of things and a man who realises the essential unity of all things.

So does—becomes one with Brahman.

V. 1—The city of eleven gates—The body in which the soul resides is described as a city of nine or eleven gates. The nine gates are the two eyes, the two ears, the two nostrils, the mouth and the two lower apertures. By adding the navel and the aperture on the top of the head through which the soul is said to escape at the hour of death we get eleven gates.

4. What is left over? Nothing. The body decays. The decay is due not merely to the loss of breath but to something higher on which the breath depends.

6—7. Here we have a direct answer to the original question of Nachiketas in the reference to the Law of Karma.

VI.1—3. In these three mantras we have an eloquent expression of the immanence of God and the essential unity of all things in Him.

4—5. And here we have an indication of the result of one's realising that unity.

fulfills the desires of many—distributes the rewards of Karma.

6. "That is it"—Those who are able to realise Brahman say "that is it"—as something directly perceived.

7. there—in respect of Brahman. The Supreme, who is the source of all light, cannot be known by any earthly light. The sun cannot lighten Him. He lightens the sun.

This beautiful verse is repeated in Mundaka and Svetasvatara Upanishads.

VII.1 The Asvattha tree is the symbol of all creation. Its root is above in Brahman and its branches are below in the world. The figure is repeated and elaborated in the Bhagavad Gita XV. 1-2.

7. Yoga comes and goes—The state of Yoga in which all the senses and the mind are to be quiescent is very unstable at first. Therefore one should practise it with great care.

VIII.2 One perceives God at first, through faith, as He is to us, that is with attributes. And then He reveals Himself to us as He really is—that is without any attributes that we can think of. Faith in the existence of Brahman leads one to spiritual experience in which one perceives His true nature.

3. even here—That is, one need not wait till death.

4. Thus far is the teaching—what follows is probably a later addition.

From the Prasnopanishad.

I. 6—Space is such a power etc.—The five elements including akasa are mentioned first as the powers, and then the resulting senses and the mind.

9. Here begins a magnificent hymn on Life (Prana).

11. Note the change in the pronoun from the third person to the second person.

15. ever pure—Vratya is the unpurified one. As Prana is the first born there was none to purify it. The meaning here therefore, according to Sankara, is that it is ever pure.

II. 4—The other vital breaths—the reference here is to the five aspects of Prana, viz., Prana, Apana, Vyana, Udana and Samana.

II. 5—seven fires—the activities of the two eyes, ears and nostrils and the mouth.

III. 6—We have here an enumeration of the five cosmic elements and their subtle forms, according to the Sankhya system, and also the organs of perception, the organs of action, the mind, intellect, the ego-sense and light and life and their objects.

IV. 5—The world of Brahma—The world of Hiranyagarbha who is the internal self of all beings in Samsara. He who meditates on the three elements of Aum sees the supreme Purusha beyond the world of Hiranyagarbha and becomes liberated (mukto bhavati).

V. 4—He created life (Prana)—Sankara interprets prana as Hiranyagarbha, the world-soul.

From the Mundaka-Upanishad

I. 4—Note that the indescribable Absolute is also said to be the source of all beings. So it cannot be a mere negation or a blank.

5.—The famous illustration of the spider and its web is meant to convey that Brahman is the sole cause of the universe, requiring nothing else to be used by him in the process.

II. 4—the eighteen sacrificial forms—the reference is to the eighteen persons present at a sacrifice—the sixteen officiating priests and the sacrificer and his wife.

III. 6—The worlds where etc.—the reference here is to the worlds which are the fruits of Karma.

8. Sankara takes Pranas here to mean sense-organs. The seven flames are their activities, the sevenfold fuel represents their sevenfold objects and the sevenfold oblations are their sevenfold perception of the objects, the seven lokas are the seats of the senses resting in the cave of the heart—during sleep fixed—by the Creator.

seven and seven—in every living being

IV 6—Where the arteries meet—That is, the cave of the heart

10 of golden hue—being full of light

V 1—Two birds—Jiva and Iswara, the tree is the body

6 Truth alone succeeds—Note that the motto of the Republic of India is taken from this mantra

VI 7—See note on Prasnopanishad III—6

VI 10—the vow of the head—the Atharvana rite of carrying fire on the head.

From the Mandukyopaniṣad

1 Whatever else—i.e., the unmanifested Absolute which is beyond time.

3 seven limbs—Quoting from the Chandogya Upanishad Sankara says that of that Vaisvanara Self the effulgent sky is the head, the sun is the eye, the air is the vital breath, space is the waist, water is the bladder and the earth the feet and Ahavaniya fire the mouth nineteen mouths—These are the five organs of sense, the five organs of action, the five vital breaths, the mind, the understanding, the ego-sense and thought. They are called mouths because they are the instruments by which the Vaisvanara self experiences objects

7 See Introduction. In his comment on this mantra Dr Radhakrishnan says, "Here we get a reality which is beyond the distinction of subject and object, and yet it is above and not below this distinction. It is super-theism and not atheism or anti-theism. We cannot use here terms like all-knowing, all-powerful. Brahman cannot be treated as having objects of knowledge or powers. It is pure being. In many passages the Upanishads make out that Brahman is pure being beyond all word and thought."

From the Taittiriya Upanishad

I—1 This is a Teacher's Prayer

3 thousand branches—all the gods invoked in the Vedic hymns are only His manifestations.

13. He entered by that way—The Spirit entered through the head, as life entered through the foot. The cleft in the head, through which also the spirit of the liberated man escapes, is the place of bliss, of the highest spiritual consciousness.

three states of sleep—the waking, the dreaming and the sleeping states. The waking state also is considered a state of sleep, for it is a state of ignorance for the ordinary man of the world.

14. being born—having entered the body and become a jiva. talked only of created objects—Being a creature now he is concerned only with the world of creatures.

Then did he see—When his soul is roused by a Guru he sees and realises Brahman.

From the Chandogya Upanishad

1-8. the eighth—Counting from the earth etc., mentioned above.

4. the threefold knowledge—the three Vedas—Rik, Sama and Yajur and the rites mentioned in them.

with Aum etc.—as in the Soma sacrifice.

11-1. the gods and the demons—the gods here represent those functions of the senses which are illuminated by scriptures and which lead to virtue, and the demons represent those functions of the senses which lead to sensuality and vice. The aim of this story is to exalt the meditation on Mukhya Prana, the chief vital breath. This Prana is pure, it has no evil side, while speech, sight, hearing etc., have an evil side as well as a good side.

III—9. Space—Akasa (space) here stands for the supreme Self.

The question discussed here is, what is the ultimate ground of the world? The theories that the ultimate ground is sound, breath, food, water, heaven, earth are discarded as inadequate.

IV. This story is meant to teach that in performing sacrifices one should know what one is doing. One should have a knowledge of the meaning of the mantras, and of the deities invoked etc.

V. Gayatri is all this—As Brahman by itself is incomprehensible it is explained here by means of this symbol—the Gayatri metre. This metre is chosen because it is the most important of all the metres. Cf. Gita X-35.

V. 5.—This metre has four feet, each foot having four syllables. It is sixfold in the shape of speech, creatures, earth, body, heart and the vital breaths mentioned above.

V. 6.—Purusha—Brahman as He is Himself and not His manifestation symbolised by Gayatri.

V. 7.—The Brahman symbolised by Gayatri is now identified with Akasa or space with its three phases—that which is outside man, that which is inside and that which is within the heart.

VI. The identity of the object and the subject is again stressed and enforced by means of fanciful analogies.

VII. This is known as Sandilya-Vidya—one of the many forms of meditation recommended in the Upanishads. It asserts the oneness of the individual soul and the Supreme Brahman.

The formula tajjalan is explained as that from which the universe is born, into which it will return and in which it continues to live. Thus at all periods of time the universe remains one with Brahman.

VIII. Man's life is here compared to a sacrifice. The analogy is worked out in detail.

9. Note this important reference to Krishna, the son of Devaki and the pupil of Ghora Angirasa. It throws light on the historicity of Krishna.

IX & X. On the story of Satyakama Jabala and his illumination see Introduction, pp. 29-30.

Sankara says that this story is intended to show that faith (sraddha) and penance (tapas) are parts of the meditation on Brahman.

XI. Here is another story meant to show that faith and penance are the means to Brahma-vidya. It will be noticed that in this story the Fires teach Upakosala only one half of the truth—the spirit residing in the universe and its phenomena. The other half of the truth, viz. that the same spirit resides also in man, is given by the teacher by way of supplementing the teaching of the Fires.

5 The identification of Kham (space) and Kam (pleasure) denotes spiritual bliss, what is called anandam in the Taittiriya Upanishad.

6. After teaching him thus collectively, each of the Fires now proceeds to say what it symbolises by itself.

11. The Person who is seen in the eye—the Self which is called the eye of the eye in the Kenopanishad.

15. Leads them to Brahman—Not Brahman the pure being, but the conditioned Brahman of Satyaloka. For with regard to the unconditioned Brahman there is no question of coming or going or leading. As the Mundaka Upanishad says, "He who knows the supreme Brahman becomes Brahman itself."

Only the path of the gods (devayana) is described here. Its counterpart, the path of the Pitris (pitri-yana) which leads one back to samsara, is not described. (See Extract XIV for a fuller account of the paths.)

XII. This section explains the significance and the healing power of the three Vyahritis—bhuh, bhuvah and svah—in setting right any errors committed in the performance of sacrifices.

XIII. This story explains why the senses are often termed Pranas. Prana or life-breath underlies each of them. The senses are supposed to be only forms of life.

XIV—1. In this extract we have the famous Panchagnividya which is also found in the Brihadaranyaka Upanishad (VI. 2). Five questions are raised and five answers are given in the course of the narrative. We have here a full statement of the two paths—the path of the gods (deva-yana) and the path of the Pitris (Pitri-yana).

8. The fifth question is taken up first—"Why is water in the fifth libation called man?" Water here means the liquid offerings. It is designated technically as 'faith'. It is successively offered in the 'fires' of heaven, rain-god, this world, man and woman in the increasingly grosser forms of faith, moon, rain, food and the vital fluid respectively and results at last in man.

18. Cf. Brihadaranyaka-Upanishad—"But those who do not know these two ways become insects, moths and whatever there is here that bites."

XV. The five householders in this narrative are like the blind men who feel and describe only parts of the elephant and imagine that the part which each of them perceives is the whole because they are unable to see the whole elephant at once. The Kshatriya prince Asvapati corrects their error. He accepts their conceptions of sky, sun, air, space, water and earth as partial representations of the universal Self and points out how the Self cannot be identified with any particular deity or natural object.

14. you eat food—you are happy and satisfied.

praadesa maatra—this expression is best interpreted as—"extending from earth to heaven."

abbhivimana—identical with himself.

XVI. 3. instruction by which etc.—Even if a man knows all the Vedas his object is not fulfilled unless he knows the Self. Compare what Narada says in XVIII—mantravideva asmi naatmavit.

5. the difference being only a name—only a nominal change.

8. in the beginning—before creation or manifestation.

this was Being alone—this universe was pure Being without any limitation and without a second.

10. It thought—literally, it saw. This shows that the Being was a conscious spirit and not lifeless matter.

It sent forth fire—In other Upanishads it was akasa (space) that comes first, then air and then fire. But, as Sankara says, the text here is not concerned with the order of creation. It is interested only in making out that all effects are derived from One Being.

XVII. 2. Though mind is a higher category than life it is rooted in life.

6. The order of evolution assumed here is as follows :—

Pure Being→fire→water→earth. In man we have a combination of these three elements. When he dies his speech merges in his mind, the mind merges in life and life merges in heat and heat or fire is taken back into the Being.

7. tat tvam asi—That thou art. This famous formula occurs here for the first time and is repeated nine times in this section. It emphasises the inherent divinity of the human soul. Thou refers not to the empirical soul but to the inward spirit—the spark of divinity within.

19-20. Sankara has an eloquent comment on this passage. He makes out that our real home is Sat or Pure Being. Our eyes here are blinded by our desires for worldly possessions and we cannot see our way to our destination. But when we suddenly meet a person who knows the Self and whose eyes are wide open and whose bonds are broken, and when he points to us the way, we are able to escape out of the Samsara and reach our true home.

23-24. Here we have a reference to the ordeal by fire. The guilty man is burnt and killed by grasping the heated axe, while the innocent man is not affected by touching it. Similarly, of the two men who die—one who is attached to the truth of Pure Being and one who is attached to the falsities of this world—it is the former that is liberated, while the latter returns to the cycle of births and deaths. Now that Self, attachment to which brings liberation, and non-attachment bondage, that Self which is the root of the universe and in which all creatures live and move, that Self which is the subtle essence of everything—it is the True, it is thy Self and thou art That.

XVIII-1. Teach me—Teach me Brahman (or Atman). The formula is the same as that which Bhrigu utters when he approaches his father Varuna in the Taittiriya Upanishad and asks for instruction. As in that Upanishad Bhrigu is led on stage by stage from annam (matter) to anandam (perfect bliss) in the exposition of Brahman, so here also Narada is led on stage by stage from name (nama) to the Infinite (Bhuma). The steps are :

name (nama), speech (vac), mind (manas), will (sankalpa), thought (chittam), contemplation (dhyanam), understanding (vijnanam), strength (bala), food (annam), water (apah), heat (tejas), ether (akasa), memory (smarah), hope (asa), life (prana), truth (satyam), higher understanding (vijnanam), higher thought (mati), faith (sraddha), steadfastness (nishtha), activity (kirti), happiness (sukham), bhuma (the Infinite).

4. All the details mentioned above are omitted in the present extract.

6. in its own greatness—It is finite things that are established in others. The Infinite rests in its own greatness or simply in itself.

9. See the note on 1.

10. he becomes three etc.—Three, five, nine, eleven etc.—these numbers indicate the endless ramifications after creation.

When what one takes is purified—The text now proceeds to indicate the means by which the above-mentioned Vidya becomes fruitful. Ahara in the text is not merely food. It means all the experiences gained through the senses.

purified—freed from the taint of attachment or aversion.

Memory becomes firm—the memory of the Infinite becomes uninterrupted.

skanda—one who helps to leap out of darkness, (from skand, to leap).

XIX. 1. this city of Brahman—human body.

a small lotus—the heart.

Sankara says that, though Brahman is free from all limitations of space and time, as set forth in the previous chapters of the Upanishad, it is now taught under the limitations of space, those of the heart in the body, for the comprehension of the ordinary people with dull intellects,

5. And as here on earth people obey orders etc.—so also our future is entirely dependent on our desires.

11. But these desires have a covering of what is false—Though they lie in one's own Self, yet they have a covering of untruth, namely, longing for the external objects of sense. One should first seek the Self and then all desires are fulfilled.

XX—1. that preserves these worlds—from destruction.

do not reach—According to Sankara Taratah here does not mean 'cross' but 'reach'. It is therefore to be interpreted as 'cross over to'.

day and night do not reach that bank—Day and night are the marks of time. But time does not exist in the Absolute, nor any of the troubles of this world.

XX-14.—the person that is seen in the eye—What Prajapati means is the agent involved in the act of seeing. But his pupils mistake it for the image that is reflected in the eye. And so they ask whether it is the same as that reflected in water or a mirror.

6. Prajapati suggests this to make them see that the body whose appearance is changed by means of clothes and ornaments cannot be the changeless self.

13. Even though the dreaming self is not subject to the defects of the body, it is still subject to pleasure and pain.

15. Indra asks himself whether, in dreamless sleep in which there are no objects of which the Self is conscious, the Self itself is not reduced to nothing. A mere unconscious entity is not the Self he is in search of.

17. there is nothing else besides this—What I will explain to you is the highest Self.

19. When he rises up from this body—when he is freed from all the limitations of the body—the senses, mind and understanding.

20. there is the seeing person etc.—The Teacher comes back to the statement with which he started : "The person that is seen in the eye—that is the Self."

XXII-1. From the dark I pass to the coloured—that is, from the unmanifested to the manifested, from the transcendent to the immanent.

2. Akasa (space) is often taken as the symbol of the Infinite.

3. I am the glory of the Brahmins—because they meditate on the Self.

4. May I never go etc.—May I never again enter a womb and be born again !

XXIII. The great Upanishad ends with this beautiful little picture of the ideal man who reaches the goal of life.

except at specified holy places—this may refer to the places where sacrifices are offered or to the places where mendicants are allowed to trouble others for alms.

From the Brihadaranyaka Upanishad.

I-1. This is a meditation on the well-known asvamedha sacrifice. It is said that the meditation on a sacrifice is as good as the sacrifice itself. It brings about the same result as the actual rite. The presiding deity of asvamedha is Prajapati or Hiranyagarbha (the world-soul). Here the sacrificial horse itself is recommended to be looked upon as Hiranyagarbha. Just as in Purusha-sukta the world is represented as parts of the Primeval Being sacrificed by the gods, so here the phenomena of the universe are represented as parts of the sacrificial horse which is identified with Hiranyagarbha.

2. The sea stands for the Supreme Self which manifests itself successively as Isvara, Hiranyagarbha and Virat.

II-1. and is the innermost—and therefore should be dearer than even one's own organs and limbs.

3. what was it that Brahman knew? The answer is given in the next mantra. It knew itself, as it alone existed in the beginning.

4. Seeing this indeed—Realising the identity of his self with Brahman.

I was Manu etc.—This is the result of realising that identity. He became all things.

that men should know this—that men should know the identity of the self with Brahman. The result would be that gods would lose all their worshippers.

III. The results of good works are temporary, while the knowledge of the Self leads to eternal bliss and the fulfilment of all desires.

IV-1. People indeed rush etc.—People rush to Janaka because he loves to hear about Brahman and he is also liberal. Ajatasatru feels that he too can be like Janaka.

2. Please do not talk to me about him—for I know all about the Brahman you are speaking of and also about his qualities. I meditate on these.

He who meditates on him thus etc.—because the results correspond to the particular attributes meditated upon

3 White-robed king Soma—Soma is both the moon and the creeper whose juice is drunk at the sacrifices. Soma is also associated with the mind of man, as the sun is with the eye

10. But this does not suffice to know it—Gargya has been speaking only about the conditioned Brahman. Ajatasatru wants to lead him on to the knowledge of the higher unconditioned Brahman

11 He called him—Soma—As Soma stands for the mind, Ajatasatru calls him by that name to prove that the real self is not the body or the mind, but an entity beyond these

13 resides in space (akasa) in the heart—Akasa symbolises the supreme Self

16 from this self come forth all organs, all worlds—Thus while Gargya, though a Brahmin, has only an imperfect knowledge of Brahman as it manifests itself in sun and moon and the body and mind of man, Ajatasatru, though a Kshatriya, has the correct knowledge of Brahman as the unconditioned Supreme Spirit beyond the senses, mind and understanding of man, as well as beyond the sun, moon and lightning

V-1 This dialogue between Yajnavalkya and his wife Maitreyi is repeated in a later section in this Upanishad with only a few minor changes. That section begins thus

"Now Yajnavalkya had two wives, Maitreyi and Katyayani. Of these Maitreyi used to discuss Brahman, while Katyayani had an essentially feminine outlook. When Yajnavalkya wished to get ready for another mode of life, he said, 'Maitreyi, my dear, I am going to renounce this life, let me make a settlement between you and Katyayani.'"

And it ends thus —

"Thus you have this instruction given to you, O Maitreyi, such is life eternal' Having said this Yajnavalkya went away (to the forest)"

V-6 Verily, it is not for the sake of the husband etc.—As Sankara says, this is an elaboration of the earlier text (II-1) that the Self is dearer than the son etc. But we may also take it as an indication that the love of husband, wife and sons may be made an instrument for the realisation of the Self

16. it is the Self that should be seen etc.—The later Vedanta elaborates this into the three well-known steps in the path of realisation, viz, Sravana, Manana and Nididhyasana

17. The Brahmin rejects—The gist of this passage is that we have to view all things in the world not in their separateness but in their unity in the Self. It is only then that we understand them correctly. Otherwise they do not yield their true meaning, and we are, as it were, rejected by them.

18-20. The same idea is repeated in these three similes. But Sankara interprets these somewhat differently. He says :—

Just as a drum, a conch and a vina have distinct general and particular notes of their own which are included in sound in general, so during the continuance of the universe we may know all things to be unified in Brahman because the varieties of genus and species are not different from it.

21—From Him indeed all these are breathed forth—as easily as a man breathes.

22—As of all waters ocean is the centre etc.—So Self is the centre of all things.

23—It emerges from these elements etc.—the individual self comes into existence along with the elements which make up the body and vanishes along with them.

When it is gone etc.—When it is merged in the universal Self there is no individual consciousness.

24—Here you have bewildered me etc.—Maitreyi is bewildered because she does not understand that it is the individual consciousness that is lost. She thinks that the result of the merging is unconsciousness. So Yajnavalkya proceeds to explain how when everything is merged in the Self there can be no separate individual consciousness—as when a river empties itself into the ocean it has no separate existence, but its waters are not lost, they have become the waters of the ocean.

VI-1. This earth is like honey to all beings—Just as honey and the bees are mutually dependent—the bees making the honey and the honey supporting the bees—so also the earth and all the beings are mutually dependent. And as it is common experience, says Sankara, that those things which are mutually helpful spring from the same cause, belong to the same genus and dissolve into the same thing, this universe consisting of earth, fire, water etc. and men must also have the same source and the same end—Brahman.

VII-5. Such and such is a cow :—Just as a man who, having proposed to point out a cow or a horse, merely describes certain characteristics of theirs, as “a cow is that which walks” or “a horse is that which runs”, so you have indicated the Self or Brahman through certain characteristics such as breathing. To this Yajnavalkya replies, "You want me to describe Brahman as I would an object. It is impossible to do so as Brahman is not an object but the eternal subject."

Everything else is evil—everything else is perishable. This only is imperishable and changeless.

6. should wish to rest upon its strength—The word used in the text for "strength" is balyena. This is interpreted by some Western scholars to mean "as a child". They translate the passage into, "Therefore let a Brahmin, after he has done with learning, desire to live as a child"—i.e.,—in a state of innocence and simplicity without the pride of learning. But this exaltation of child-like innocence above learning and scholarship is more a Christian idea than a Hindu idea. Sankara says that as a result of his scholarship the aspirant gains strength to eradicate his desires and pass on to the next stage of meditation.

howsoever he conducts himself—This is said by way of tribute to the state of realisation of Brahman and does not refer to any reckless conduct.

everything else is of evil—everything except the realisation of Brahman is impermanent.

7. in the worlds of Brahma—Sankara says that the worlds given in this passage are arranged in the ascending order of subtlety, each being composed of the same five elements transformed so as to become fit abodes for the enjoyment of beings. Brahma here means Hiranyagarbha. Brahmaloka is said to be the basis of the whole universe.

You are asking too much—You are asking too much about a divinity which cannot be reached through reasoning, but through scriptural revelation.

8. I know it—for the Gandharva explained it to us, says Uddalaka.

I know, O Gautama, that thread and that inner controller—The thread is Hiranyagarbha symbolised by Vayu, and the Inner Controller is Iswara, the personal phase of Brahman.

10. Whose body the earth is—The Inner Controller uses the earth, water, fire etc., as his instruments. Similarly, he uses the senses, mind and understanding of men as his instruments.

26. He is the unseen seer etc.—It is upon such passages as these that the Advaita philosophy is based.

32-33. The question and the answer given in 29 and 30 are repeated here to emphasise the truth already stated. After receiving the same answer Gargi asks him, "Across what then is space woven like warp and woof?"

34. It is neither gross nor fine, neither short nor long—Sankara says that by these four negations of size all the characteristics of a substance (dravya) are denied. And by the remaining negations all kinds of attributes (viseshana) are denied. As that Akshara is one only without a second what is there that can be specified? and through what?

35. Though the Ultimate cannot be described, It exists. And now inferential evidence in favour of Its existence is adduced, viz., the prevalence of law and order in the universe.

39. Nivid—a group of verses recited in the hymn to the Visve-devas. It gives the number of gods.

41. they are, verily, the three worlds—Sankara explains that the earth and fire taken together make one god, the sky and air make another, and heaven and the sun make a third.

matter and vital force—because out of these two—Annam and Pranam—the rest develop.

therefore he is one and half—he is one, and the world that grows in him is half. But really, Yajnavalkya here puns on the word, adhyartha, and passes on.

who is the one God? The answer is Prana, the vital force in its cosmic aspect of Hiranyagarbha, the world-soul, who is both one and many.

43-(5) Do not say 'from the seed'—because the seed is produced in a living man and not a dead man, whereas a tree springs up from the dead stump as well as from the seed.

43-(7) Born already? If you think he is ever born and 'no question about his birth is permissible, I say, 'No, he is born again', as a result of what he did or knew in the preceding life.

The Brahmins did not know that the root of the universe was Brahman. Thus they were defeated and Yajnavalkya took away the prize. Sankara thinks that the story ends here. And the Upanishad in its own form tells us about Brahman in the concluding words.

and of him who stands still and knows it—and of him who has renounced all works and stands secure in his knowledge.

VIII-2. As one who had a mother etc.—as one who was well instructed by his mother during childhood, by his father after that and by a teacher after his Upanayana.

Then it has only one foot—and so it is incomplete and will not produce any effect though meditated upon.

My father was of opinion—I am also of the same opinion and so cannot accept your gift till I have instructed you completely.

9. You have reached the state of fearlessness—You are free from the fear of birth and death.

10. who make us know etc.—by removing the veil of ignorance from our eyes.

IX-5. speech—it denotes sound which falls on the ear and reaches the mind.

6. the self indeed is his light—By the word self is meant that light which is different from one's body and organs and illumines them like the external lights such as the sun, but is itself not illumined by anything else.

7. who consists of knowledge—means 'who is identified with intellect.' The self is so called because of our inability to discriminate its association with intellect which is its limiting adjunct.

seeming to think etc.—because of its association with buddhi or understanding. Strictly speaking, thought and action do not belong to the Self. They belong to the limiting adjuncts.

forms of death—the body and the organs, on which actions and their results depend.

8. he leaves the evils behind—the body and the organs are meant by the 'evils'.

13. As a large fish etc.—Sankara points out that in this illustration we have to notice that the fish moves freely between the two banks without being overpowered by the intervening current of water. According to him, the point of the illustration is that the body and the organs which are forms of death and their stimulating causes, desire and work, are the attributes of the non-self and that the Self is distinct from them.

14—he desires no desires and sees no dreams—It has been shown that in the waking state the self appears as connected with attachments and forms of death and in the dream state it is perceived as connected with desire but free from forms of death. Now it is shown that in the state of profound sleep it is perfectly serene and unattached.

15—Now, as a man embraced by his beloved wife—This illustration goes to show that when perfect unity is achieved between the individual self and the Supreme Self the result is pure consciousness and one is not aware of anything else.

16—In that state a father is no father etc.—for it is a state beyond all empirical distinctions caused by ignorance (avidya) such as varna (caste) and asrama (state of life), good and evil etc.

17—there is no cessation of seeing for the seer—The seer can never lose his fundamental character of seeing (as fire cannot lose its fundamental character of burning so long as it is fire). Only there is no second, nothing else different from him, to see. The same point is emphasised in all the passages 17-25.

26—An ocean is that one seer without any duality—All the four words with which this passage begins are important. Salila—like water; eka—one; drashta—seer; advaita—without duality; like water—either extensive or transparent as water.

the world of Brahman—the world that is Brahman.

All other creatures live on a fragment of this very bliss—the next passage conveys to us an idea of this bliss as a whole through its parts.

27—Here, as in Taittiriya Upanishad, we have an ascending order of beings in bliss.

Who have won their world—by the performance of funeral rites.

the world of Prajapati—of Virat.

the world of Brahma—of Hiranyagarbha.

as well as of one who is versed in the Vedas etc.—Vedic erudition, sinlessness and absence of desire are the means of attaining to particular types of bliss.

28—From here the description of the transmigration of the self begins.

32—The Self is indeed Brahman consisting of knowledge, mind etc.—Sankara points out that all those things which are the limiting adjuncts of the Self and are styled its bonds and with which it identifies itself through ignorance are here gathered together and presented in a group.

37-39—Recapitulation of what has already been said.

X-1—The gods are supposed to be conscious of their weakness. Puffed up with their powers they tend to become unruly. Therefore they understand Prajapati as saying "Control yourselves".

2—Men are also supposed to be conscious of their weakness. Never satisfied with what they get they tend to become avaricious. So they understand Prajapati as saying "Give away".

3—The demons are similarly supposed to be conscious of their weakness—cruelty to others. So they understand Prajapati as saying "Be compassionate".

4—Da is the first syllable of the three words of instruction—Damyata, Datta, Dayadhvam. All men are exhorted to cultivate these three virtues, for, as Sankara suggests, there are no gods or demons other than men.

From the Svetasvatara Upanishad.

I. 1—The Svetasvatara Upanishad is evidently of a later date than the first ten Upanishads mentioned in the preceding pages. Here the atmosphere is no longer one of free enquiry but of systematisation and harmonisation. Moreover the emphasis is shifted from the impersonal Brahman to the personal Iswara. So it may be called a theistic Upanishad. Like the Bhagavad Gita it tries to harmonise the various schools of thought that were prevalent at the time of its composition.

2—because of the existence of the soul—The unconscious cannot be the cause of a conscious being.

But the soul also is powerless—The conscious human being cannot be the ultimate cause, for he is powerless and is subject to the Law of Karma.

3—the power of God himself hidden etc.—The power (sakti) of Iswara, also called Maya later on, is the cause of creation. Unlike Prakriti or Pradhana of the Sankhya system, which is an independent entity, the Sakti is dependent on Iswara. The three qualities are sativa, rajas and tamas.

from 'time' to the 'soul'—mentioned as causes in No. 2.

5. In it there is the triad—the triad consists of the world, the individual soul and Iswara.

7. When one finds out etc.—The world, the soul and the personal God are all contained in Brahman.

9. the third state—namely that of Iswara. By meditation a man becomes one with Iswara, the Lord of the universe, going by the path of the gods (Devayana). But by jnana one gains moksha without any intermediate stage.

11—So it is in both cases—in the case of the fire and of the Self. by means of the Pranava—by meditation on the syllable Aum as representing the Self.

11-5—When the fivefold quality of Yoga is produced—The Yogi concentrates his mind on the five elements—earth, water, light, air and ether (akasa) and realises that his body is a combination of these and that his self is separate from them and so should not be subject to disease, old age and death.

9—He is the first born—as Hiranyagarbha, the world soul, the beginning of creation.

III-1. who spreads the net—the net of Maya.

3. by his arms and wings—This seems to be merely a poetic expression for the various powers of the Creator.

9. A person of the size of the thumb—This is supposed to be the size of the cavity of the heart.

IV. 5. world-soul—Hiranyagarbha, the first born of creation. ancient Wisdom—that of the Vedas.

V-1—Knowledge and ignorance—Vidya and Avidya. The former is the Knowledge of the One, the latter the knowledge of many detached from the One.

is another—Brahman is distinct from either.

2—the fiery Seer—Hiranyagarbha or the world-soul.

3—after spreading out one net after another—after creating one group of beings after another, such as gods, men, beasts etc.

withdraws them again—this refers to the cycles of creation.

into their own ground—into the Primal Nature or Mulaprakriti.

his Chief—the progenitors of various races.

6. Brahmā—Hiranyagarbha.

Which is hidden in the Upanishads—which is the object of the secret teaching of the Upanishads.

7. But he who is endowed etc.—the individual soul.

the three qualities—Sattva, Rajas and Tamas.

the three paths—Devayana (the path of the gods), Pitriyana (the path of the Pitris) and the path to the lowest births (See Chand. Up. Extract No. XIV.)

8—the size of a thumb—the size of the cavity of the heart in which the soul was supposed to lie.

VI-6—the one controller of the inactive many—The many include not only forms of matter but also all living creatures. According to one view it is God that directs the actions of all creatures. Hence the latter may be described as being inactive.

through discrimination and discipline—the discrimination of Sankhya and the discipline of Yoga.

9. Svetasvatara—the Rishi after whom the Upanishad is called. It is to be noticed that both individual effort and the grace of God are necessary for the acquisition of the highest knowledge.

Miscellaneous Passages

1. 'The unreal', 'darkness' and 'death' refer to existence in this world.

2. This is the prayer of a dying man.

thy deeds—because they will determine his future life.

3. without any colour—without variations.

That indeed is fire etc.—Notice the change into the neuter pronoun. To the Upanishadic seers God was both personal and impersonal, and all the Vedic gods, Agni, Vayu, etc.—were only the manifestations of the One. Moreover He was immanent in all creatures as well as transcendent.

4. This is the Santi-mantra or the initial invocation attached to the Kena Upanishad.

may they live in me—The truths have not only to be understood but also to be assimilated.

5. This is the Santi-mantra of the Kathopanishad.

both of us—the teacher and the student.

May our studies etc.—Here again the emphasis is not on mere intellectual apprehension but on actual realisation.

6. This is the Santi-mantra of the Prasna-Upanishad.

strong of limb—The prayer is not only for moral goodness but also for physical fitness.

Indra—the king of the gods.

Pushan—the sun.

Tarkshya—another name for Garuda, who is the Vahana of Vishnu and hence symbolises divine Grace.

Brihaspati—the priest of the gods. He is known for his eloquence, as "the lord of speech." Thus Indra, Pushan, Tarkshya, and Brihaspati stand respectively for strength, illumination, grace and power of expression.

7. This is the Santi-mantra of the Taittiriya Upanishad.

Aryaman—The sun.

the speaker—the teacher.

8. be thou manifest to me—by removing my ignorance.

9. That—the invisible and transcendent Brahman.

This—the visible universe in which Brahman is immanent.

When from the full etc—The emergence of the universe does not affect the integrity and the wholeness of Brahman.

10. Brahma—Hiranyagarbha, the world-soul, the first born of creation.

12. This is Trisanku's expression of his realisation of Brahman as a result of his knowledge of the Veda. Like another sage Vamadeva (in the Brihad-Upanishad) he identifies himself with Brahman and says these words.

the world-tree—the tree of samsara, whose moving spirit is the Supreme Brahman.
